THREE BOMBS HIS, JANITOR ADMITS

Machines for Rosalsky, Mrs. Walker, and Herrera Sent by Him, Farrell Confesses.

MUCH TO SUPPORT STORY

Drawings He Makes Tally with Police and Rosalsky Reports, but Sanity Is Questioned.

GIVES A REASON FOR EACH

But He Cannot Name His Bomb Teacher and Tells Two Stories of His Typewriter.

John Paul Farrell, assistant janitor of the apartment house at 1,475 Fulton Avenue, the Bronx, made two full confessions yesterday to the police and to three members of District Attorney Whitman's staff saying that within the last two years he had manufactured and sent to intended victims three nitro-glycerine bombs.

The first of the three bombs, according to Farrell's confession, killed Helen Taylor, or Grace Walker, when it exploded in her apartment at 108 West Seventy-seventh Street on Feb. 3, 1912; the second exploded in the apartment of Judge Otto Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions in the Hendrik Hudson apartment house, at 110th Street and Riverside Drive, on the evening of March 16, 1912, while the third exploded Sunday night in the apartment of Bernard Herrera, Superintendent of the Fulton Avenue apartment house, where Farrell was employed, killing Mrs. Herrera, seriously injuring Sarah Faughtman, a boarder, and may cause the loss of Herrera's right eye.

Farrell's motive for sending the bomb to Helen Taylor, he said, was jealousy, caused by her attentions to other men after being attentive to him. He sent the bomb to Judge Rosalsky he said out of a sense of gratitude toward Joseph De Rosa, alias "Joe the Bull," who went to prison on a thirty-nine-year sentence from Judge Rosalsky rather than "squeal" on Farrell, who was associated with him in burglary enterprises. The motive for sending the final bomb was neither jealousy nor gratitude, but simply to revenge himself on Herrera for discharging him as assistant janitor of the apartment house.

His only intention in sending the Herrera bomb, he insisted, was to scare Herrera and not to cause death. To emphasize this point he insisted that a short time ago he had planned to have his life insured in favor of Mrs. Herrera, the bomb's victim.

All three of the bombs, according to Farrell, were manufactured in his own basement room from the same stock of nitro-glycerine purchased eighteen months ago in a drug store near the corner of Third Avenue and Fourteenth Street. He refused to give the exact address of the drug store. The bomb sent to Judge Rosalsky was the most complicated of the three, he said, while that placed near the door of the Herrera flat was the simplest. Both the bomb sent to Judge Rosalsky and the bomb sent to Helen Taylor were attached to electric batteries, upon which they depended for a spark to ignite the nitro-glycerine, while the bomb made for the Herreras was arranged so that a percussion cap, such as boys use in toy pistols, would explode it.

Calm in Confession.

In making his confessions, Farrell, who is a bent, gray-haired man, probably 65 years old, although he says he is ten years younger than that, spoke without emotion or the display of any heroics. He talked in a perfectly calm manner, showing, if anything, a spirit of indifference to the consequences of his actions. He drew diagrams of all three of the bombs he had manufactured, as he declared, showing the points in which they differed. Judge Otto Rosalsky later drew a diagram of the bomb which he had received, which corresponded, according to Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel, with the diagram drawn by Farrell.

At Police Headquarters, Farrell looked over pieces of the bomb taken from the body of Mrs. Herrera. He identified these pieces as portions of the bomb he had manufactured. Portions of the bomb sent to Judge Rosalsky and of the bomb sent to Helen Taylor were shown, and he identified them both as manufactured by him.

At the conclusion of his conference with Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty and with the representatives of District Attorney Whitman, a charge of homicide was preferred against Farrell, upon which he will have a hearing at 10 o'clock this morning in the Coroner's office in the Bronx.

Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel learned that Farrell had served several prison sentences in New Jersey for burglary, under various names, and that he had been transferred during one of these prison terms to the insane asylum near Morris Plains. As this service in the insane asylum occurred fifteen years ago, and Farrell was afterward discharged as sane, it is the opinion of Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel that he can successfully prosecute a charge of homicide against Farrell. Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, however, expressed the belief that Farrell was mentally deranged, and that the State's case against him would finally result in his being sent to an insane asylum rather than to prison.

Story to be Verified.

A squad of detectives working under Deputy Commissioner Dougherty will attempt to-day to verify point by point the confession of Farrell, while Assistant District Attorneys Wasservogel, Breckenridge, and Murphy will check up its various points for District Attorney Whitman.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty declared that the confession removed all doubt from his mind that the long-standing police mystery of the Rosalsky bomb had really been solved.

"It means that almost a whole filing case of clues turn out to be wrong," he added, "for I never let up on that case for a minute, and was just as busily engaged in working on it last week as I was the week after it happened. Until Farrell came into my office this morning I had never suspected that he might be guilty of it. He had never been under suspicion and had never been watched."

Before he broke down under cross-examination by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, Farrell told several stories which proved to be false. One of them was that Helen Taylor was his daughter and that he had sent the bomb to her because she had become a woman of the streets after having been betrayed by a lover named Walker.

This Walker, Farrell said, was the same

CARTRIDGES IN MAIL BOX.

English Suffragettes Suspected of New Attempt to Terrify.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—New tactics by the suffragettes were disclosed to-night when a postman, collecting letters from a box in Portugal Street, found four live cartridges among the letters. The cartridges were of the pinfire pattern, which, if dropped on a hard substance, would in all probability, explode. While a postman was clearing a large pillar-box in Northumberland Avenue this evening the contents burts into flames, and a large number of letters were destroyed.

Mrs. Drummond, on behalf of the militant suffragettes, made another demand to-day upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer to receive deputations of working women to discuss the prospects of woman suffrage, but Lloyd-George, because of the disturbance created after the withdrawal of the Franchise bill, declined to meet the representatives of the Women's Social Political Union again.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Express says that the whole Cabinet was set sneezing yesterday by the simultaneous receipt by each Minister at the House of Commons of suffragette letters containing red pepper.

STANDARD OIL STOCK AS BAIL

Offered in Night Court by Bootblack Who Shines Rockefeller's Shoes.

Seven shares of stock of the Standard Oil Company were offered to Magistrate Corrigan for bail last night in the Men's Night Court by Leonard Bolpe, a bootblack of 154 Mott Street, who has a stand in the Standard Oil Company's building at 26 Broadway.

The stock was offered as security for the appearance in court of Gaetano Bocoma, who had been held on a charge of petty larceny by Magistrate Appleton in the Tombs Court. Bail was fixed at $500. Bolpe first offered an equity of $1,500 in property at Stapleton as security. Magistrate Corrigan seemed doubtful about accepting it, and then Bolpe offered the Oil Company stock, saying:

"I have a few shares of Standard Oil stock in my pocket, your Honor, if you care to accept that for bail. Seven shares are worth $3,000."

Bolpe produced his certificate of stock. It was No. 51,112.

"I have a bootblack stand at 26 Broadway," continued Bolpe, "and I frequently shine the shoes of Mr. Rockefeller, so I know the value of this stock."

Magistrate Corrigan released Bocoma without any further question, taking the real estate as security.

ADMITS HE LIED TO AMERICA.

Former Mexican Ambassador Makes Confession in Senate.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—"I lied to the American Government for ten months, telling it that the Mexican revolution would be over in six weeks. I was forced to invest my diplomatic mission with a domino and mask." Those words were uttered by Manuel Calero, formerly Mexican Ambassador to the United States in the discussion of the loan measure in the Senate last night. He continued: "The truth is that the Department of Finance has not painted the situation as it really is. We should speak the truth, though it destroys us. The truth is that the situation is desperate."

Senor Calero's speech made a sensation. Ernesto Madero, Minister of Finance, called him an indiscreet Ambassador and a bad financier.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—No comment was to be had in the State Department to-day on the utterance of Señor Calero. He came to Washington as Ambassador last June, and only a few weeks before that he asserted publicly that if the United States should intervene in Mexico to protect Americans and their property interests the Mexican Government would seize all Americans in that country as hostages.

KOHLER FACES "ACTION."

Cleveland's Mayor Says He Awaits Golden Rule Chief's Return.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 4.—Mayor Baker held a conference with the Efficiency Board to-day, and then, speaking of Chief of Police Kohler, the "Golden Rule Chief," now absent on a trip to Panama, said:

"I have personally investigated rumors which have been abroad in the city for some time with regard to Chief Kohler. I believe I am now in possession of all the facts, and these facts are such as, in my judgment, necessitate action upon the Chief's return.

"In the Chief's absence manifestly no action can be taken. In the meantime the police force will remain under the direction of Inspector Rowe, who will have full authority in the department. I have entire confidence in Rowe's ability, and in the zeal and efficiency of the department under his command."

Mayor Baker would not tell what form the action he spoke of would take when the Chief returned. "My statement speaks for itself. I will say nothing more," he said. Other officers of the police force may be involved in the pending investigation.

MRS. G. E. HICKS KILLED.

Struck at Crossing in Massapequa by Long Island Train.

MASSAPEQUA, L. I., Feb. 4.—While crossing the tracks of the Long Island Railroad at Broadway, Mrs. Louise Firth Hicks, widow of George Embree Hicks, was killed by a west-bound express train at 5 o'clock this evening. Mrs. Hicks had been living in Sheffield, England, since the death of her husband five years ago, and came here recently to visit Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sawyer. She left the Sawyer home to go to the Post Office, which is not 200 feet from the railroad tracks.

An east-bound train was passing as Mrs. Hicks approached the crossing, and as the last car whirled by she stepped on the tracks directly in the path of the express. She tried to jump back, but the train struck her, knocking her several feet and breaking her neck. She, it was said, was almost deaf.

Mrs. Hicks was 55 years old and was a sister of John Firth of 81 New Street, New York City. Her husband owned a large tract of land at Great Neck, L. I., and they were well known socially. A chamois bag tied about Mrs. Hicks's neck contained a dozen valuable pieces of jewelry.

'MAN HIGHER UP' GOT HALF POLICE GRAFT

Fox Tells Whitman He Collected $1,500 a Month for Capt. Walsh on a 10% Basis.

NAMES OTHER COLLECTORS

Memory Poor Until Threatened with Sentence, When He Reveals Inside Workings of the "System."

For two hours yesterday morning District Attorney Whitman talked with Eugene Fox, the policeman who pleaded guilty to bribery on Monday, and agreed to assist the prosecution in striking the trail of big grafters in the Police Department. Fox appeared at the Criminal Court Building with his counsel, Louis J. Grant, and Mr. Whitman at once began probing the depths of his knowledge.

It was a troublesome proceeding. Fox was shifty and guarded in his replies, and seemed to have forgotten many things within twenty-four hours. On Monday his memory was keen, but yesterday it was dull. Mr. Grant thought Fox would do better if he were left alone with Mr. Whitman, and so he went away.

Then the District Attorney attacked Fox as hard as he could. At the outset he warned Fox that he stood within the shadow of a State prison, and that if it was found that he had been lying when he said he could furnish valuable information that fact would be told to Justice Goff, before whom Fox would be arraigned without delay and his sentence moved.

This frightened Fox so badly that he began to tell all about his career as a graft collector for the police. He dwelt too long on trivial details, and more than once Mr. Whitman caught him in contradictions. When Fox said he could tell no more, Mr. Whitman accused him of lying when he said he had not shared in the graft he had collected. Then Fox admitted that he had lied, and that he had received 10 per cent. of the money collected for his commanding officer.

Under the questioning of Mr. Whitman, the policeman told those parts of his story that he could clearly remember. Those things that had been blurred in his mind by the lapse of several years he promised to recall if he could. He had small difficulty in remembering the names of hotels, of apartment houses, and of saloons where graft had been handed over to him, but he did not remember names of many of the persons who had paid the graft. He was then told that he must produce names, dates, and incidents. When he left Mr. Whitman's office his story was fairly complete. He will visit Mr. Whitman again to-day, when his statement will be set down in the form of an affidavit for presentation to the extraordinary Grand Jury on Monday next.

Says He Collected for Capt. Walsh.

Fox began his story by saying that he was sent to the East 126th Street Station about five years ago. Capt. Thomas W. Walsh was in command. He did patrol duty for several weeks, and then one day the Captain called a number of the patrolmen into his private office and told them that he wanted some men to do patrol duty in citizen's clothes, for the purpose of arresting disorderly women. The men were lined up, and all of them stood stiff and silent. Fox said he stepped out of the hard line of policemen and that nobody else followed him. He stood alone. The others were dismissed, and then Fox got his instructions. That was his first step into the confidence of his Captain. It was also the beginning of the time when he became a marked man in the precinct.

When Fox told of this he displayed pride like that a soldier might show who had been chosen among all his fellows for dangerous and important work. It helped Mr. Whitman to size up the man from whom he hopes to procure enough evidence to lead him to the trail that he believes will run straight to the much-talked-of "man higher up."

Then Fox told about his selection for the collection of protection money. He said that a few weeks after he had been in citizen's clothes he received a summons, and when he answered it he was told that he had been chosen to call upon keepers of Raines law hotels and certain saloons.

"I didn't know at first what was wanted of me," Fox said. "I was told that there were certain hotels in the precinct that maintained a fair show of outward order and decency but that were really disorderly places and were run for the accommodation of such persons as I had been arresting since I had been doing duty in citizen's clothes. There was quite a long talk before I understand just what I was expected to do. Finally I understood that I was to call upon the managers or owners of the places designated and receive certain sums of money, which I was to turn over to the man who had given me the instructions.

"A list of from fifteen to eighteen hotels and saloons was handed over, with amounts set opposite each one of them. Some of the hotels were to pay $100 a month and others only $50. All of the saloons were to pay $25 a month. The next day I started out and visited all of the places and got acquainted with the owners and managers of them. I told them who I was and who had sent me, and it was arranged that I should call at certain fixed times, when the money would be ready to hand to me."

Collected $1,500 a Month.

Fox wanted to stop here. He had mentioned the names of nearly all the hotels, but had not named a single person nor had he given a bit of information that would be of any value before a Grand Jury or before a court. Fox is a stupid man with all of the peculiarities of an experienced policeman. He was stolid, and sat with his heavy hands between his knees and his eyes upon the floor. Mr. Whitman waited. The minutes ticked away. At last Fox looked up and found Mr. Whitman watching him with cold contempt. Asked if that was all he had to tell, Fox replied that it was about all. Then he was told that his information was of no value, and if he depended upon it to save him from State prison he was foolish. After a bit Fox began talking again.

"It was agreed that I was to get 10 per cent. of all the money I collected," he said slowly. "At first it was about $1,400 or $1,500 a month, but after a year or two the saloons were taken off my list. I understood somebody else was looking after them, and that the money went downtown. But I don't know about this for sure. My collections fell to about $1,000 a month. This went on altogether for about thre years, and then I was transferred to the 152d Street Station. The man who had picked me out to do the collecting said he wanted me to continue with the work. He explained to me that he didn't want to break in a new man, and asked me if I was willing. I told him I was if I got 25 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. He told me that was impossible, and that he could get plenty of men to do it for the 10 per cent.

"I did the best I could to get more, and showed him that I would have to work on my days off and at odd times. But it wasn't any use. All I ever got was the 10 per cent.

"After I collected any money I would go to where the man was who gave me

SIELCKEN'S PARTNER LEAVES HIM $1,000,000

Trust Funds of $300,000 and $200,000 to G. W. Crossman's Son and Daughter.

HOUSEKEEPER GETS $25,000

His Faithful Business Employes Are Also Remembered—$100,000 Each to Sisters.

The will of George W. Crossman of the firm of Crossman & Sielcken, 90 Wall Street, coffee merchants, was filed for probate in the Surrogates' Court yesterday. Mr. Crossman died at the age of 68 at his residence, 214 West Seventy-ninth Street, leaving an estate of more than $2,000,000. In a codicil attached to the will Crossman made the unusual bequest of $1,000,000 to his partner, Herman Sielcken. This was in accordance with an agreement made with Sielcken on June 25, 1909.

"And in and by said agreement," the codicil reads, "the partners thereto agreed that they would execute mutual wills, the will of each of them giving to the other the sum of $1,000,000 in case the said firm Crossman & Sielcken should be in existence and engaged in business at the time of the death of the testator and in case its affairs should be settled and liquidated under the terms of the said agreement by the surviving partner."

It was explained that the business was to be liquidated within the space of three years, and the partner and the estate to divide the net profits, instead of 5 per cent. to be paid on all legacies from the date of death to the date of their receipt by the legatee. In a second codicil it was provided that a new agreement had been entered into on Jan. 31, 1912, by which the terms of the other agreement were no longer binding, but that it was Crossman's wish that the $1,000,000 legacy to his partner remain unchanged. His interest in the firm of W. H. Crossman & Brother is to be liquidated before Jan. 31 of the year following his death.

Crossman remembered his employes generously. "To testify my grateful appreciation of the faithful services they have rendered," he bequeathed $10,000 each to nine of them, $5,000 each to three others, and $2,500 to seven more. A qualifying clause stated that no one should receive this legacy unless still in Crossman's service at the time of the testator's death. Under this section nine of the legacies lapsed. The sum of $1,000 was to be given to each person who had been in his service for three consecutive years and are not mentioned in the will. Apparently no one benefited by this, as no additional names appear in the petition. His housekeeper, Caroline Stichler, is to receive $25,000.

His daughter, Georgia Crossman Mills, will receive $200,000. This sum is to be held in trust for her by the Columbia Trust Company. She may dispose of $50,000 of this sum in her will as she wishes, but the rest is to be equally divided among her heirs-at-law. To Herman S. Crossman, his son, is bequeathed $300,000, to be held in trust. He is to receive $50,000 of the principal when 25 years old, the same amounts at 30 and 35. He has the power of disposal of the principal by will. The sum of $100,000 each is given to his sisters, Jane C. Jackson and Harriet A. Hartmann.

If the estate is not large enough to meet the demands, the bequests, with the exception of those to the employes, are to be diminished pro rata, and if the opposite is the case the legacies are to be increased pro rata, with the same exception in the case of the employes. The will was dated Nov. 2, 1903, the first codicil June 27, 1909, the second codicil May 27, 1912, and the third May 31, 1912.

BRINGS BABE TO DEAD FATHER

Young Wife Came to Surprise Him and Is Dangerously Ill from Shock.

Mrs. Mildred Fredericks, a bride of a year, left the Far Rockaway Hospital yesterday afternoon carrying a bouncing 11-day-old girl baby in her arms and started to walk the quarter of a mile to her home at 50 Kane Avenue so as to surprise her husband, Emile, who was not expecting her home for a week. Her husband was a baker, who worked from 3 o'clock in the morning till 3 in the afternoon, and she planned to meet him after he quit work and before he had left for his daily visit to the hospital.

When she approached her cottage she noticed that the stoop was crowded with neighbors, and she thought that they must have gotten wind of her homecoming and were there to welcome her. But when she opened the front gate she saw that the women were weeping and that the gathering was anything but joyful. As gently as possible they broke the news to her. Her husband had not appeared at the shop that morning and when fellow-workmen had come to the house in the afternoon they had forced open the door and found him dead in bed, the house full of gas, and the gas stove turned on as if by accident.

When the neighbors had finished their story the young wife sat down on the steps, showing no sign of emotion. Repeated attempts to arouse her failed, and late in the afternoon she was taken back to the hospital, where it was said that her condition was serious.

MRS. BEACH BESIDE HUSBAND AT TRIAL

Sheriff Says Defendant's Counsel Blocked His Inquiry Into the Assault.

VICTIM'S CRIES DESCRIBED

Witness Says Voice in Quarrel Sounded Like Beach's—Wife to Testify for Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., Feb. 4.—With its case practically complete, the prosecution to-day surprised the crowd that packed the court room to attend the trial of Frederick O. Beach—a crowd that occupied every available foot of floor space—eager to hear all of the testimony which was obtained by the Atlanta detective, M. S. Baughn and the Prosecuting Attorney, Robert L. Gunter. The State's case will be rounded out to-morrow morning by the testimony of three more witnesses.

Mrs. Beach will take the stand to-morrow to testify that it was a negro, and not her husband, who attacked her.

The most dramatic moment of the day was just before adjournment at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, when Sheriff H. H. Howard, who last year was Chief of the Aiken police, was asked by the prosecutor if, when he examined Mr. and Mrs. Beach after the attack, Col. Henderson was not always there taking charge of things, and Howard replied promptly:

"Yes, after Col. Henderson was employed in the case by Mr. Beach he completely ruined everything, and I simply gave up trying to find out anything because I saw it was no use."

Col. Henderson was on his feet in a moment, the fire of anger in his eyes; and turning to Mr. Gunter he cried:

"That's impertinent and improper, sir!"

"No, it is not impertinent," replied the prosecutor. "It is the truth."

"You say," thundered Col. Henderson, "you say, sir, that I conducted the investigation to suit myself?"

"I did not say that," flashed back Mr. Gunter, "but if I had said it, I'd stick to it."

At 9:30 o'clock this morning, when Mr. and Mrs. Beach entered the court room, the crowd that had gathered made away for them, and all eyes were turned upon Mrs. Beach, who led the way, followed by her sister, Mrs. James D. Tailer, Miss Marion Hollins, Mr. Beach and his New York lawyer, Thomas S. Fuller. The crowd had been gathering since before 8 o'clock, but the only members of the cottage colony seen in the court room were those seated directly behind the Beaches, inside the railing. They were friends of the family—Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Hollins, Jr., of New York, and J. B. Lyons of Allegheny, Penn.

Frank Hitchcock attended the afternoon session.

Beaches in Good Spirits.

Mrs. Beach came in smiling, and Mr. Beach had a cordial greeting for those he knew in the crowd. Mrs. Beach was dressed in a brown coat suit of rough cloth and wore a brown toque. She unveiled her face and took her seat beside Mr. Beach, Miss Hollins occupying the chair next her. Mrs. Beach was calm, and during the day took notes on the evidence.

Mr. Beach appeared to be in good spirits. From time to time he spoke to his wife or Miss Hollins or some one behind him, indulging in pleasantries, as was indicated by the smiles of those to whom he addressed his remarks.

Mr. Beach was not arraigned, the reason for which omission was not made plain; but at 10:10 o'clock the Prosecutor called the case of "The State vs. Frederick O. Beach, charged with assault and battery with intent to kill," and read the indictment.

Twenty-two minutes were consumed in securing a jury. A canvass of its personnel showed it to be made up of seven farmers, three cotton mill operatives, and a country merchant, with A. E. McCarroll designated by Judge J. M. Spain as foreman. Not a citizen of the town was accepted.

The deposition of Miss Lallah Wyman, taken yesterday, was read. With her family, she lived last year directly across a narrow street from the Beach premises. On the night of Feb. 26, 1912, she was in her room on the second floor of the house when, about 9:30 o'clock, she heard a scream in the yard across the street. This was followed by a second scream, which seemed to come from further back in the yard. She got up, went to the window, and saw standing in the gate of the laundry inclosure a man, who started away, running in the opposite direction from the Beach house. She could not say whether he was a white man or a negro, nor of what color were the clothes he wore; but as another scream rent the night she called to him and then called her father. The third scream came, she said, from the yard of the Beach house, and about seven minutes after the first, and after the man had run away. Looking toward the Beach house, she saw a woman standing in the light of an upstairs door leading out upon a piazza with an outside staircase. Then she heard a door slam, after which the screaming became muffled. In a few seconds, while she still stood at the window, she heard some one rapping violently upon the Beach front door, and a man's voice cried excitedly:

"This is Beach; let me in!"

The voice, she said, sounded like the same she had heard in the yard of the laundry, but she could not distinguish what was said then.

Miss Wyman's testimony on this point was corroborated by her father, Dr. Hastings Wyman, Sr.; her brother, Dr. Marion Wyman, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marion Wyman, all of whom were in the house across the street and heard the man's voice loudly demanding admission to the house directly after the screaming from the inside indicated that Mrs. Beach had gone inside and that the door had been closed.

Dr. Hastings Wyman, Sr., testified that, after hearing this, he ran out of his house, followed by his son, toward the Beach home. Just in front of the house, he said, he heard Mr. Beach's voice, asking him to come in, and saying that his wife had been stabbed.

Dr. Wyman described the wound as a jagged cut in the right side of Mrs. Beach's neck, nearly three inches long and near the angle of the jaw. The point of entrance, he said, was evidently from the back, and the weapon penetrated inward and forward. The wound, he said, was made with a sharp instrument; "an ordinary pocket knife could have made it."

Mrs. Beach's clothing, he said, was very bloody. Mr. Beach was in a red smoking jacket, and he noticed that there was blood on his chin and on the right side of his face.

Mr. Beach's Behavior Natural.

In reply to a question, Dr. Wyman said he saw no resentment in the attitude of

MISTER A GOOD ENOUGH TITLE

J. B. Robertson Hasn't Used "Sir J. Beverly, Bart.," For Thirty-six Years.

The passenger list of the Atlantic Transport liner Minnehaha, in yesterday from London, displayed in big black type the name "Sir J. Beverly Robertson, Bart.," and when the reporters went up to Sir Beverly to find out how home rule, suffragettes, and old-age pensions were coming along in England, Sir Beverly expressed much surprise that he should be expected to know anything about such things.

"My dear young friends," said he, "one of my ancestors left me a title that I had almost forgotten that I owned. Why, I lived here in New York before you were born, and would not live anywhere else. It isn't my fault that they put me down as Sir Beverly on the passenger list instead of just plain 'Mister,' as I have been known now for some thirty-odd years of residence in New York. I am in business in Exchange Place, and will be glad to see you any time, but ask for Mr. Robertson, and not for Sir Beverly Robertson, Bart., if you want the boy at the door to know whom you are seeking."

OSCAR S. STRAUS BUYS FARM.

He'll Be a Neighbor of John D. Rockefeller in His Summer Home.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Oscar S. Straus has bought the Horton Farm on Bedford Road, between here and Pleasantville, and is to become a Summer neighbor of John D. Rockefeller. The farm consists of about eighty acres, and the purchase price is said to have been $55,000.

Mr. Straus denied to-night that he meant to build a fine home on the farm. He has spent several Summers here and become fond of the Hudson River country.

"I am going to build a very simple home," said Mr. Straus. "Nothing that you could call fine. I simply want a Summer home in this neighborhood."

The Horton farm is one of the oldest and choicest pieces of land in this section.

GIRL HE DIED FOR WAS SAFE.

She Had Escaped from Burning Factory Boy Entered in Search of Her.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 4.—A boy was burned to death and three firemen were injured during two fires here to-day. George Sammons, 16 years old, met his death during a blaze in the plant of the Empire Rubber Company. The lad escaped when the fire was discovered, but returned to the building in search of a girl friend who, he thought, had not been able to get out. His charred remains were found on the floor after the fire was put out. The loss on the plant is estimated at $5,000.

Walter Allen, William Mitchell, and Christopher Connell were the three firemen injured. They were crushed by being caught under a falling roof in a barn fire. The barn was owned by James Ross, a contractor. The firemen were taken to the McKinley Hospital. They will recover.

BLIND DEAF-MUTE INSANE.

Sister Says He Wants King George and Richard Croker Drowned.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser to-day named Harry D. Brown a commissioner to inquire, with a Sheriff's jury, into the sanity of Samuel Koffman of Mount Vernon, who has been an inmate of Bloomindale since Dec. 17 last. The petitioner is a sister, Mrs. Minnie Louise Salinger of Bronxville. She says in her affidavit that her brother, who is a deaf-mute and blind, has delusions, and that he wants Richard Croker, King George, and Queen Mary either killed or drowned.

Koffman has deposits in the Manhattan Savings Bank and the Greenwich Savings Bank and a life interest in the property at 223 Greenwich Street, New York City. Ephraim Koffmann of 572 West 187th Street, New York, and Michael A. Koffman of London, England, are brothers of Samuel. Two other brothers, Abraham and Louis of Walden, N. Y., are deaf, dumb, and blind.

S. H. EVERETT'S BODY FOUND.

Fall from 60-Foot Cliff, Coroner Says, Caused Death.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 4.—The body of S. Homer Everett, son of Sylvester T. Everett, who disappeared from the home of Van Purdy in Lakewood on Saturday night, was found in the ice at the foot of Webb Avenue, half a mile west of Andrews Avenue, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The body evidently had been washed to the spot where it was found. It was wedged in the ice close to the high bank. A heavy overcoat had been caught by the current and turned back over the body, partly hiding it. Three Lakewood men who had taken up the search independently found the body while a searching party of friends of young Everett was organizing. Everett's wife at first would not believe that the body was that of her husband, clinging vainly to the hope there might be some mistake. His parents, too, hoped against hope until they were finally told the identification was positive.

Coroner Byrnes decided late to-day that Everett had been killed by a fall over a sixty-foot cliff on the shore of the lake. His neck had been broken by the fall. Everett's father is largely interested in street railway companies.

22, BUT SHE NEVER KISSED.

Woman Won't Give That Greeting to Husband or Child.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4.—"I don't believe wives should kiss their husbands! I don't believe anybody ought to kiss."

That reply was made by Mrs. Theresa E. Deems, 22 years old, in court to-day, when she was asked by the Prosecuting Attorney if she did not wish to kiss her husband and make up.

Judge Ambler paroled George W. Deems, who had been arraigned on a charge of non-support, on condition that he give $3 a week toward the maintenance of his wife and 7-year-old child.

Mrs. Deems said afterward she never had been kissed, even by her parents, and that she would not kiss her child, whom she loved "more than her own life," because she did not believe in kissing.

SUBWAY ENEMIES GET INJUNCTION

VISIT TO UPPER COURT VAIN

McCall Won't Take Office Till To-morrow, but Writ Is Not Returnable Till Then.

CAN PASS CONTRACTS TO-DAY

Estimate Board May Also Be Enjoined to Prevent Last-Minute Willcox Victory.

After a day of legal manoeuvres the subway situation last night was in precisely the same position as it was in the morning. If ex-Justice McCall holds off a little longer from qualifying as Chairman of the Public Service Commission the operating contracts will be signed; if he does not a long delay is sure to ensue.

An injunction was served in the afternoon on the Commission forbidding it to execute or deliver, or cause to be executed or delivered, either the Interborough or the B. R. T. contracts. It was issued by Justice Peter A. Hendrick in a taxpayer's action brought by John J. Hopper, with Clarence J. Shearn as attorney.

It is returnable to-morrow morning in the County Court House and will come before Justice Vernon M. Davis, and to-morrow also, in all probability, ex-Justice McCall will take the oath of office and replace Mr. Willcox. It was evident at once that some step must be taken to offset this move on the part of the enemies of the injunction and the counsel of the Commmission went at once into consultation with the counsel for the traction companies.

Mr. Shearn expected and was ready for an application to Justice H. Hendrick to set the injunction aside on the ground of informality, but the commission thought to steal a march on him by going not to the Supreme Court but to the Appellate Division. Thus, it argued, a decision in its favor would be obtained that no further application to the upreme Court could override.

The commission argued the case and was defeated. The Appellate Division declined to intervene and the injunction of Justice Hendrick still stands. The commission is to meet at 11 o'clock this morning and must then decide what it can do. It can proceed to the adoption of the contracts and can send them over to the Board of Estimate for its approval without infringing the order of the Court, but all the time the work which ex-Jupstice McCall has pleaded as an excuse for not taking office immediately is being accomplished, and it is exceedingly doubtful whether the formalities can be fulfilled and the injunction dissolved before he finds himself obliged to qualify.

Commissioners up All Night.

The commission had made every preparation for expediting to the utmost degree the adoption of the contracts. Some of the commissioners and their assistants had been up the entire night at the Hotel Manhattan revising and going over the final proof sheets of the agreements. The B. R. T. contract had been received back from the printer in the morning and it was understood that the Interborough's agreement would also be in the final printed form by 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Commissioners had nothing but routine business in the morning, and certain hearings of no particular importance made them put off their regular Tuesday public meeting to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The only thing that seemed unusual about the offices was a visit from Clarence J. Shearn, who has been identified with the opposition to the dual subway plan, and was dispatched by William R. Hearst to Albany to impress on Gov. Sulzer the importance of nominating as Chairman of the commission a man who would refuse to sign the contracts. He called on Commissioner Maltbie and saw Travis H. Whitney, the Secretary, and soon after he had taken his departure the rumor that an injunction was in the air began to spread.

At 3 o'clock, when the Commissioners assembled for their meeting, they found a much larger attendance of spectators than usual. Newspaper reporters and officials filled nearly all the room, and they could identify everybody except two or three men who took seats at the back. The meeting was engaged with a number of routine items, three of which, however, were of considerable importance. The commission decided in face of the protests of Commissioners Maltbie and Cram to turn the new Lexington Avenue Subway into the present Subway at Forty-second Street close by the Grand Central Station.

Some discussion also arose over the order to lay out a line from the end of the Corona elevated through Flushing to Bayside, and it was also resolved to receive the application of the New York Consolidated Railway Company to make an agreement with the New York Municipal Railway Corporation to operate its lines. Then Commissioner Williams moved an adjournment to 4:30 o'clock "to consider such business as might be brought forward."

Willcox Gets the Injunction.

It was fully understood that this was to be the operating contracts, but as the meeting broke up, and when several of the Commissioners had left the room, one of the men sitting at the back of the room began to push his way to the front. In one hand he had a package of papers and in the other a thick manila envelope, such as legal papers are carried in. As he got within reach of the table he threw the package in front of the Chairman, who was still sitting there.

"An injunction!" somebody called out, and Chairman Willcox, with fingers trembling with nervousness, began to fumble with the documents.

At length he got them open, and Secretary Whitney, looking over his shoulder, ran his eye hastily down the typewritten lines.

"It only stays us from executing the contracts," he said.

"Well," said the Chairman, "we shall obey it anyhow."

Immediately the Chairman went upstairs to his office and began a series of conferences with his own lawyers and those of the traction companies. It so happened that Richard Reid Rogers, general attorney of the Interborough, was at the Public Service Commission to attend a hearing on the financial plans of his company, and Col. Timothy S. Williams of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Harry A. Bullock, his assistant, and George D. Yeomans, counsel of the Brooklyn company, were also on hand on the chance of something untoward turning up. Borough President McAneny was awaiting the course of events, and J. L. Quackenbush, general solicitor of the Interborough, was consulted over the telephone.

The lawyers retired to the legal department of the Public Service Commission to dissect the injunction papers in peace and quietness, and in a little while an air of confidence became manifest among the Commissioners. They seemed to have found a way out of their difficulty, and, although they maintained the strictest secrecy, it was seen that they thought they knew how to deal with the situation which had so suddenly developed. The injunction read:

New York Supreme Court,
County of New York.
John J. Hopper, plaintiff, against William R. Willcox, Milo R. Maltbie, John E. Eustis, George V. S. Williams, and J. Sergeant Cram, as members of and constituting the Public Service Commission for the First District; Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, defendants.

On reading the annexed complaint, verified Feb. 4, 1913, and the affidavit of John J. Hopper, verified the 4th day of February, 1913, and it appearing from the complaint that the plaintiff demands and is entitled to a judgment against the defendants, William R. Willcox, Milo R. Maltbie, John E. Eustis, George V. S. Williams, and J. Sergeant Cram, as members of and constituting the Public Service Commission for the First District, restraining the commission of an act, the commission of which during the pendency of the action would produce injury to the plaintiff; and it further appearing by affidavit that the defendants, William R. Willcox, Milo R. Maltbie, John E. Eustis, George V. S. Williams, and J. Sergeant Cram, as members of and constituting the Public Service Commission for the First District, during the pendency of the action, are about to do or procure or suffer to be done an act in violation of the plaintiff's rights respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual, and the plaintiff having given and undertaken pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, which has been approved;

Now, on motion of Clarence J. Shearn, attorney for the plaintiff, it is Enjoined from Executing Contracts.

Ordered, That the defendants, William R. Willcox, &c., members of and constituting, &c., and each of them, be and they are hereby enjoined from executing and delivering or causing to be executed and delivered either of the proposed contracts, Exhibits 1 and 2, annexed to the complaint, or any other contract or contracts with the defendants, Interborough Rapid Transit Company and New York Municipal Railway Corporation, or either of them, the terms of which embody in substance the provisions of said proposed contracts; and it is further Ordered, That the defendants show cause at Special Term of this court, Part I. thereof, to be held in the County Court House, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 6th day of February, 1913, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why this injunction should not be continued during the pendency of this action, and why the plaintiff should not have such other and further relief as may be just and proper in the premises.

Service of this order upon any of the defendants or upon the Secretary of the Public Service Commission for the First District on or before Feb. —, 1913, shall be deemed good and sufficient service thereof.

Dated Feb. 4, 1913.

SUPREME COURT OF NEW YORK,
PETER A. HENDRICK, Justice.

It was noted that the injunction was returnable at 10:30 A. M. to-morrow and that by a singular coincidence if ex-Justice McCall had still been on the bench it would have come up before him. As it was it was to be argued before Justice Davis. It was also noted that the date had originally been typewritten in as "Jan. —" and had afterward been altered in pencil to February, from which it was concluded that the papers had been drawn some time ago and had been held back for presentation to Justice Hendrick at a moment at which the commission would have the least possible opportunity for fighting it.

John J. Hopper, it was remembered, was one of those who brought an injunction suit against the subway bargain in the Brooklyn courts last Spring, and on that occasion also Mr. Shearn was his attorney. At that time it was argued that the arrangement by which the city and the company should go into practical partnership was unconstitutional and that certain other provisions were illegal. The matter was carried to the Court of Appeals, which decided on the constitutional questions in favor of the city, and in the meantime the points of doubtful legality had been completely legitimatized by the passage of the Wagner act. Mr. Hopper was the Independence League candidate for Governor at the election of 1910.

Accompanying the injunction order were copies of the first drafts of the contract, which were circulated only among the Commissioners. Thye were in typewritten form, and contained even the interlineations and corrections made by Leroy T. Harkness, counsel for the commission, in his process of revision. A great deal of surprise was expressed at the commission's offices that any one had been able to get possession of these.

Maltbie Disclaims Knowledge.

When Mr. Shearn called in the morning on Commissioner Maltbie he asked to be supplied with the contracts in their final form, but was unable to obtain them. Speaking of his call later, Commissioner Maltbie said, emphatically:

"I had nothing whatever to do with the bringing of this injunction suit. I did not know that it was to be brought except by a statement made to me by one of the reporters this morning that it was being instituted. I then refused to discuss it or to indicate in any way if the suit would lie or what would be its effect on the subway situation.

"About a week ago the suggestion was made to me that an affidavit from me might be used as a basis for a suit, and I stated that I could not make the affidavit suggested."

"Did Mr. Shearn make any suggestion to you about it this morning?" Commissioner Maltbie was asked.

"No," he replied, "Mr. Shearn called to see copies of the proposed contracts in their final form. I did not mention or discuss any injunction suit or legal proceedings."

At 4:30 o'clock, the hour to which the commission had adjourned, all the Commissioners, except Commissioner Cram, who had gone home, left their offices and proceded to the meeting room on the third floor of the Tribune Building. They took their seats round the table and prepared for business.

"I move we adjourn till 11 o'clock tomorrow morning," said Commissioner Williams, and all proceded back to their offices again.

It was suggested to Chairman Willcox that there was no reason why the commission should not meet at some later hour if it pleased and pass on the contracts, as a vote on them had not been forbidden by the injunction, but only the actual execution.

"I have been here five years," he replied, "and you all know me. I have never yet countenanced a snap vote on any subject. The vote on these contracts will be an open vote in an open meeting.

"I can well afford to wait. It is the people of New York who can and will give their verdict on this later."

Willcox to Respect Court Order.

Pressed as to the rights of the commission to vote on the contract even with the injunction hanging over them, the Chairman replied:

"It is not our intention to act in any way contrary to the spirit of the court's order."

Meanwhile Mr. Shearn was sitting in his office at 140 Nassau Street expecting from minute to minute a summons to the chamber of Justice Hendrick in the Immigrant Savings Bank Building to defend Mr. Hopper's injunction. He knew that it would be impossible for the Judge to refuse to hear an application to set the writ aside on the ground of defect or irregularity.

Justice Hendrick himself seemed to expect such a move, and when he left the bench retired to his chambers, leaving orders with his secretary to admit instantly any one who came to protest about the matter. But the counsel for the Public Service Commission and the railroad companies had decided on entirely different tactics, and were making preparations to go at once to the Superior Court.

They reckoned that if they got this injunction set aside by Justice Hendrick or some other Supreme Court Judge it would be easy for their opponents to renew their application in a slightly different form before some other Judge in Manhattan or Brooklyn. They reckoned that if they could obtain the ruling of the Appellate Division on the question, however, it would be out of the question for any similar application to be entertained by a Judge of the lower court.

At a few minutes to 6 o'clock almost the entire legal staff of the commission, consisting of George S. Coleman, Leroy T. Harkness, and O. C. Semple, and two or three assistants, accompanied by James L. Quackenbush of the Interborough, William H. Williams of the B. R. T., and Assistant Corporation Counsel Louis H. Hahlo, presented themselves before the Appellate Division, in which were sitting at the time Justices Ingraham, McLaughlin, Scott, Laughlin, and Clarke. They had to wait while the calendar was being finished, and then, as the court was about to adjourn, in response to the invitation of the clerk to any other persons having business with the Appellate Division to draw near, Mr. Coleman began his plea for the setting aside of the injunction.

He rested it upon Section 626 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which entitled the defendants to an action when an order had been made without notice to them to apply to the Appellate Division to have the order vacated or modified. He explained that the Commission had expected to approve the contracts yesterday if they were ready, but that the injunction prevented such action, and, judging by the statements in the public prints, that was the very last day on which Chairman Willcox would be in office.

Shearn Heard in the Senate.

He had worked for these contracts, Mr. Coleman explained, for the last five years and the transit committee of the Board of Estimate for the last three years. Moreover, when all the details of the dual system had been worked out an appeal had been made to the Legislature to provide by law for such dubious points as had arisen. This application was opposed bitterly before the Legislature, and the Senate Committee devoted an entire day to hearing arguments about the matter so that it could not be said that it had not been thoroughly thrashed out.

Then Mr. Coleman went on to rehearse the connection of Mr. Shearn and Mr. Hopper with the opposition to the subway. He pointed out that they were both speakers before the Senate Committee, and said that he could assert from his own knowledge, for he had been present, that they took up more time on that occasion than any one else. Then when the legislation became effective they litigated it as far as the Court of Appeals.

While there was a division of that court, Mr. Coleman went on, two of the Judges being in doubt as to whether the action of the court would preclude the city from extending aid to a private corporation, the decision was favorable to the commission. Twenty-six or twenty-seven of the points made in the present complaint were taken verbatim from that made to the Court of Appeals.

"Is there a single fact or allegation in the present complaint," broke in presiding Justice Ingraham, "which was not in the other one?"

"The allegations are general in character," replied Mr. Coleman, "and the only new specific points are contained in the affidavits attached to the complaint. These relate to financial matters only and are questions of fact and not of law. Instead of bad faith being charged against the commission it might be charged against these professional litigants."

The court satisfied itself that no injunction had been brought against the Board of Estimate, and then retired. In fifteen minutes word was sent out to Col. Wagstaff, the chief clerk. He announced that the court had decided that it would not interfere with the injunction of the lower court, and the papers were handed back to Mr. Coleman.

After the news was conveyed to Chairman Willcox that the Appellate Division would not intervene, he was asked what was the next move the commission would take.

"I am going to try to sleep for twelve hours," he replied. I was up nearly all last night and I need rest. There will be no further conferences before morning, and I cannot now say what the commission will do when the meeting is called at 11 o'clock.

The Chairman, however, expressed the belief that some way would yet be found by which the contracts could be signed before he left office. This would depend, it seemed last night, entirely upon the course followed by the Board of Estimate and ex-Justice McCall. Borough President McAneny also professed himself last night as not disturbed, but it is believed that however anxious the board may be to get the matter through, it will allow time for a public hearing and will certainly give President Mitchel plenty of opportunity to express the views of the minority. If the commission passes on the contracts this morning and sends them at once to the City Hall the board will probably meet to receive them and will then set a time, probably i nthe afternoon, for their consideration. It would not be surprising if another injunction were filed.

McCall Not Seeking Responsibility.

Meanwhile ex-Justice McCall did not seem at all pleased at the prospect of being forced to take the responsibility for action on the contracts. When he received the reporters in the afternoon he was seated at a desk piled high with letters and telegrams of congratulation on his appointment.

"When do you expect to take the oath of office?" he was asked.

"My commission has not yet arrived," he replied, "but the special messenger is on his way from Albany with it. It may be that he is a representative of the Secretary of State, and will be qualified to administer the oath. But I can assure you it will not be taken to-night."

"Will you take the oath to-morrow?" the new Chairman was next asked.

"Glory be!" he exclaimed, pointing to the accumulation of papers on his desk. "It isn't possible. Look at that desk."

"What about Thursday?"

"The first hope of daylight I can see is Thursday."

Ex-Justice McCall said that he had only received one letter referring to the contracts, and that was from a Brooklyn man named Moore. He could not remember whether he was for or against them.

He had talked to Chairman Willcox, he said, over the telephone after he had received in addition to a telegram of congratulation, this letter from him:

New York, Feb. 4, 1913.

My Dear Justice McCall: Supplementing my telegram to you I wish to congratulate you upon your appointment as my successor and to assure you that if at any time I can be of service to you, I wish you would command me.

If agreeable to you, I would like to have my fellow-Commissioners and the heads of departments on hand to greet you when you come to take your place here, and if you will let me know somewhat in advance, I shall be glad to arrange the feature.

With kind regards, I am
W. R. WILLCOX.

Ex-Justice McCall asked Chairman Willcox if he could manage to come over and have a chat with him, but the Chairman replied that that was absolutely impossible.

"The trouble about Chairman Willcox," remarked his successor, "is that he is trying to do too much work. There is no reason why he should try to save me trouble by clearing up all sorts of small things."

McAneny Congratulates McCall.

Borough President McAneny sent this letter of congratulation yesterday to the new head of the Public Service Commission:

Feb. 4, 1912.

Dear Judge McCall: I congratulate you very heartily upon your appointment to the Public Service Commission. I need not assure you that when you take up your new duties you will have the continued and very cordial co-operation of the Board of Estimate's Committee on Pending Transit Proposals, of which I am Chairman. If I can be of any aid to you personally when you take up the study of the contracts, or in any other way, I hope that you will feel free to command me at any time.

With the best wishes for your success, I am, as always, Faithfully yours,
GEORGE McANENY,
President, Borough of Manhattan.
Hon. Edward E. McCall,
Judges' Chambers, Supreme Court,
51 Chambers Street,
New York City.

Ex-Justice McCall has himself been fairly busy in the last few days. More than 1,750 orders and decisions have been filed by him. This has been made possible by the fact that nearly all of them follow a test case which he has just dismissed dealing with the wages of city employes under the prevailing rate of wages law.

SULZER FOR DELAY NOW.

With New Chairman Named, Governor's Attitude Shows Big Change.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—With the Chairmanship of the Public Service Commission for the First District settled, the attitude of Gov. Sulzer toward the Subway problem in New York City has undergone a remarkable change. While Mr. Willcox and his associates on the commission and the Board of Estimate were laboring night and day to get the dual subway contracts into final form, the Governor again and again made it plain that he was chafing under the incidental and necessary delay, and that in his opinion the people of the City of New York had every reason to feel exasperated at the delay, too.

But to-day Gov. Sulzer took a different tack altogether. When asked if the change in the commission would not mean a further delay in the signing of the contracts, the Governor replied:

"There can be no delay when the work is going on as fast as possible. There is no particular hurry. These contracts do not take effect for three years and a half. Construction is going on all the time in the meanwhile."

There has been much speculation at the Capitol whether ex-Justice McCall was Gov. Sulzer's candidate or Tammany Leader Murphy's. The haste with which the confirmation of the jurist was railroaded through the Senate at a late hour last night has lent color to the latter version. Tammany's spokesmen in the Senate never were as laudatory as they were in this instance, except when a Tammany pet has been under discussion. In his statement accompanying the announcement of the appointment Gov. Sulzer said that Tammany Leader Murphy had made no suggestion directly or indirectly as to who should succeed Mr. Willcox. Only a few hours before he made his bargain with ex-Justice McCall Gov. Sulzer told a friend that Mr. Murphy had submitted a list with five names on it, that the first name on the list, that of a Tammany man drawing $12,000 a year under the Gaynor Administration was Mr. Murphy's real choice, that this man would not be appointed and that the Governor felt strongly tempted to make Mr. Murphy's list public. This apparent conflict has not been explained by anything the Governor said to-day.

When asked whether ex-Justice McCall was his own individual selection or Mr. Murphy's, the Governor said:

"You can say that Mr. Murphy had no more to do with it than the man in the moon. It was a Sulzer appointment, nothing more."

When asked if he had taken into consideration ex-Justice McCall's alleged connection with the "Yellow Dog Fund," and certain check transactions with the late Andy Hamilton, chief lobbyist for the New York Life Insurance Company, of which ex-Justice McCall's brother was President, and with William H. Buckley of this city, who took odd lobbying jobs for the insurance companies and fled the country when ex-State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss started in to lay bare his activities at the Capitol, Gov. Sulzer asserted that all these things referred to his brother, now dead, and that the jurist should not be held responsible for what his brother had done.

Gov. Sulzer also said that he had received about 1,200 telegrams praising the appointment of ex-Justice McCall, and not one criticized it. He continued:

"I am content with what the newspapers say to-day regarding the appointments I sent to the Senate last night, and I can say nothing further concerning the appointments other than what I said in the statement made last night."

The Governor was asked if ex-Justice McCall would continue the Subway proceedings in secret.

"I appealed to the Judge to resign and accept the Public Service Commissionership in Greater New York," the Governor said. "My appeal was based on patriotic motives. However, knowing Judge McCall as I do, I believe everything regarding the Subway contracts will be open and above board and that the people will know what is going on."

When asked what attitude the new Commissioner would take in relation to the contracts the Governor replied:

"In my judgment he is so fair, just, and impartial that he will determine the equities of the matter in a judicial way for the general welfare."

LEXINGTON AVE. CONNECTION.

Subways to be Linked at 42d Street, Service Board Decides.

The connection between the new Lexington Avenue Subway and the present Subway will be made at Forty-second Street. The tentative plans of the Public Service Commission provide for a station stretching diagonally from Lexington Avenue about Forty-third Street under the site of the old Children's Hospital to Fifty-first Street under the Grand Union Hotel.

When the matter came up yesterday at the meeting of the Commission, Commissioner Maltbie objected on the ground that to run beneath private property would cost from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000, and that, if it were ever proposed to recapture the Lexington Avenue Line, this station would be of absolutely no value to the city. He suggested the alternative plan of a station in Lexington Avenue, by which just as good a connection could be obtained with the Grand Central Station.

Chairman Willcox replied that the cost would be only from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 on account of the private property, and the connection was approved by a vote of three to two.

DON'T FORGET THEM—MAYOR.

Meaning Men Who Got the Injunction and the Justice Who Granted It.

Mayor Gaynor, speaking last night at the sixteenth annual dinner of the South Brooklyn Board of Trade, paid his respects to those who are behind the injunction granted in the subway matter, and said he hoped the people would long remember the injunction and the Justice who granted it.

"I saw in a newspaper as I left the office this evening a headline, 'Injunction Stops Secret Subway Deal.' The proprietor, or rather the proprietors, for I understand there are two of them now, are not prone to tell the truth, to say the least. They have amassed a great fortune by lying. They have addressed themselves to the underworld, and can't tell the truth. They have an inheritance of lying. I saw another heading, 'Injunction Halts Subway Steal.' This scoundrel could not tell the truth if he wanted to."

The Mayor went on to say that there had been no secret deal, for the matter had been talked over for two years. He had studied the question and had looked into the matter of a tri-borough system. He came to the conclusion that it was not the best. He was in favor of a system that gave a ride all over the city for one fare.

"The city is not giving anything away," he continued. "The operating companies are selling their own bonds and the city is going to sell its bonds. The contracts were ready to be signed to-night."

Other speakers were Timothy L. Woodruff, District Attorney James C. Cropsey of Brooklyn, and the Rev. J. J. Flood, pastor of St. Saviour Church on Brooklyn Heights.

WILSON WILL TELL NOTHING OF CABINET

And Allows No Guesses Through Elimination of This Man or That Man from Contest.

HE HEARS FROM COL. HOUSE

The Colonel, His Friend, Is Down in Miami, Where Bryan Is—Honors in Washington for Tumulty.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 4.—Gov. Wilson made it plain over and over again in his conversation with the newspaper reporters to-day that the plaintive wails coming out of Washington over his refusal to name his Cabinet or announce his policies will have no effect on him. This time he refused to answer any questions that even indirectly hinted at his Cabinet selections, and he was equally reserved on details of his legislative programme. The only thing he was willing to discuss was New Jersey politics, and on that subject he talked to the extent of saying that he was in favor of second-choice voting at primaries.

The first question asked of the Governor was whether he was or was not considering the appointment of Henry Morgenthau to the Cabinet. He replied that to answer such questions would simply be to construct the Cabinet by a process of elimination. Asked if A. Mitchell Palmer was to be a member of his official family, he answered that he would prefer to say nothing about it. To a question about Col. Goethals he replied that if he were to answer such questions he would find himself sooner or later involved in "a list of eligibles." But he added, with a smile, that he was willing to admit that Goethals's name had not been "suggested" to him for any office. He laid an emphasis on the word "suggested" that conveyed the implication that he did not have to have that name suggested, because he had thought of it first.

In view of the fact that the Far Western States have eliminated all candidates for Secretary of the Interior except five, the Governor was asked whether that list had been whittled down to a smaller number or whether the original five were still under consideration. He replied that he could not follow that line of discussion, because by that process his questioners could easily make up the whole Cabinet.

Government guarantee of bank deposits, which he is reported as favoring, was brought to his attention, and he said that he had not discussed the question with Mr. Glass of the Banking and Currency Committee when that Congressman was here. Asked the direct question if he favored the guarantee plan, he said that he would rather not discuss it.

The only question of the day which drew forth a positive answer was one in which the Governor was asked if he had heard from Col. E. M. House since that gentleman left New York for Miami, Fla. He said he had received a note from House announcing his arrival. House is the intimate personal friend of Gov. Wilson and William J. Bryan. Bryan is staying at Miami, and House went there after a conference with the Governor.

Gov. Wilson took occasion to express his regret at the stories printed in the newspapers this morning, in which it was said that he used strong language about the attempt of newspapers and public men to make him announce his Cabinet and his legislative policies before he was ready. He said that they put him in an unfair light before the public. He was not, he said, a man ordinarily forgetful of the proprieties of speech, and the articles made him so appear.

William McAdoo, who is more likely than anybody else—except William J. Bryan and William J. McCoombs—to receive an appointment in the next Cabinet, has gone to visit Panama.

Mr. McAdoo has generally been slated for the Treasury Department. His visit to Panama has led to some speculation connecting his name with the War Department.

Gov. Wilson wants to see the seven anti-trust bills passed by the New Jersey Legislature before he goes to Washington to assume the Presidency. In line with this wish, he indicated to Senate leaders to-day his disapproval of the postponement until next Monday of the public hearings at which attorneys for the corporations have been expressing their views. The hearings will be continued to-morrow, and it is expected that they will be concluded before the end of the week.

Joseph P. Tumulty, who is to be secretary to President Wilson, will go to Washington on Friday to attend a reception given in his honor by the National Press Club. He probably will call at the White House to pay his respects to Mr. Taft.

JERSEY ADOPTS INCOME TAX.

Senate Passes Constitutional Amendment, One Democrat Opposed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 4.—The Democratic majority in the Senate, aided by Mr. ichols of Cumberland, Republican, to-day ratified the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution. The vote was 12 to 9, President Fielder of Hudson County, a Democrat, being among those to oppose the passage of the resolution.

WOULDN'T PUNISH DOWNS.

Correct Way to Ship a Turtle Is Still a Mystery.

The correct way to ship a turtle is still a mystery, owing to the fact that the jury in the case of Capt. Cleveland Downs of the Ward liner Saratoga, on trial in General Sessions for cruelty to animals, failed to agree yesterday after being out for an hour and a half.

It was charged that Capt. Downs was cruel to the fifty-six turtles he carried on the Saratoga in that he nailed their flippers down to the deck. After the jurors had announced that it was impossible for them to agree, Judge Swann asked them what their opinon was. All agreed that the method of shipping turtles caused the animal pain, but said that inasmuch as custom directed that nailing them down was the best way, they did not want to make Capt. Downs suffer for something which every one else did.

"I agree with you, gentlemen," said Judge Swann. "I myself didn't want to see any harm come to the old Captain, but don't you think there is another way to ship turtles?"

The jurors then began to argue among themselves, and one juror said he didn't believe in shipping in burlap, as the turtle would struggle to realese his flippers, while another said that he could not see any reason why a turtle couldn't be shipped that way. Another held that nailing was the only way, and still others said that racks and tanks were out of the question. It also appeared that the question as to the right of the law to call a turtle an animal had arisen, some holding it was a reptile. Anyway, the jury stood seven to five for acquittal.

AMHERST, Mass., Feb. 4.—The Faculty of Amherst College has selected District Attorney Charles S. Whitman of New York as the Henry Ward Beecher lecturer.

Mr. Beach toward his wife; that in telling of what had happened, she made no charge against her husband.

"His treatment of her was what might have been expected of any man under the circumstances," he said.

Dr. Wyman heard the screams described by his sister. Those coming from the Beach house were continuous and sounded muffled after the door was heard to slam. After corroborating his sister's and his father's testimony by saying that, directly after the door slammed, he heard a loud banging on the front door of the Beach house, and a man's voice crying: "This is Beach; let me in," he was asked by the prosecutor:

"Would a man have time in the length of time between the time you heard the screaming and the time you heard the voice demanding admission to run upstairs for his pistol, run down again, out of the house and into the street in search of the assailant?"

The defense objected and was sustained.

"Did you ask Mr. Beach why he was outside knocking on the door?"

"I did not ask him until the next day. He said he picked up his wife and carried her indoors, then ran upstairs, got his pistol, came down again, and went out to chase the negro."

Dr. Wyman said, in answer to a question put by Col. Henderson, that the wound could not have been made by a razor; that it was probably made by a knife.

"Was Mrs. Beach anxious to know if she was going to die?"

"Yes, sir. She said something about holy water being thrown on her."

"The next morning you asked her something about those earrings?"

"She said the intrinsic value was not so great, but that she valued them because they were handed down by her grandmother."

In rebuttal Mr. Gunter asked Dr. Wyman if he saw any blood on Mr. Beach's coat.

He answered that he did not, but that there was blood on his waistcoat.

"Now, Doctor," said Mr. Gunter, "the razor is an instrument peculiar to the negro, isn't it?"

"So my experience in sewing up wounds made by negroes teaches me," was the answer.

The prosecution scored a point when it established, through Dr. Wyman, the fact that the Beach house was not in a secluded spot, but that at the hour Mrs. Beach was attacked there were usually several passers-by, as Willcox's Hotel was just across the bridge at the rear of the Beach premises.

Mrs. Marion Wyman, the first witness to go on the stand at the afternoon session, could not be shaken in her testimony, which not only corroborated but strengthened that of the other members of her family. It laid stress upon the point that, as the screaming that came from the Beach yard became subdued and muffled when the person in distress went inside the house, "almost instantly afterward" some one fell against the closed door and banged loudly upon it, calling out: "This is Beach; let me in."

Pearl Hampton, the negro servant of the Beaches, stoutly denied knowledge of the identity of the person who attacked her, who was presumably Mrs. Beach's assailant. The Hampton woman was in the employ of Mrs. J. B. Lyon, who lived next door to the Beaches, and as she left the Lyon house that night and was passing through the Beach laundry yard, she said she saw a man standing beside a hedge, but could not tell whether he was a white man or a negro, although he approached her, telling her, in answer to her question, that he was "no one to harm you." When she started away he struck her across the back of the neck. The man, she said, had on a gray hat, but she could not tell whether or not he wore an overcoat.

She said she heard no other screaming that night, and did not know until the next morning that Mrs. Beach had been assaulted.

The testimony of Katie O'Neill, the Lyon's cook, following that of Pearl Hampton, rather shook the foundation of the negro woman's story. Pearl had been gone from the house, she said, ten or fifteen minutes before she was heard to scream, and came back crying, her hat in her hand and her hair hanging down, and hysterical. The Hampton woman, she said, did not have her hat and coat when she left the Lyon house. She was in the habit of leaving these in the laundry. She had them when she returned.

The State's strongest witness was Sheriff H. H. Howard, the last witness examined. He was chief of police last year. Receiving a telephone message he went to the Beach house the night Mrs. Beach was assaulted. There were many people there, he said, but nobody could tell him anything except that a negro had cut Mrs. Beach's throat.

"I started into the house," he said, "but some one headed me off."

"You were forbidden to enter?" asked Mr. Gunter.

"We object!" cried Col. Henderson, excitedly. The objection was sustained.

"Of course, as an officer I could have gone in," Howard continued, "but I didn't get in to see Mrs. Beach that night, although I made an effort. I didn't see Mr. Beach. I got a lantern and made an investigation of the premises, but I found no bloodstains at the front gate, where I was told later that the attack had been made on Mrs. Beach. Forty or fifty feet around to the side of the house I found a pool of blood, and the ground torn up. There it was I found the earrings and the fence picket."

Blood Stained Exhibits.

The picket, with the stains of blood still on it, was exhibited to the jury.

Howard found the print of a bloody hand on the post at the corner of the front piazza and saw distinctly the footprints of both a man and a woman on the ground where the struggle had taken place.

When he talked with Mr. Beach about the affair, he said, Mr. Beach told him that he had run out of the house when Mrs. Beach screamed that night and had been just in time to see the negro strike his wife down.

"He said that as the negro ran out of the front gate he helped his wife into the house, ran upstairs, got his pistol, came down, and ran out, going fifteen or twenty feet down Newberry Street, then down Hood's Lane a piece, looking for the negro, and that it was after that when he rapped on the door and said, 'This is Beach; let me in.'"

FALSE TALE OF PLOT TO INJURE SENATORS

West Virginia Legislator Admits He Was Not Bribed to Vote for Chilton and Watson.

SENATE MAY DROP INQUIRY

Chilton Has Made Himself Popular as Democratic Whip—Watson Leads in West Virginia Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Senators William E Chilton and Clarence W. Watson of West Virginia—both Democrats—filed to-day with the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which has been considering charges of fraud in their election in 1911, a letter from L. J. Shock, a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates—who originated the charges—in which Shock admits that he exhibited $1,000 as an alleged bribe from the Watson-Chilton faction, in an effort to injure them and advance the candidacy of John T. McGraw. Shock's previous statements had formed an important part of charges sent to the Senate by William E. Glasscock, the Progressive Governor of West Virginia, and others.

The letter from Shock is incorporated in a long statement prepared by the two Senators for the committee. They set forth that just before the Senatorial election began in the Winter of 1911, State Senator George W. Bland stated to the joint session of the Legislature that Shock had said that a man named Hamrick had given him $1,000 and promised $1,500 additional for a vote for Mr. Chilton and Mr. Watson. Later, when Shock was called upon to produce the money as a basis for an investigation, he said it had been taken from him by two unknown men. The Senators, in their statement to-day, argued that the money had been advanced to start a scandal and had then been recalled by the author of the plot.

Shock's letter confessing his part in the plot reads:

Burnsville, West Va., Jan. 8, 1913.
Hon. C. W. Watson, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: The time has come when you should know the truth about the so-called Shock statement. I never have signed any statement that was read before the Legislature, and I never have been under oath. I have let the talking go on because I hated to be put in a wrong light. The truth is that I set up the whole business and nobody tried to buy my vote and would not swear that they did. I wanted to nominate McGraw, and I thought if I got this thousand dollars and made this play it would hurt you and Chilton. The trick failed to work, and now you have the truth. I do not know you, and am sending this to you because I want justice to be done, as I know your election and Chilton's was honest and fair, and it is wrong to have this report going around.

Very truly yours, L. J. SHOCK.

The statement of the two Senators accuses Gov. Glasscock and his associates of garbling a speech by Delegate Nelson C. Hubbard, in which the allegation of corruption was first publicly made, and the statement supplies alleged omissions from that speech, in which Mr. Hubbard admitted having no evidence in support of his charges. The Senators also quoted the statistics of the Legislature at the time to show that the investigation asked for there was not suppressed by their friends. The resolution of inquiry actually passed the House of Delegates and was defeated in the Senate, which was equally divided between Republicans and Democrats, only after Shock's statements had been shown to be obviously contradictory.

The charge that the Senators were elected by Standard Oil and Wall Street interests is sweepingly denied in the statement. Senator Bland, who led in the fight against them, they say, was and is attorney for the Hope Natural Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil. Mr. McGraw, who opposed Mr. Chilton, is the owner, they say, of the West Virginia Midland Railroad, a connection of the Baltimore & Ohio, while Mr. Watson's opponent was and is general counsel for the Norfolk & Western Railroad, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

There is some difference of opinion in the Committee on Privileges and Elections as to the advisability of an investigation. The West Virginia Senators in their statement do not ask for an investigation, explaining that the charges are too flimsy to warrant such a request in the closing hours of the session. The general impression is that the committee will let the whole affair blow over. Mr. Watson will retire from the Senate on March 4. Mr. Chilton is extremely popular on both sides of the chamber. As whip for the Democratic side he has an intimate acquaintance with a large number of Senators.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 4.—The House and Senate of the West Virginia Legislature took separate ballots to-day on a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Clarence W. Watson, Democrat, incumbent. Fifteen Republicans and three Democrats received votes.

Senator Watson got forty-five of the total of forty-eight Democratic votes, while the total sixty-eight Republican votes were widely scattered, the three leading candidates being Davis Elkins, with 16 votes, Isaac T. Mann, 15, and William Seymour Edwards, 12. Fifty-nine votes are necessary to a choice.

Bauer & Co.

Do you realize the importance of real mouth and throat hygiene?

Enrico Caruso, The world's greatest tenor, writes: "I have found Formamint Tablets very pleasant to the taste and beneficial to the throat."

Mme. Adelina Patti, The Queen of Song, writes: "I have taken Formamint Tablets for some time past and have much pleasure in saying that I find them very beneficial for the throat."

From The Lancet. "The sole object of a medicinal lozenge is to keep part of the mouth or throat one desires to treat bathed for a time in a drug dissolved in the saliva. I know of only one medicated lozenge — FORMAMINT—which meets this requirement."

Leo Slezak, The world-famous tenor, writes: "I find Formamint Tablets simply superb and I recommend them to my friends."

IF a physician told you cleanliness of the mouth and throat is even more important than bodily cleanliness—he would also explain that he means antiseptic cleanliness as opposed to merely superficial cleanliness.

Through the mouth and throat infectious germs principally enter the body. And it is here you must destroy them—else you lay yourself open to the risk of "sore throat," La Grippe, Tonsillitis and even more serious infection.

Gargles and mouth washes—theoretically good—fail in practice. They do not protect—they do not disinfect. You cannot use them strong enough or often enough to accomplish results.

But there is a real—a scientific way to both prevent and overcome throat infection, and that effective way is

Wulfing's Formamint
THE GERM-KILLING THROAT TABLET

Prepared in a pleasant tasting tablet, it overcomes every drawback of gargles and mouth washes. You simply suck it like candy. It releases its powerful yet harmless germicide, which mixes with the saliva and is carried around the mouth—into the throat, where gargles cannot go—reaching the germs that are hidden in the deep folds—destroying them—constantly, soothingly bathing the membranes and paving the way for quick recovery.

Formamint is a luxurious relief and remedy. Convenience itself—take it anywhere—any time.

$30,000,000 LOSS IN MEN'S SUIT STRIKE

PEACE STILL AT A DISTANCE

Many Washable Suit Shops Resume—Boys' Clothing Proposal Rejected—Cutters Vote To-day.

More than one-tenth of the annual output of men's and youths' ready-made clothing, amounting to $20,000,000, it is estimated, has been lost to this city as the result of the strike that has been waged by the United Garment Workers of America since Dec. 30. The loss in wages to the workmen is between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. This does not include the losses in the other garment strikes.

From all indications the general strike of the men garment workers will be continued for at least another week. An absolute rejection yesterday on the part of 12,000 employes in the boys' clothing industry of a proposal for a 10 per cent. increase in wages supports this belief. The proposal had been made by the Associated Boys' Clothing Manufacturers, one of the trade associations allied with the New York Clothing Trade Association. After the rejection was formally announced it was said that the manufacturers would henceforth refuse to deal further with the union, either directly or indirectly.

Louis Dorfman, attorney for the Boys' Washable Suit Manufacturers, said that forty of the seventy manufacturers had opened their shops yesterday for a resumption of business. He asserted that no strikebreakers were being employed and that many union members had applied for work. He said that the manufacturers had now lost so great a part of the season's business that any dickering with the union was out of the question.

"The unwarranted delay of the union in acting on the various proposals that have been made by different groups of manufacturers," said one manufacturer, "has done the union a great deal of harm. Business has stagnated under the delay and even the kindly disposed manufacturers are losing their patience. Many of the manufacturers are writing letters to their employes and are succeeding in getting them back despite the union."

The proposal made by the United Manufacturers' Association more than a week ago, including provision for a fifty-two-hour week and an increase in wages from 5 to 10 per cent, will be voted on by the cutters to-day in Beethoven Hall in Fifth Street. Much doubt was expressed yesterday as to whether the tailors and operators would ever vote on the proposal. The union officials said, however, that the vote would be taken at some time in the future.

Settlements in the kimona and wrapper and the white goods strikes, it was said, were pending. An agreement with the kimona and wrapper manufacturers would have been signed yesterday had it not been for a tangle that was discovered at the last minute. It is understood that the basis of agreement will be a flat 10 per cent. increase in wages.

BOMBARDMENT AGAIN FIRES ADRIANOPLE

Forty Big New Servian Guns Being Used—Besieged Are Without Fuel.

A FIGHT NEAR GALLIPOLI

Bulgarian Victory There Might Enable the Greek Fleet to Pass Through the Dardanelles.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 5.—A telegram from Belgrade to The Daily Mail, dated yesterday, says:

"Telegrams just received from Demotika, some twenty miles south of Adrianople, state that the bombardment of the besieged city continued to-day, and that the Turkish response was weak.

"Forty new Servian seven-inch guns are now being used against the city. Their shells are falling in the town, part of which is again in flames.

"The outposts of the besieged and the advanced posts of the besiegers are in some places only 200 yards apart.

"Refugees from the town report that the besieged still have fair quantities of breadstuffs, but no fuel. Dysentery is gaining ground, and there is a lack of medical supplies."

The Daily Chronicle's Constantinople correspondent wires:

"The diplomatic situation and the whole position with regard to the reopening of hostilities are very obscure. No one seems able to dissipate the uncertainty which prevails. Even the statement which Mahmud Shefket, the Grand Vizier, made to me during an interview which I had with him this (Tuesday) morning shows the disposition of the Government and military circles to adopt a Micawberlike attitude.

"'The bombardment of Adrianople,' Shefket declared, 'began last evening at 7:48. Since I assumed office I had done everything possible to avoid the reopening of hostilities. The responsibility for that lamentable event must rest entirely with the allies. So far as Tchatalja is concerned, no gun has yet been fired by either side across the swamps which separate the two armies. We are determined to wait and see what the enemy is going to do.'

Turkey's Treasury Empty.

"Djavid Bey reached Constantinople yesterday from Constanza. He had interviews with many prominent Turkish rentiers with a view to procuring an internal loan, but without great success. The Treasury is utterly empty. The December salaries have not yet been paid, though they are promised daily. The popular subscription, which has been started, has only raised an insignificant sum.

"A high military authority told me to-day that Adrianople was still in a position to hold out for weeks, and that the commander there, Shukri Pasha, had informed the Government by wireless that the town was in no danger of having to surrender. Shukri has told the Government to make its military plans without worrying about Adrianople, the garrison being still in a position to make short work of attacks upon it."

The correspondent adds that he has been informed that war correspondents may later on receive every facility for witnessing the operations.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 4.—The garrison of Adrianople easily repulsed the attacks last night by the Bulgarians on the north and east fronts of the fortress, according to an official report issued here.

It is supposed that the Bulgarians denounced the armistice less on account of the failure of the negotiations than because they expected that Adrianople would be obliged to surrender within a few days, and an armistice still in operation might have embarrassed their liberty of action.

According to the best information here the fortress will be able to resist for a long time.

The Bulgarians, according to reports received to-night, are retiring from the burning village of Tchatalja, especially on the left wing. This is regarded as a strategical movement, possibly with the idea of drawing the Turks into the offensive.

An encounter between Bulgarian and Turkish troops took place at Malatepe, near Gallipoli, to-day.

Turks Now Hopeful.

Much is expected among competent observers of the new blood which is now at the head of both the military and civil Turkish administrations, burning to avenge the earlier defeats. The enterprise and daring of men like Enver Bey, now for the first time having a chance, may, it is believed, surprise the allies.

The new Grand Vizier, Mahmud Shefket Pasha, is already showing the organizing qualities which won him renown, and gives many hours a day to superintending in person the military arrangements.

SOFIA, Feb. 4.—Some quarters of Adrianople are in flames as a result of the bombardment yesterday by the Bulgarians and Servians, which was resumed with even more intensity this morning, according to unofficial advices received here from the front.

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 5.—The Turks remain on the defensive at Tchatalja and Adrianople. The Adrianople fortress replies only feebly to the Bulgarian bombardment, and apparently no attempt has been made in the way of a sortie.

A full division of Bulgarian infantry advanced to the attack of Adrianople yesterday under cover of a fierce bombardment, according to a news agency dispatch from Sofia. The result of the assault is not yet known.

A terrific bombardment of Adrianople was begun on Monday evening by the Bulgarians and Servians surrounding the city to the number of over 100,000. It is believed that not even the residential portoin of the city was spared.

Shukri Pasha's Defiance.

Shukri Pasha, the Turkish commander, who is defending Adrianople, is one of the most determined officers of the Ottoman Army. He has declared that he will not surrender the fortress until the last of his soldiers has been killed, and his record thus far has proved him to be a man of his word.

The Turkish newspaper Tanin asserts that Adrianople has sufficient provisions for four months, and other Turkish reports are that the fortress certainly will be able to hold out for several weeks.

The Bulgarians are said to have no fewer than 550,000 men in the Province of Thrace, with 45,000 Servian soldiers and perhaps a few divisions of Greeks assisting them. The greater part of this force, however, is compelled to remain in front of the line of fortifications at Tchatalja and at Gallipoli in order to hold the Turkish armies concentrated at those places.

The great drawback to the success of the Turks is the political quarrels among the Ottoman officers, which must tend to undermine the efficiency of the army.

Official quarters in Constantinople, however, breathe a spirit of great confidence in the new régime, and it is declared that the condition of the country and the wintry weather preclude serious operations along the Tchatalja lines for the present.

Scutari, where the Montenegrins besieging the fortress have the assistance of Servian artillery, is reported through the correspondent of a Dutch newspaper, to have been occupied by the Montenegrin troops, but there is no confirmation of this report from any other source.

British and German warships passed through the Dardanelles on Monday, for the protection of the foreign residents of Constantinople, and a fleet of warships belonging to other powers is anchored at the entrance to the Dardanelles, ready for any emergency.

CONVICT THE HEAD OF DYNAMITE GANG

A Third Member Offers to Testify Against the Second, Who Is Now on Trial.

ACCUSED OF BRONX THEFTS

Charged That the Man Found Guilty Was the Leader of Six Safe Blowers.

The conviction of Harry Roos of 1,239 Bryant Avenue, the Bronx, before Justice Goff yesterday opens the way for the District Attorney to prosecute six men who have recently been operating in the Bronx and stealing large sums of money in nightly raids in which dynamite has been freely used.

Roos was convicted of burglary in the third degree after the jury had been out five minutes. The charge was that on Dec. 27 he broke into the furniture store of Titlebaum & Co. at 440 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, and after dynamiting the safe stole $775 and two gold medals valued at $225.

Assistant District Attorney Charles Nott, Jr., brought forward witnesses who testified that the store had been entered from the rear and that the door of the safe had been blown across the room by the explosion. Detective Eugene Meyer, who arrested Roos, testified that at the time he placed the defendant under arrest he was carrying a suit case which contained six sticks of dynamite, fifty percussion caps and twenty electric fuses such as are used in blasting. The two medals were discovered in Roos's pocket, while the suit case contained clothing identified as the property of Mr. Titlebaum.

Roos was defended by Samuel Feldman, who charged that his client had been "framed up" by the police. The only witness called for the defense was Roos himself, who testified that he was a cocaine fiend and sometimes was not responsible for what he did. Assistant District Attorney Nott then began a rapid-fire cross-examination and Roos was forced to admit five convictions, and then said that Detective Meyer had visited him in the Tombs and had said that he would certainly be convicted, and advised him to plead guilty. Roos refused, and in explaining why turned to Justice Goff and said:

"I told them I would get justice from you because you can tell if I am telling the truth or not."

"I guess you won't have to ask this defendant any more questions," said Justice Goff, smiling. "I know already if what he says is the truth or not."

After his conviction Roos was remanded one week for sentence and then Henry Albrecht, who is jointly indicted with him, was placed on trial. His trial had just commenced when George Geller, also arrested for the burglary of Titlebaum & Co., was brought into court and said he was willing to testify against the defendant. The trial of Albrecht was continued until to-day.

It was contended that Roos was the head of a gang of six men, of whom Geller and Albrecht were two. The others have not been arrested as yet, but there are indictments pending against them charging burglary. Their arrest is expected shortly.

CAPITAL MONEY LENDERS HIT.

President Signs Bill Limiting Interest to 1 Per Cent. Per Month.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Money lenders in the capital, credited with doing an enormous business among Government clerks, received a blow to-day when President Taft signed the "Loan Shark" bill, limiting their charges and also those of pawnbrokers to 1 per cent. a month.

The passage of the bill had been fought for years in Congress, and the money lenders appealed personally to the President to veto it.

Ratifies Popular Vote Plan.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 4.—The Senate to-day adopted the House resolution ratifying the amendment to the Federal constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by popular vote.

TAFT OPPOSES LONG PIERS.

Still Thinks They Would Be Destructive of Nation's Interests.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Taft to-day vigorously opposed the plan to lengthen the steamship piers to 1,000 feet in the Hudson River at New York City in a special message to Congress, in which he vetoed a resolution that he should appoint a United States Army engineer as a member of the joint harbor line commission of New York and New Jersey.

"The proposal to narrow the Hudson River at its narrowest point has been passed upon by four successive Secretaries of War, including myself when I held the office," President Taft wrote. "They have uniformly decided against the proposition. I myself held firmly the conclusion that any further encroachments upon the existing fairway of the Hudson River at that point would be most shortsighted and eventually destructive of the commercial interests of the Nation, which it is the duty of the Federal authorities to conserve. I regard the question as one which, in the light of these successive decisions, ought to be considered as irrevocably settled."

The President said that there were many questions concerning the Port of New York to be taken up by a joint New Jersey-New York Commission which were proper subjects for conference and co-operation with Federal authorities. He suggested the elimination of the pier line question in the resolution.

"I deem it of highest importance," wrote the President, "that this authority over the location of harbor lines shall be exercised, not by local officials subject to the biases and prejudices of their localities, but by officers of the General Government exercising their functions with a vision broad enough to embrace the interests of the entire Nation."

LINER CANADA SAILS

But Strike of French Officers Continues—Captains Take Action.

MARSEILLES, Feb. 4.—The steamship Canada of the Fabre Line sailed for New York to-day, the company having obtained a staff of officers from the Port of St. Malo. The strike still continues, and efforts are being made by the officers who deserted their ships to induce their comrades in port on other vessels to join the movement.

After the departure of the Canada the deep sea captains decided to refuse to sail on any ship which appeared to them to be insufficiently safe or to sail in time of a strike with "a chance crew incapable of working a ship at sea."

'MAN HIGHER UP' GOT HALF POLICE GRAFT

the job, and I always found a stenographer in his room. As soon as he saw me he would tell the stenographer or clerk or whatever he was to go away, and the man would go. Then I would hand him the money.

Man Higher Up Got 50 Per Cent.

"Did I ever have much talk with him? Sometimes. But all the business I did was with him. I understood though that he turned 50 per cent. of the money he got over to a higher police official who was in charge of more than one precinct. This higher official also did some collecting on his own account.

"It seemed that the bigger man collected through his own men from the same saloons and hotels 20 per cent. as much as I collected, so that whenever I gave the man I worked for $100 the higher official got half of it and $20 direct from saloon or hotel keepers, besides making his proportion $70 to every $50 the other man got. I got to know all the places very well, and all I had to do was to show myself and the money would always be ready for me. It was just handed over and I went away with it."

Mr. Whitman taxed Fox's memory for the names of the men who had paid the money to him, and under pressure Fox recalled several of them.

"I will try to remember the others," he assured Mr. Whitman, "between to-night and when I see you again to-morrow afternoon."

Before Fox was excused for the day he wanted Mr. Whitman to say just what measure of clemency would be given to him for his services. He said he had a wife and child and wanted to save them. He said he did not want to go to prison for even a short time because that would be such a disgrace to his family.

Mr. Whitman adhered to his refusal to make any promises. He told Fox that the measure of the mercy he received would be as the measure of the service he rendered to the people. The burden of Mr. Whitman's cry was that Fox would have to assist in proving to the satisfaction of a petit jury every accusation he had made. Fox said he would do everything he could.

Names Other Police Collectors.

Could he give the names of any other police collectors? Mr. Whitman wanted to know. Fox mentioned the names of several policemen whom he said were credited with collecting money for their superior officers. He said he frequently talked with some of these men, but all of them had always displayed great cautiousness in talking about the matter. Fox was asked if he knew the name of the man who did the collecting for a policeman of a higher rank than a Captain. He replied that he was sure he knew who this man was and that he believed he could give the names of the places he collected from.

During the talk it came out that a brother of a high police official had taken part of the $1,000 collected to induce Sipp to remain away from this State to the man who was selected to carry it to Sipp. Mr. Whitman said this was a criminal offense and that it was one of the things he was investigating.

The Assistant District Attorney, who has been preparing the evidence to submit to the Grand Jury on Monday, said yesterday that the case against the police officer for whom Fox had been collecting money was so complete that there was no question whatever that he would be indicted and that his conviction would surely follow. He also said that, while this police officer was a great deal more important than Fox, Mr. Whitman was after still bigger game. According to this official Mr. Whitman's programme reads like this:

"First to get the man who employed Fox as a collector and then to give him his choice of going to State's prison or handing over a still bigger policeman. Mr. Whitman wants to get at the heart of the grafting system. There is only one heart to it, and if he can pierce that the system will be killed and the police force of this city will be fairly honest for some years to come. Mr. Whitman believes he is on the trail, and no idle pleas of illness will prevail to turn him aside from the path he intends to follow."

The reference to the pleas of illness was in connection with a policeman who is now on sick leave, but whom Fox declared yesterday was as well as ever he was. In speaking of this man Fox said:

"He isn't sick at all. That is, he is just as well as he has been any time within the last few years, or when I used to see him doing police duty."

Expects to Convict "Big" Policemen.

It developed yesterday that the Curran Committee had some of the names of hotel keepers in Harlem from whom Fox said he had been collecting money, and that it was the intention of Emory R. Buckner, the committee's counsel, to subpoena them.

Mr. Whitman was asked if this would interfere with his plans. He replied that he did not know, but that he would not hesitate to ask Mr. Buckner to withhold the examination of these witnesses if he wanted to use them first before the Grand Jury or in a prosecution.

When Nathan J. Michaels, one of the managers of the Hotel Avenel, formerly owned by George A. Sipp, testified before the Curran Committee he swore that the hotel had never paid a penny for police protection. Thomas J. Dorian, another one of the hotel's managers, swore that protection money had been paid to Fox, and this statement was corroborated by Fox in his talk with Mr. Whitman yesterday. These contradictory statements will be submitted to the Grand Jury.

Among the owners of the Hotel Avenel is Max Hochstim, who was also said to be interested in the Hotel Lincoln, recently closed. Philip Blau, a stockholder in this hotel, was convicted in Special Sessions a few days ago and sentenced to the penitentiary for six months.

Mr. Whitman is sure that when Fox's completed statement is ready he will be able to close every Raines Law hotel in Harlem, and out of the ruins of this business to dig enough testimony to enmesh a number of big policemen. He thinks he ought to learn the name of every police collector in Harlem, and from them get enough evidence to send at least one really big policeman to prison.

During Fox's talk with Mr. Whitman he touched upon the gambling situation. He said that all complaints against gambling houses were sent to Police Headquarters, and then forwarded to the various Inspectors, who acted under orders. Sometimes the action was one way and sometimes it was another, he said.

The gambling situation, Mr. Whitman found, was more closely allied with the political end of the grafting than the disorderly resorts. A careful investigation seemed to convince him that the obstacles that he had met with were produced by political influences. Two of the big policemen who have become involved in the grafting situation within the last few days are credited with having strong political backing.

WED ORIENTAL OUT OF SPITE.

Girl Didn't Want Man Mother Chose—Children Now in Home.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 4.—Superintendent James Bratt of the Children's Home here, received three unusual charges to-day when Ruth Law, 1 year old; William Law, 2 years, and Frank Law, 5 years, all born in China, were intrusted to his care. The mother, Marion Law, is an American, 35 years old. Her husband died in China and the missionaries there gathered together $1,400 to send Mrs. Law and her children back to the United States.

"I married Frank Law, a Chinese merchant, to spite my parents who live in Brooklyn," said Mrs. Law to Supt. Bratt. "I had made up my mind to marry a certain young man, but my mother had picked out a husband for me, but I wouldn't stand for such procedure. So I married a Chinaman, and he was a dutiful, considerate husband. We went to China, where he died. I am now without any means of support and I am too weak to do much hard work."

Mrs. Law is now living in Allendale, several miles from here. Her parents have not been reconciled to her marriage.

man who was murdered by a man named La Strange. Deputy Commissioner Dougherty had a search made of the records. He found that a man named La Strange had murdered a man named Walker in 1888. This was while Helen Taylor was a child.

With this information Commissioner Dougherty confused Farrell and drew from him a statement that it was doing him no good to lie, so he might as well tell the truth. He then told of his infatuation for Helen Taylor, whom he knew under the name of Grace Walker, which she used until a short time before her death. Ten days before he sent her the bomb, Farrell said he had met her and had told her that he did not like the men she was permitting to call upon her. They quarrelled, he said, about a young girl who had come to live in Helen Taylor's apartment with her and he went back to his room determined to manufacture a bomb and send it to the address she had given him as the one to which she was about to move. He had told about the Walker murder, he said, merely because the name of the man murdered and that of Mrs. Walker happened to be the same.

Typewriter Important Clue.

In one important particular the police failed to obtain evidence from Farrall, which will help him to verify his story, while in another particular Judge Rosalsky was able to throw an important sidelight upon it. The point at which the police failed was that having to do with the typewriter used in addressing the bombs sent to Mrs. Taylor and to Judge Rosalsky.

Both the addresses were in typewriting and the police had long worked upon the theory that the same typewriter was used in both instances. Deputy Commissioner Dougherty asked many questions about this typewriter yesterday.

He led Farrell through a detailed description of the Rosalsky bomb and the Taylor bomb, which corresponded to the police descriptions in all important particulars. When it came to the matter of the address Farrell said he had written the address in each instance on a typewriter on a separate piece of paper, and that he had pasted this bit of paper to the bomb after completing it.

When pressed to describe the bit of paper he tore off a part of a letterhead on the desk of Deputy Commissioner Dougherty. This piece of paper, according to Dougherty, corresponded in size and shape to the address on the Rosalsky bomb and also on the Taylor bomb.

To find out whether Farrell could manipulate a typewriter Deputy Commissioner Dougherty had one brought into his office and put before Farrell. Farrell managed to manipulate it rather slowly, but with enough skill to show familiarity with its keyboard.

But from this point on the examination proved disheartening to the Deputy Commissioner. He asked Farrell where the typewriter was, confident that if he could obtain it he could easily demonstrate beyond any possible question whether Farrell's confession was genuine.

Farrell said he had bought the typewriter from a second-hand dealer for $2 and found it was pretty bad. After using it to address the two bombs he broke it up with a hammer, he said, and put it in an ashbarrel in front of the Fulton Avenue apartment house.

When questioned before Assistant District Attorneys Wasservogel, Breckenridge, and Murphy, Farrell varied this story about the typewriter. He said it had been left in the apartment house where he formerly worked as janitor at 316 East Fourteenth Street by a young boy who moved out with his parents. He said he had appropriated it after the boy's departure and had destroyed it because it persisted in jumping spaces between letters. It was recalled that the address on the bomb sent to Judge Rosalsky contained words in which the letters were separated by long spaces.

Support from Judge Rosalsky.

The portion of the confessions which Judge Rosalsky was able to verify was that having to do with the sentencing of "Bull" De Rosa to thirty-nine years for burglary.

Judge Rosalsky recalled the sentence very clearly, although it was made over four years ago. It was recalled to his mind, he explained, only a week ago by the receipt of a letter from De Rosa pleading with Judge Rosalsky to agree to a commutation of his thirty-nine-year sentence to a sentence of twenty years.

The case was a particularly conspicuous one. Joseph De Rosa, or Joseph Harvey, and Harry Hartman were arrested on Nov. 15, 1908, for burglary at the residence of Peter A. Johnson at 242 East 202d Street, the Bronx. De Rosa, when captured, had a revolver which Policemen Flynn, Turner, and O'Neill, who captured him, said he had attempted to use against them.

Both De Rosa and Hartman pleaded guilty when brought before Judge Rosalsky on Dec. 8, 1908. Judge Rosalsky was able to recall yesterday that Hartman laughed out in court when he was sentenced to not less than nine years and nine months or not more than nine years and eleven months. The reason of his laughter was that his sentence was so much lighter than De Rosa, whose sentence was for thirty-nine years. The lighter sentence for Hartman, Judge Rosalsky recalled, was because he recognized in De Rosa a former neighbor of his in the east side, who was known as a habitual criminal, and because the District Attorney's office recommended a light sentence for Hartman.

In referring to this case yesterday Farrell said that he participated in the robbery for which De Rosa and Hartman were sentenced, and that if either had told about his connection with it he, too, would have been arrested and sentenced. It always made him feel bad, he said, because De Rosa, his "pal" and companion, had received such a long sentence.

This feeling grew upon him each year after De Rosa went to Dannemora Prison, and then he learned how to make bombs.

Farrell told a story about learning the art of bomb manufacture that keenly interested the police and representatives of District Attorney Whitman. But here, again, his confessions weakened at a critical point. He could not recall the name of his teacher, except that he was known to him as Tony.

He met Tony, he said, while he was janitor of the house at 316 East Fourteenth Street. One day he was upstairs fixing some electric lights. Tony was visiting some Italians living on the third floor. Tony watched him work at the electric wires a little while, and then congratulated him. They fell into a discussion of electric wiring, and finally Tony suggested he would like some place to do a little quiet work. Farrell suggested his room in the cellar.

Tony began to come to the cellar room, and the two men became friendly. Finally Tony did some concentrated work on a little machine and Farrell asked him what it was he was making. Tony replied that it was a bomb, and Farrell suggested he would like to know about bombs. Tony agreed to do the teaching, but said the example Farrell had first noticed was a very complicated one and he had better begin on a simpler style. The manufacture of a bomb of the type that was sent to Helen Taylor was the result of this first course of study. After finding how successful he had been in that case Farrell began to study, as he said, over a bomb for Judge Rosalsky. Instead of using a single tube to contain nitroglycerin he put joints in the tube and used three vials of nitroglycerin instead of a single vial, as in the Taylor case. He arranged a spring which would fly up the minute the lid was lifted, this spring to make a contact between electric wires and so explode the bomb.

After the explosion in the home of Judge Rosalsky he said he planned a number of improvements to his bomb, including a percussion cap device that would replace the cumbersome electric batteries.

He said that last Friday, when he quarreled with Mrs. Herrera and was notified by her husband that he was going to lose his job—it paid him only $5 a month and his board and room—he became very angry and determined to make a new bomb for the Herreras.

He said that he found still on hand a little of the stock of nitro-glycerine purchased for the Rosalsky bomb and the Taylor bombs. This stock was contained in a small viol. He said that he secured a piece of pipe one inch in diameter and five inches long, into which he placed the viol of nitro-glycerine.

To open the viol so that the nitro-glycerine would flow out into the pipe he shoved a hot hairpin through the cork. He was careful that the hole he burned was large enough to permit the free flowing of the nitro-glycerine. He then sealed the head of the pipe, arranging as he did so a percussion cap on the inside of the seal. To this cap he arranged a spring with a button at the end, capable of striking a blow on the release of the spring to the percussion cap. He placed the bomb in a cigar box and fastened the spring so that it would be released on opening the box.

To manufacture this bomb required all of Friday afternoon and Saturday. On Sunday he was still tinkering at it when Herrera came to his room to complain about the lack of heat in the furnace of the house next door. This house, as well as the one in which the Herreras and Farrell lived, was under the care of Herrera, and Farrell was supposed to take care of the furnaces in both houses.

Farrell and Herrera went together to the basement of the house next door, and while there Ferra informed Farrell that a new assistant janitor, a negro, was coming to take his place. This enraged Farrell, and he determined that he should set off the bomb at once. He slipped away while Herrera was still busy at the furnace and placed the bomb, wrapped in a shoe box which had been placed outside of the cigor box, near the door to the Herrera apartment. He said he knew that Herrera would be the first person to enter the building, and would be sure to pick up and examine an unaddressed package.

When pressed for details as to the exact process of manufacturing the bomb, especially as to what material was used as a metal "filler," Farrell said he placed wooden wedges on both sides of the iron pipe to hold it steady, and also wrapped several layers of broken nails around the pipe. The nails, he said, were what penetrated the body of Mrs. Herrera, and filled the ceiling of the room where the bomb exploded with holes.

This statement did not conform to the police reports, which were to the effect that iron slugs were used in the bomb.

The taking of Farrell's Bertillon measurements at Police Headquarters revealed that he as covered with tattooed designs. He had designs upon his breasts and upon both arms from the shoulders to the wrists. He had been a sailor, and many of the designs had to do with life at sea. Also he had had the names of six women inscribed upon his arms, one of the names being beneath the figure of a kneeling angel with wings.

On the left arm, near the shoulder, were three names of women, "Harriet, Helen, and Lettie." Under these names was a scroll and anchor, then a portrait of a sailor, then an American flag, then the names "Nellie," "Helen," and "Nora," and finally, on the wrist, an eagle and anchor.

On the right arm the kneeling angel near the shoulder was followed by a representation of a cross and the name "Sarah." Under this again were the initials "E. R. T.", a pictured robin, the name "Ridgaway," a female figure between two flags, a pair of clasped hands with the initials "J. McD.", a female bust and a star, and finally the initials "J. P. F."

The police were quickly able to descipher the initials "J. McD." They found on applying to the police of Jersey City that there was no record of the arrest of John Paul Farrell in that city, although Farrell had confessed he had been arrested for burglary. The Bertillon measurements of Farrell were taken to Jersey City and picture 587 in the Jersey City Rogues' Gallery was found to correspond in every detail. This picture was labelled "John McDermott, alias Liverpool Jack, a sail maker." The record showed that he had been arrested in 1888 for burglary and sentenced to ten years in the State Prison. In Jersey City the police have a record of Farrell, under the name of McDermott, running back thirty-five years. In that time he worked as a tailor and sail maker, and finally turned to larceny. He came from Ireland and was never married.

The police are not looking for any accomplice of Farrell except the indefinite "Tony." They detained Joseph Jaret, a 14-year-old boy, at Police Headquarters after it had been reported that he had been much in Farrell's company in the Bronx.

At a conference between Judge Rosalsky and Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel in Judge Rosalsky's chambers last night Judge Rosalsky suggested that Farrell be questioned on the number of stamps on the bomb sent to him, their color and denomination. He suggested that a representative of the District Attorney's office be sent to Danembora Prison to interview De Rosa and Hartman as to their connection with Farrell. He said he was confident that De Rosa would be willing to talk on account of his keen desire to have his sentence commuted to twenty years.

Mr. Wasservogel reported to Judge Rosalsky that all he could get Farrell to recall about the bomb sent to the Judge, was that he had it weighed in a store near Fourth Avenue and Twelfth Street, to determine what amount of postage was necessary, and afterward he mailed it at a letter box in that vicinity. Mr. Wasservogel recalled that the police had learned that the bomb was collected by a mail wagon on its route from Spring Street to Forty-second Street on the east side.

MOTOR-CAR BANDIT'S DEFENSE OF ANARCHY

Dieudonne Makes Speech at the Trial—Loses Calm When Confronted with Evidence.

SAYS BONNOT WAS A SAVAGE

Callemin, Another Prisoner Examined, Looks Very Unlike a Criminal—Monier Also Interrogated.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—On the second day of the trial of the motor-car bandits the court was again crowded, many fashionably clad women being present, but they did not all show great interest in the proceedings, for while the Judge was reading some of the most terrible charges against the bandits it was noticed that an elderly woman had fallen asleep.

To-day's proceedings were occupied with the examination of Dieudonné, Callemin, and Monier, (alias Simentoff,) There are six charges against Dieudonné, the most serious being the attempt to murder the bank messenger Caby in the Rue Ordener.

Callemin, known as "Raymond la Science" because of his mathematical studies, is accused of ten crimes, including the murder of the policeman Garnier.

Monier is accused of playing a prominent part in the outrages in the forest of Senart, where a motor car was stolen after the driver was shot dead, and in the robbery of a bank at Chantilly, where two cashiers were shot dead.

The three prisoners all made long speeches to the Judge and jury and at frequent intervals had heated altercations with the Judge. At times all three spoke at the same moment, but President Couinaud was toleration itself, as was shown when he allowed Dieudonné to waste ten minutes of the court's time with a speech on the philosophy of anarchy.

Dieudonne's Examination.

Dieudonné, who is a carpenter by trade, defended himself with animation. He said he had always worked for a living, but he professed liberal ideas. He said he felt no resentment toward a comrade named Lorulot, formerly director of the journal L'Anarchie, when his (Dieudonné's) wife left him and went to live with Lorulot.

Dieudonné stoutly denied that he knew Bonnot and repudiated any connection with the "tragic band."

The Judge reminded Dieudonné that on the morning of his arrest he had in his possession several Browning pistols, some cartridges, a heavy stick, and a number of drills. He replied that he bought the pistols from a friend whose name he could not mention. The drills he used in his trade.

The Judge asked: "Can you explain why Callemin telegraphed to you at Nancy two days before the shooting outrage in the Rue Ordener: 'We want you immediately. Come to Paris at once?'"

Dieudonne gave a confused reply, to the effect that the telegram was sent by Callemin on behalf of his (Dieudonne's') wife, but it was pointed out that if the telegram had come from Mme. Dieudonne it would read, "I want you."

When the Judge insisted on the damaging nature of the evidence of Caby, the wounded bank messenger, and other witnesses who recognized him on the day of the crime, Dieudonne's philosophic calm was disturbed. He interrupted the Judge with a loud voice and struck his fist on the rail of the dock. The Judge ordered him to be silent, saying in stern tones: "I am conducting this trial, and you have to do as I wish."

"Opposed to Anything Illegal."

After his interrogation Dieudonne wound up with a vehement little speech.

"I found myself among the Anarchist fraternity," he said, "when I was looking for my wife and child. It was natural that I should absorb their ideas, but it does not follow that because one becomes an Anarchist one becomes a felon. I am opposed to anything illegal. You said yesterday that L'Anarchie made itself an apologist for Bonnot. Such an apology is idiotic. No one could approve of Bonnot. You had only to look at his profile to see that he had the brain of a savage."

Callemin's appearance made it difficult to believe that he was a dangerous criminal. A smooth-faced, good-looking young man, wearing silver rimmed pince-nez, he proved himself a somewhat intractable subject. Some questions he refused to answer. To others he replied by putting queries to the Judge. Asked what he had done since he came to France, he said he had worked, but would not say where.

The Judge asked: "What were you doing with three Browning pistols and eight cartridge clips when you were arrested?"

Callemin after some hesitation replied: "I was engaged in smuggling arms."

The Judge—"But why were they loaded?"

Callemin—"It was a coincidence, I suppose."

At the hearing to-day it was stated that after the shooting of the bank messenger Caby Callemin and a companion named Deboe went to Amsterdam to dispose of the stolen securities, Deboe carrying the scrip wound around his body.

Questioned in regard to his intimacy with Bonnot and Garnier and his presence in the gray car which the "demon chauffeur" drove when a policeman was shot dead, Callemin asserted his innocence, despite the fact that he had been recognized by witnesses When the Judge pointed out that forty witnesses had identified him, Callemin maintained that they were mistaken.

Callemin made several flippant responses to questions. Once he remarked: "A thick fog has always obscured the vision of the law," whereupon the Judge rebuked him for impertinence.

Monier's Eloquence.

Monier is a robust, self-confident man, a most voluble talker. Holding a roll of notes in his hand, he delivered lengthy speeches to the Judge, jury, and reporters, accompanying his remarks with expressive gestures. During the hour when he was on his feet he was most anxious to persuade the court that he was a much maligned citizen, that he was honest, simple, and kind-hearted. His fellow prisoners, spellbound by his eloquence, never took their eyes off him, but the Judge and jury looked very bored.

Finally the Judge interrupted him, but, with an apologetic wave of the hand, and, "Pardon, Monsieur le President, let me explain," he went on again. When he stopped, exhausted, the Judge asked if he had ever known Bonnot.

"Yes," he replied. "I made a cycling tour with Bonnot and Lorulot in the South of France, delivering Anarchist lectures."

The Judge asked: "Another of your friends was Renard, who was guillotined last week at Versailles for the murder of a policeman?"

Monier answered: "Yes, I acknowledge that he was an acquaintance."

Before leaving the Santé Prison Dieudonné dedicated a lengthy prose poem to his cell, bidding it a fond adieu, but expressing the hope that he would never see it again. The poem is signed, "Thy ex-lover, Eugène Dieudonné."

WIRELESS ICEBERG SCOUT.

London Hears of Plan to Send Ship to Warn Transatlantic Liners.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The London correspondent of The Liverpool Journal of Commerce says it is understood that active negotiations are in process between the Government and the principal transatlantic steamship lines, whereby both parties will bear the cost of sending into the North Atlantic ice regions a perfectly equipped vessel which shall have a very powerful installation of wireless telegraphy.

The plan contemplates wireless reports by this ship to stations on the American coast and to Atlantic liners of the latitude and longitude of icebergs and other similar dangers which exist.

VON KIDERLEN WROTE IT.

Attack on a News Agency Was from Pen of Late Foreign Secretary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Light was thrown on the working of the governmental "denial machine," the Press Bureau, in a libel case against the official oracle, The North German Gazette, tried in Berlin to-day.

Dr. von Wilke, editor of a political news agency, published last November a statement on the international situation which was regarded by the Foreign Office as likely to disturb public opinion. The North German Gazette printed an unusually sharp denial, rebuking the agency for publishing news inspired by "impure motives," alluding obviously to Stock Exchange operations. Dr. von Wilke sent seconds to the chief of the Press Bureau at the Foreign Office, who, however, declined to accept responsibility for the language of The North German Gazette. Dr. von Wilke then sued Dr. Runge, editor of The North German Gazette, for libel.

Dr. Runge, in giving evidence to-day, declared that the article complained of came from the pen of the late Foreign Secretary von Kiderlen-Waechter. The court decided against Dr. Runge on the ground that there was no evidence to support the allegation against Dr. von Wilke's agency and that Dr. Runge had knowledge of the article before its publication. On the other hand, the court recognized, in view of the relations between the Foreign Office and difficult for Dr. Runge to employ his The North German Gazette, that it was editorial blue pencil on von Kiderlen-Waechter's copy. It fined Dr. Runge $12.50 and the right to have the judgment published in The North German Gazette was granted to the plaintiff. The court further ordered the destruction of all copies of the paper containing the libel, as well as the plates and forms.

CZAREVITCH NEARLY WELL.

Left Leg Still Bent, but Doctor Says He Will Completely Recover.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 4.—The first authorized communication concerning the Czarevitch since the cessation of bulletins in December was published to-day. It is a message from Gen. Dumbadze, Governor of Yalta, who has just returned from Tsarskoe-Selo. The message reads:

"I have been personally several times in the company of the Czarevitch at Tzarskoe-Selo since the new year. I found that he had grown considerable since he was at Yalta last Summer. He has pink cheeks, is muscular, looks well, is full of life, and is as gay as formerly. His left leg is somewhat bent at the knee, but Dr. Derevenko, his resident attendant, says it is gradually becoming straighter and will completely recover.

"The Czarevitch told me he felt pains and was very ill when at Spala. Now he feels perfectly well and rides in a sleigh every day."

BOMB KILLS 20 IN FOO-CHOW.

Thrown at the Governor, Who Escapes and Captures the Assassin.

FOO-CHOW, Feb. 4.—A bomb thrown at the Civil Governor of Foo-Chow today killed twenty bystanders when it exploded, but left the Governor uninjured. He was crossing the Foo-Chow Bridge when the outrage occurred.

The Governor saw the man who threw the bomb, dashed at him, and, with the aid of others, succeeded in arresting him.

KAHN PREDICTS BIG BOOM IN AMERICA

Country on Verge of Extraordinary Prosperity, He Says on Eve of Sailing for Home.

BANKING REFORM CHIEF NEED

Does Not Fear Effects of Tariff Reductions, Which Will Injure Only a Minority.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Otto H. Kahn will sail for New York to-morrow after spending two days in London. He arrived from Paris yesterday.

Mr. Kahn, who lunched to-day with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, said his European trip had shown him more than ever before the growing closeness of the musical relationship between Europe and the United States, which would inevitably make America, with its vast population of wealthy music-lovers, a world centre of opera. The brightest future awaited American artists, who were being turned out in sufficient numbers to satisfy the entire home demand.

Regarding London, Mr. Kahn does not believe the city will ever maintain two self-supporting houses devoted to grand opera. At the same time he greatly regrets that Mr. Hammerstein's house should have fallen to be a cinema-vaudeville theatre. He said:

"Mr. Hammerstein made the mistake of starting with grand opera prices and then lowering them to popular prices. If he had commenced with the latter and then raised them when his success had been proved his scheme might have been profitable. You can always raise prices when your commodity is worth an increase, but it is almost invariably fatal to lower them."

Mr. Kahn welcomes the American vote for an income tax, believing that such a tax is the fairest of all taxes, although he expects that considerable difficulties will arise in the settlement of incidentals. He said he anticipated great financial activity immediately after the Balkan war ceased, adding:

"The United States is on the verge of extraordinary prosperity. Since 1907 the people generally have been saving money, while enormous wealth has been added to the country in consequence of the magnificent harvests of the last five years. Everything points to a tremendous boom. What is needed most to help this is a reform of our system of banking and currency, which is disgracefully antiquated.

"We have no fear of the effects of a downward revision of the tariff, which is unlikely to injure any one except a small minority, who must yield to the needs of the majority, but only experience will show whether revision will decrease the cost of living."

CLAIM GEMS FOUND IN RAGS.

Two New Yorkers Make Inquiry—Girl Sorters Refuse to Give Them Up.

CORNWALL, Ont., Feb. 4.—Claimants for the diamonds found recently in a bundle of old rags by girls in the sorting room of a paper mill here are beginning to be heard from. One claimant, to-day was Mrs. W. B. Lawson of Central Park West, New York City, who wrote that last Summer she lost a pink bag containing jewelry from her Summer cottage at Sea Cliff, Long Island. Another is Lieut. J. T. Abbott of the New York City Fire Department, who says that his sister-in-law lost jewels to the value of $2,500 while house-cleaning last June.

In the meantime, the girls who found the jewels refuse to hand them over to the police, holding that as finders they are entitled to possession.

THE SEINE STILL RISING.

Now Near the Danger Point—Authorities Taking Precautions.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The Seine continues to rise, and now lacks only forty centimeters of the 4.76 meters stage which experience has shown to be the danger level.

The authorities are beginning to take precautions for the emergency which will arise if the flood goes beyond that point. Rescue parties have been organized, and all the boatmen have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness in the suburban districts, which would be the first to be flooded.

FOR AN ATLANTIC PATROL.

British Government Negotiating with Steamship Lines.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The British Government has entered into negotiations with the principal North Atlantic steamship lines with a view to equipping a vessel with a powerful wireless installation to patrol the ice regions and notify the wireless stations of the American coast and liners plying the Atlantic of the location of icebergs and of similar dangers.

The cost of the service, as contemplated, is to be shared by the Government and the companies.

STARTS TO MEET EXPLORER.

Mrs. Robert Scott Expects to See Her Husband in New Zealand in March.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Robert Scott, wife of Capt. Scott, the distinguished British Antarctic explorer, left here to-day for San Francisco, where she will take the steamer for New Zealand to meet her returning husband. At the station she gave the following interview to THE TIMES correspondent:

"I expect to meet Capt. Scott in Lytleton in March," she said. "This is the time of the year that he can get out of the southern polar regions and he will make for that port. I go to San Francisco and will sail from there on Feb. 5.

"I have not heard from my husband for about eighteen months, but I have no doubt whatsoever that he will arrive in New Zealand safely. You remember that when he sent word before he said that he would remain for one season in the Antarctic region.

"Of course I hope that he will be successful, and I really feel that he will be. I cannot tell what he will do after he returns, as I do not know myself as yet. We shall probably return to America and from there go to England."

FIRST LEVEE OF THE SEASON.

R. A. Gardiner and Dr. F. S. Pearson Presented to King George.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The first levée of the season held to-day was numerously attended, but thanks to the better arrangements possible at Buckingham Palace than at St. James's Palace the function was over by 12:30 P. M.

The Americans presented in the General Circle were Robert A. Gardiner and Dr. F. S. Pearson, both of New York.

All the members of the American Embassy staff attended in the Diplomatic Circle.

$500,000 FOR CANAL DREDGES

Used in Repairing Culebra Slides—Protests Against Land Board.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Feb. 4.—Col. Goethals, who has just returned from the United States, announces the purchase of two immense dredges from a Milwaukee firm at a cost of $500,000. This is the largest single canal equipment contract. One dredge will be delivered on Dec. 1, the other on Jan. 1.

They are for use in digging out the slides at Culebra. This indicates that the slides will continue long after the canal is opened to commerce. Holders of Panama land concessions from the previous Administration are protesting to the Government against the wholesale cancellation of concessions by the Porras Administration. Three English firms and ten American land companies have lost their contracts. There is also a protest by holders of land in the Canal Zone against Dr. Falkner and Prof. Lowe as American Land Commissioners to settle claims for land taken over by the United States. It is charged that they will not be fair, and that the United States plans to acquire the land at a price far below its value.

BRYAN TO VISIT CUBA.

Americans in Isle of Pines Want His Help in Annexation Project.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 4.—Feeling that William Jennings Bryan will be a powerful factor in the coming Administration, Americans resident in the Isle of Pines, who desire that island to become American territory, have arranged for his visit. He will arrive in Havana from Key West and visit the Isle of Pines. He will lecture before the Havana Y. M. C. A. on Sunday night and at Havana University on Monday.

The Isle of Pines Americans are bringing every possible pressure to bear upon Washington to make that island a part of the United States.

There is much excitement over the evident intention of the Cuban Government to make the Isle of Pines a penal colony, as it was under the Spaniards. Judge Saladrigas, who is in charge of the cases of 2,000 negro prisoners who surrendered or were captured during the uprising, has asked permission to ship all of them to the island.

Americans own over 99 per cent. of the island and constitute five-sixths of the population.

AGAIN DELAYS CHINESE LOAN.

France at Last Moment Makes an Objection—Causes Consternation.

PEKING, Feb. 4.—The six-power loan agreement was not signed to-day.

At the last moment the French Minister informed the Chinese Government that he would be unable to agree to the loan unless all three advisers represented neutral countries or were subjects of one or another of the six countries participating. He added that if the latter alternative were adopted a Frenchman ought to be appointed to one of the three posts.

The French objection was entirely unlooked for, and caused consternation in Government circles and dismay among the bankers. The Ministers representing the six powers met this evening, but failed to reconcile the conflicting views.

The loan agreement was completed yesterday, and it was expected that the signatures would be attached today, although the French Minister only a few days ago objected to the appointment of a Dane as Inspector of the Salt Gabelle, on the ground that the post ought to be given to a Frenchman. It was understood, however, that in the later negotiations this objection had been withdrawn.

VICAR GONE WITH WOMAN.

Made His Wife Delude People with a Story of His Death.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Further disclosures were made to-day in connection with the disappearance of the Rev. Albert Knight, vicar of Hunslet, Yorkshire, whose wife at first said he had fallen from the Flamborough Cliffs while taking a photograph. He is now on his way to Australia with Miss Fannie Grimes, one of his Sunday school teachers. They had been much together for some time, but gossip was silenced by the statement that they were working hard to put down the white-slave traffic.

Mrs. Knight, who is in a serious nervous condition as a result of the incident, says she was forced by her husband, under threats, into deluding people into the belief that he was dead. She denies, however, that she was aware of his relations with Miss Grimes.

Thrift in Building.

There is more opportunity for exercising thrift in a building operation than most men imagine.

The difference between waste and thrift depends on the character of supervision given the enterprise.

The supervision which we give to planning and to construction is the kind that makes for thrift.

TAMMANY HOLDS UP PICTURE ORDINANCE

Mayor Pleads in Vain for the Passage of a Measure to Protect Patrons of the "Movies."

DOWLING THE OBSTRUCTOR

Has Amended Folks Ordinance Laid Over for Two Weeks on the Ground That It's a New Measure.

Despite the request of the Mayor that they pass a moving picture ordinance immediately because of the disastrous panic in the Houston Street Hippodrome on Sunday night, a majority of the Board of Aldermen voted yesterday to let the matter go over for two weeks and to hold a public hearing a week from next Saturday on all the proposed ordinances now before the board. Most of the Republican and Fusion members fought for the passage of the Folks ordinance, which had already been adopted, but which the Mayor vetoed because it contained a censorship clause, but the Tammany members made the point that they were not familiar with its contents and succeeded in delaying action.

This is the letter the Mayor sent to the board:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor,
Feb. 4, 1913.

To the Honorable Board of Aldermen:

Sirs: I venture to call your attention to the necessity of passing the ordinance to govern motion picture theatres, which was transmitted to your honorable body by the Mayor on Dec. 12, 1911, after it had been drawn by a commission appointed by the Mayor for that purpose. This proposed ordinance puts the said theatres under ample control and inspection in respect of their construction and safety, as well as of their morality, including the morality of the pictures exhibited.

As near as I could see at the time, or as I can see now on regarding this ordinance, it safeguards these places of amusement in all respects. Of course, no one can entirely safeguard such places against panic, but I think the result of a panic in a moving picture theatre constructed and governed in accordance with this proposed ordinance would be much less serious in its results than that which occurred in one of these places last Sunday evening.

I submit this matter to your better judgments, but at the same time I cannot refrain from saying to you that it seems to me that this ordinance should be promptly passed for the safety and the moral government of these places. Of all things I do not think that the influence of other classes of theatres and shows should be permitted to obstruct or delay the passage of this ordinance.

Very truly yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

The Tammany members, led by Minority Leader Frank Dowling, started a storm of protest as soon as Alderman Folks asked that his ordinance, which was amended to suit the Mayor's objections, be passed. Dowling said the ordinance was a new one, and should be laid over. Folks said the delay was unnecessary, and referred to the trampling to death of two women in the Houston Street Hippodrome as reason for immediate action.

Alderman Courtlandt Nicoll also pleaded that the ordinance be passed at once. Alderman Herbst said that, as he understood the ordinance, it did not require the owners of theatres at present in operation to change the capacity of their theatres. Alderman Bolles said the provisions of the ordinance were easily understandable, and that there was no excuse for all the members not knowing all about it.

Alderman White charged Alderman Folks with working for certain moving picture interests, and that he is on the National Board of Censorship which, said White, is in the pay of the film trust.

Folks hotly resented this. "I have been a member of the National Board of Censorship for three years," said he, "and it has done good work to improve the films both here and throughout the country. Alderman White represents the Fox theatrical interests, and he has good reasons for opposing the ordinance."

The vote to have the ordinance laid over was 42 to 25. Alderman Dowling's resolution to hold a public hearing on all the proposed ordinances was unanimously adopted.

15,000,000 IN DANGER.

State Fire Marshal Asks for Better Moving Picture Precautions.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Fires of incendiary origin are increasing in number throughout the State, and more than 15,000,000 persons throughout the country who daily attend moving picture exhibitions are "exposed to danger from fires and unbridled displays." So says Thomas J. Ahearn, State Fire Marshal, in his annual report, in which he recommends legislation designed to remedy these conditions.

Mr. Ahearn suggests the establishment of an "arson bureau, composed of competent men in the nature of secret service detectives, qualified in the work of discovery of crime," which he believes would go far toward decreasing the number of incendiary fires. He recommends, however, that provision be made for more rigid and systematic inspection of property and contents by insurance companies, and that fire adjusters should be licensed by the insurance department after a close and searching scrutiny into their character. He asserts that "over insurance" and "dishonest adjusters" are prolific causes of arson.

For the further protection of the crowds attending moving picture theatres, Mr. Ahearn would prescribe a set of rules to govern the erection of such structures, and would "demand that the proprietor should be compelled to take out a license for the place, not its manager, so that the laws could not be evaded by a mere transfer from name to name."

"There should be direct lighting for moral safety," he continues, and he also recommends ordinances to govern the storage and handling of films. "It has been shown that moving pictures have frequently been the occasion of pyromania," he explains, in citing a number of instances where "pyromaniacs were started on their career by moving pictures." to remedy this and other conditions he favors a censorship of films.

Mr. Ahearn states that the large fire waste in this State, which last year, outside of New York City, represented a loss of $12,850,954, was due to poor construction, carelessness, lack of public education in fire prevention and attention to fire fighting rather than to its prevention. He points out that 80 per cent. of all fires are the result of "carelessness, negligence or ignorance" and urges the organization of fire prevention and protection clubs in every community, composed of representatives of all classes, "at the monthly meetings of which the subject could be discussed by competent men."

"Motor apparatus is fast coming into general use," the report states, "but the old engine type is the more reliable as yet, and the newer gasolene type should not be adopted until more exhaustive tests have been made."

BRAND FAKE LABELS TO USE AS SOUVENIRS

Unique Propaganda to Start Campaign for Recognition of American Goods.

NEW SOCIETY IS FORMED

"American Fashions for American Women" Name and Keynote of Widely Approved Movement.

"Let every American woman stand for American fashions, American materials, and American made garments. In doing this she will be a good patriot, uphold the standards of her country, help native industries, and incidentally she very likely will be wearing the same things she has worn before and called imported.

"Beware the fake label!"

That is what the Society of American Fashions for American Women, which was formed yesterday afternoon in the Hotel McAlpin, Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street, advises.

The new society had labels pasted on a card to give out as souvenirs yesterday. They were of pearl gray satin with a French name woven in gold letters with street and number in Paris. Across it the reformers had stamped "Fake Label" in black letters.

There are any number of these labels in this country, and milliners, modistes, and the mantua maker have combined, it seems, from the testimony given yesterday, to deceive the unpatriotic American women who like to think that at least some of their clothes are imported.

"We have minds that are 'geographically dislocated,'" Alexandre Grean, who was the first speaker, said yesterday. "You never hear anything praised that originated in America. Merchants make you believe their goods are imported, and use a fake label. It does terrible harm to the country. Our high-class tailors should be model makers, but they are ignored."

Mr. Grean thought the fake label itself was imported, but Mrs. Harriet Fayes destroyed even that idea.

"The fake labels are not imported," she said, "they are made right here in New York, and the best New York people combine in using them."

The exposure of the fake label habit would help both French and Americans, Mrs. Fayes said.

M. L. Wilson divided the members of the gown-wearing sex in this country into four classes. There is the woman who buys real French gowns in Paris and the few imported models in this country; there is the near-Paris buyer; there are the women who live in small towns and villages, and, fourth, there is the city woman who buys ready-made gowns.

"You can't educate the real French gown buyer, or at least not for a long time," Mr. Wilson said. "She has money and she will go on doing as she pleases for some time to come."

The near-Paris buyer was described as the woman who studied the fashion papers, got the French styles as nearly as she could, and had her gown cut in extreme styles.

The rural woman is the one who buys the genuine American article as such.

The city woman who supports the department stores is the one, Mr. Wilson says, who upholds the reputation of American women as being well-dressed. Sometimes this woman who buys ready-made clothes so largely goes on what Mr. Wilson called a "sartorial bat," and employs a ladies' tailor to make a gown, but she usually will only have a dressmaker to help her out, or, if she is clever, she makes her own clothes with the aid of the invaluable paper pattern.

"Americans are making good fabrics and good models," said H. D. Robbins, "and they should have credit for it. American people can be made to apreciate home products if they are properly advertised. You have largely educated the people to demand goods from France."

A letter was read from Mrs. Champ Clark written on her husband's official paper in which she said:

"I commend American talent in all walks of life. In style and comfort Americans can give foreigners two in the game and beat them."

Clowry Chapman, attorney for the Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America presided.

Among those present were M. Wilson, Bromley Lace Works, Philadelphia; Edward Bok, Ladies Home Journal; V. E. Carroll, Textile Manufacturers Journal; John H. Hawley, Fred Sutro, William Sherman, Percy Goldstein, Joseph GoldstGein, Sam Siskind, M. Schreiber, F. Schonebrod, Fred Almy, W. C. McMillan, M. J. Flam and Mrs. Herbert Radnor Lewis.

JOHN DREW TO ACT BENEDICK

Will Appear Next Season at Empire in "Much Ado About Nothing."

John Drew is to forsake the modern comedies with which he has been identified for the last few years, and return to the classic drama. Charles Frohman announced yesterday that he would bring out a new production of "Much Ado About Nothing" next season, in which Mr. Drew would be seen as Benedick for the first time in twenty years. Beyond the fact that it will be one of the present Frohman stars, it is not disclosed who is to appear with him as Beatrice. In association with Ada Rehan John Drew made Benedick one of his most noteworthy rôles.

An interesting fact about the engagement is that Mr. Frohman forecasts an invasion next season of English stars in Shakespearean plays. He promises that everything about it will be American, and that none but American actors will be seen in the cast. The production will be made at the Empire Theatre, and will constitute Mr. Drew's annual engagement there.

In commenting on the expected English invasion and telling of his plans to meet it with John Drew's production of "Much Ado About Nothing," the announcement from Mr. Frohman says:

"It is now settled that Beerbohm Tree is coming next season to America with his entire His Majesty's Theatre repertoire, which means 'Macbeth,' 'Twelfth Night,' 'Henry VIII.,' and 'The Merry Wives of Windsor.' Almost coincident with Sir Beerbohm Tree's American invasion, Granville Barker and his present English company will appear in New York with two Shakespearen productions that have already caused at least a great deal of discussion in London, the one being a modernized interpretation of 'A Winter's Tale,' and the other a very strikingly costumed presentation of 'Twelfth Night.' In fact, all next season will be entirely devoted by at least two of England's foremost producers to showing American playgoers how Shakespeare's plays really ought to be staged."

BINNEY'S ACCUSER POOR JUDGE OF TIME

Bluecoat Who Arrested Lawyer for Wild Auto Dash Fails at Court Test.

DEFENDANT HIS OWN COUNSEL

Asks for Discharge on Ground That Streets Were Vacant—Case Is Postponed.

Harold Osgood Binney, the lawyer, arrested for reckless driving on Dec. 22, was arraigned before Justices Russell, Forker and Collins in Special Sessions yesterday, and when the prosecution finished the case was postponed until to-morrow afternoon.

Mr. Binney conducted his own case and contended that he was not driving in a reckless manner inasmuch as the alleged violation of the law was committed at 4:30 A. M. The first witness was Policeman Kinsler of the West Thirtieth Street Station, who placed the defendant under arrest at Broadway and Fortieth Street. Mr. Binney first tested the witness's qualifications as a speed expert by getting him to tell him when twenty seconds were up. This was done because the policeman testified that he figured that the automobile was going at forty miles an hour as it had taken only twenty seconds to come from Thirty-fourth Street up to Fortieth Street. Kinsler at first thought the defendant meant fifteen seconds and tried to guess it twice, but failed, guessing eleven seconds once and twelve next. He finally guessed fourteen seconds for twenty.

Kinsler then testified that Binney had missed a man by a very narrow margin. Binney asked how narrow.

"Well, about four or five feet, and if you hadn't been going so fast you would have smashed into him."

"You got out of my way, didn't you?" said Binney.

"Yes, I did, and if I hadn't I would be a corpse by now."

"Don't you know" interrupted the defendant, "that it is worse for a man to move away than it is to stand still?"

"No, I don't," replied the witness. "When I stand in the street with my arm up and yell for a man to stop an automobile and he keeps coming at me, I think it is safer to get out of the way."

Kinsler then testified that the automobile was going so fast that it would have beaten a baseball. He said that when arrested Binney said he had visited Jack's and Maxim's. He also testified that he saw about a hundred pedestrians in Broadway.

Policeman Meyer of the West Thirtieth Street Station was then called, and in describing the manner in which his attention was attracted to the defendant said:

"I heard the noise of a car coming, and something flashed past me. It was this defendant and his car. I waved my hand, and he put on more speed and away he went."

After a short cross-examination Binney asked Assistant District Attorney Willmont if he wanted to call any more witnesses. Mr. Willmont said he did not, and then Binney asked that he be discharged on the ground that the streets were practically vacant at the time of his arrest, and there could therefore be no reckless driving shown. This motion was denied, and he then asked that he be dismissed on the ground that while thirty miles an hour is considered the legal limit for driving during the day, the fact that he drove at forty miles an hour at the time he did could not constitute reckless driving. This motion was also denied, and the case was postponed.

Binney first broke into the limelight in San Francisco when he became engaged to marry a California girl, but disappeared on the day he was to be married.

PLAN GIFT FOR MRS. TAFT.

Friends Propose to Compliment Her on Her Departure from White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Following the precedent of four years ago, when less than two score women of fashionable society gave to Mrs. Roosevelt a diamond necklace on the eve of her departure from the White House, friends of Mrs. Taft propose complimenting her in the same manner.

In the case of Mrs. Roosevelt's gift, the matter was kept secret among the small circle of her close friends. Many of them, like Mrs. Robert Hitt and Miss May Williams, who made the selection of the gift, were women of large means, who soon collected a sum reported as from $1,500 to $5,000.

Miss Mabel Boardman is the prime mover in the present movement. She has the co-operation of Mrs. Frances Newlands, wife of the Senator from Nevada, and Mrs. Frank Ellis, formerly of Cincinnati. The object is to express in this way the appreciation of Washington society women for the great courtesy of Mrs. Taft during her residence as First Lady and their regret at the severance of these agreeable personal relations.

THE GIMBEL FURNITURE SALE
Has Received a Tremendous Ovation

We are immensely gratified with the auspicious beginning of our February Sale of Furniture. Planned, as it was, for vastly increased selling and assembled with exceptional care to meet the correct furnishing requirements of the present season, it still needed the seal of public approval before the final verdict could be rendered. The tremendous selling of the opening days of the Sale has been far beyond our expectations. It has been a substantial endorsement of our methods and policies in planning and assembling the Furniture. We have not only studied the wishes and necessities of our entire constituency, but we have done everything but manufacture the furniture, in order to have exactly the kinds that are most desired for Spring furnishing.

Our experts have full knowledge of what classes of Furniture are most fashionable and most wanted, and in preparing the simpler furnishings for Summer homes we have had many special groups of Furniture built for us in the wanted Colonial and English styles. ¶ All who have furniture to buy during the coming season are invited to come, examine and compare the styles, the construction and values and judge for themselves why this Furniture occasion at GIMBELS is already such a tremendous success.

Please Keep These Facts Firmly in Mind

(1) The majority of this Furniture is from our regular stock, all of which is 10 to 50 per cent. less in price for the February Sale; or is of a quality conforming to the regular GIMBEL standard.

(2) It is Furniture that we guarantee absolutely for soundness of material and thoroughness of construction. It is correct in style and of the utmost refinement in taste.

(3) It affords—and we earnestly request you to prove this for yourself by COMPARISON—the SAME quality for LESS money, better or BETTER quality for the SAME money, than you will find elsewhere in the city. Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Floors.

BILL FOR CHILDREN'S BUREAU

Plan to Give Five Directors Full Sway Over Youngsters.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Assemblyman A. J. Levy will introduce to-day a bill creating the Children's Bureau of the City of New York. The project is the result of a conference of leading citizens and publicists, and deals generally with the child problem. The measure creates a bureau of five directors, who have exclusive jurisdiction over all children of compulsory school age charged with habitual truancy, incorrigibility, and juvenile delinquency, and over all cases of improper guardianship and violations of the child labor law.

The Board of Education is directed to provide schools for separation of the different classes of delinquent children. The bill also compels the city to maintain a truant officer for every 4,000 children instead of one for every 7,000 or 8,000, as at present.

"To prevent conflict between the Board of Education and the Magistrates," Mr. Levy said to-day, "the power to enforce the law should be vested in the Board of Education, and there should be no divided responsibility between the board and the police courts. The bill provides for the appointment of Directors, who must be men who have had supervisory work over children. The entire matter of enforcing the educational and child labor laws thus is placed in the hands of the Board of Education. I have heard no objection to the bill."

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Bernard Cox, while delivering milk at the Cadillac Hotel, New York City, in October, 1906, had his foot crushed on the freight elevator. He recovered $4,658 in the lower courts, from the hotel company, which was affirmed by the Court of Appeals to-day. The defense was that Cox was using the elevator when injured without permission.

STATE MAY SUPPLY ELECTRICITY TO ALL

Bill to be Introduced for Water Power Plants, with Albany Experimental Station.

COST TO BE CUT IN HALF

Hydro-Electric Centres to Draw on Barge Canal and Other Sources —Lobby Opposes Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—With a lobby in the field to defeat it, a plan will go before the Legislature to-morrow which if enacted will start the State in an experiment of generating and distributing to municipalities in the capital district electric power developed from the surplus waters of the new barge canal. The bill, which probably will be introduced by Senator Murtaugh of Chemung, will go before the lawmaking body with the official backing of Lieut. Gov. Martin H. Glynn, the Conservation Commission, and the city authorities, as well as the Chamber of Commerce of almost every important municipality in the territory adjacent to this city. Advocates of the plan assert for it that it will cut the consumers' bills in two.

The activities of the lobby, which have been marked in the last few days, are directed in particular toward the capital district power scheme, although that plan in itself would hit hard the General Electric Company and the Brady interests, but are against the broader proposition whether the State should enter into active competition with private corporations now dispensing electric power to municipalities and individuals. The oppostion to the scheme is supposed to receive its principal impetus from the interests behind the Long Saulte water power grab, which for the last three years has been engaged in a pussy-footed campaign in Albany, Washington, and Ottawa, with a view to getting official sanction for the project.

Gov. Sulzer, after hearing from Attorney General Carmody a few days ago, sent a message to the Legislature urging the lawmakers to repeal the Long Saulte Company's charter on the ground that it was unconstitutional.

Thin Edge of Power Wedge.

The capital district plan is intended as a small beginning of a general scheme which is to take in all sections of the State with a view to giving municipalities electric current at cost, and to private enterprises and individuals electricity for lighting and power purposes at not more than half present prices. The bill gives the Conservation Commission power to construct and operate plants for the generation of electricity and for supplying current for power and lighting to municipalities, corporations, and individual consumers. The commission is authorized to utilize the surplus waters of the barge canal, as well as any waters that have been stored or impounded by the State for the regulation of the flow of water in the new waterway.

Experts have estimated that something like 100,000 horse power out of a total of 400,000 which the State owns outright can be developed from that source alone.

The bill creates in the Conservation Commission a Division of Hydro-Electric Power for the installation and operation of the State power plant. A Deputy Commissioner is to be in charge of that division, and the commission is to have power of condemnation and the right of constructing transmission lines. The new powers vested in the commission are defined in the bill as follows:

No. 1—To acquire in the name of the people of the State all property required by it in the exercise of its powers.

No. 2—To construct and maintain structures, ways, means, and works in and upon public streets, highways, and places and property owned by the State, outside of the forest preserve.

No. 3—To make or cause to be made plans, specifications, and estimates for its undertakings.

No. 4—To cause examinations and surveys to be made of all property required by it, and for such purposes such commission, its officers and agents, may enter upon any public or private lands or waters.

Other sections provide for the letting of all work in connection with the enterprise as well as the purchase of all materials under a public contract system after extensive advertising. Elaborate provision is made for the making of contracts with municipalities and private enterprises or individuals for the supply of electric current, and for the distribution of funds procured in that manner in a way which ultimately will repay the State for expenditures incurred for construction purposes in a period of fifty years, with 4 per cent. on the investment added.

Power Centres Through State.

The bill provides for the creation of what will be known as hydro-electric districts throughout the State. In each of those districts the plan provides for a central point where a hydro-electric power plant is to be established for the generation and distribution of current throughout the surrounding territory. One such district is mapped out, to be known as the capital district. It includes all territory lying south of a line drawn from the Waterford Dam in the Hudson River to the northernmost boundary of Schnectady to the west of the meridian drawn through the Waterford Dam and to the north of a line joining the southern boundaries of Albany and Schnectady.

It is provided that the commission shall construct at the Barge Canal dam and Crescent and Visscher's Ferry a hydro-electric plant or plants, with such transmission lines and other accessories as the commission may deem necessary. Water never shall be drawn to an extent to impair the navigation or safety of the canals, nor in any event more than three inches below the crest of the dam in the navigation season. To facilitate the utilization of surplus canal waters stored at Crescent and Visscher's Ferry, the State Engineer is directed to expedite the completion of the dam.

The capital district project, according to expert estimates, will involve an initial expenditure of $635,000, with an ultimate gross outlay of $1,600,000. In return, it is estimated roughly that 35,000 horse power will be developed at that point, which is in easy reach of eight such populous industrial centres as Albany, Troy, Schenectary, Waterford, Watervliet, Rensselaer, Green Island, and Cohoes.

Current Travels Short Distances.

The distance from the hydro-electric centre to those communities will vary from six and a half to thirteen and a half miles. The district has a population of 300,000. Communities beyond the district boundaries have asked to be admitted, but in the interest of economy all such applications have been discouraged for the present

The minimum power possibility involved in the project is 12,000 horsepower, which the engineers estimate Crescent and Visscher's Ferry will provide all the year. For from six to nine months in the year, it is estimated that from twice to four times that degree of power can be obtained. The ultimate design is to develop 35,000 horsepower and to establish an auxiliary steam plant to keep up to that load during low water and the peak hour. The State, if the plan is enacted, will take the power to the doors of the municipalities, leaving it to them to erect plants for distribution of the current.

Estimates of the cost of such plants will be supplied by the Conservation Commission and the entire question will be put to the people of a municipality at a special election. Not until the popular verdict has been returned will the State transmit its power to the respective municipalities. A conservative estimate places the cost of current developed by the State at $10 a horsepower, and the estimate of the Conservation Commission experts puts it at $7.50. The distribution plants, it is estimated, will cost for construction about $5 per capita in municipalities.

Kansas Against Referendum.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 4.—The Constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum was defeated in the State Senate to-day. The measure was passed last week by the House. The measure it is probable will not be brought up again at this session of the Legislature.

MRS. McDONALD RECOVERS.

Awarded $2,000 in Suit Against Husband—He Denied Owing It.

The jury in Justice Gavegan's part of the Supreme Court brought in a verdict yesterday afternoon of $2,000 in favor of Mrs. McDonald, who had brought suit against her husband, James P. McDonald, from whom she obtained a separation, with $400 a month alimony, in 1911. Her action was to recover $12,500 which she alleged was due her for the conversion by her husband of furniture and livestock on a farm in Orange County, all of which she declared she paid for with her own money.

When Mrs. McDonald took the stand she was questioned about certain checks which she was said to have received from her husband.

"Early in 1907," she said, looking at a check for $25,000, dated Jan. 24, 1907, "just after I had learned of Mr. McDonald's acts of misconduct and was contemplating bringing an action for absolute divorce, Mr. McDonald came to me and told me that he wished to 'square himself.' I told him that I knew of no way he could do it, but without saying a word he wrote out that check and handed it to me. I dropped my divorce action."

Justice Gavegan turned to her sharply.

"Do you mean to tell me that in return for that money you condoned your husband's offenses?" he asked.

"Not just that," answered Mrs. McDonald somewhat confused. "He was so nice in giving me the present and he promised that he would never let such actions occur again." She identified the remainder of the checks as those which went to the payment of tradespeople.

Mr. McDonald had previously taken the stand and stolidly declared that the furniture and the livestock which his wife accused him of converting were his own.

$1,000,000 IN NICKELS.

Smith College Alumni Starts Out to Raise Them All.

The alumni of Smith College are trying to raise $1,000,000 for the enlargement of the college faculty and to provide increased salaries for the professors. A National campaign has been launched to get the whole of this amount through the collection of nickels. The country has been divided into geographical sections, and on the New York section has fallen the responsibility of raising $300,000. Mrs. William J. Baldwin, Jr., 144 East Fifty-sixth Street, is Chairman of the local Campaign Committee.

Smith College graduates, hundreds in number, canvassed the city yesterday and left strips of cardboard with their friends and relatives. Each strip is a foot long and contains ten slots for as many nickels. Each strip is labeled "Nickel-Plate-Road to the Million Dollar Fund," and when a strip is filled with nickels it is to be sent to Antoinette Putman-Cramer, 322 Lawrence Avenue, Westfield, N. J., the originator of the scheme.

"This is a regular railroad scheme," said Mrs. Barrett Hanson Witherbee, Chairman of the Collection Committee of the class of 1908, yesterday. "Every ten nickels constitute a share in the railroad. A subscriber to the amount of $5 in nickels gets ten shares in the railroad. Any one who subscribes $500 gets 1,000 shares. The owner of 100 shares or more has the privilege of becoming a Director in the road. The owner of 1,000 shares will be made an officer. The person who gets the greatest number of shares will be elected President of the railroad."

"In addition to this scheme, the class of 1908, through Mrs. Witherbee, has arranged for a special performance of "Peg o' My Heart" for Friday afternoon, Feb. 14, at the Cort Theatre. The proceeds will go to the fund.

DR. AKED TO LECTURE HERE.

Coming from San Francisco to Discuss "The Romance of the West."

The Rev. Charles F. Aked, former pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, will arrive in this city on Feb. 21, on a short visit during which he will deliver several lectures on "The Romance of the West." Dr. Aked, who accepted a call to the First Congregational Church of San Francisco in the Spring of 1911, is making the present trip at the request of members of his former congregation in this city, who have arranged his lectures for him. The first will be at the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday morning, Feb. 22, at 11 o'clock. Dr. Aked will also lecture at the Emmanuel Baptist Church in Scranton, Pa., The Peddie Memorial Church in Newark, N. J., and the Tremont Temple in Boston. On Feb. 28, Dr. Aked will speak in favor of votes for women at the suffrage rally at Derby, Conn. During his visit to this city he will stay with Dr. A. R. McMichael, 971 Madison Avenue.

CLAIMS AGAINST PECKWORTH.

Petition in Bankruptcy Filed Against Successful Subway Bidder.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Charles H. Peckworth of 631 Hudson Street by Attorney William R. Hill, representing the E. & J. Narrin Company, holding a claim of $2,110 against Peckworth, the Employers' Liability Association Corporation, Limited, of London, holding a claim of $2,239 and the T. New Construction Company, holding a claim of $502.

These creditors took action, according to their counsel, when it was learned that Peckworth had on Oct. 4, 1912, transferred to the New York County National Bank assignments of building contracts with the City of New York, to be held by the bank as security for other claims.

RAILROAD TEACHES SAFETY.

Pennsylvania Employes See the Needless Risks They Take.

"Safety First" was the subject of a rally of Pennsylvania Railroad employes last night in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium of the new Pennsylvania Station. More than 500 railroad employes attended.

The "safety first" meetings are the outgrowth of the campaign which the employes and officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad have been conducting for several years. The object is to reduce the number of avoidable accidents to employes.

Last night's meeting was addressed by C. B. Keiser, master mechanic; T. J. Skillman, supervisor of signals; L. W. Walker, marine master mechanic; J. V. B. Duer, foreman of motorman, and E. Mandeville, all officials of the Manhattan Division. A number of stereoptican views were shown to illustrate to the employes the needless dangers they run every day.

$250,000 TO MRS. SCHWAB.

Sister-in-Law of Steel Manufacturer Inherits Half of McCreery Fortune.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Esther M. Schwab, sister-in-law of Charles M. Schwab, the steel manufacturer, is the principal beneficiary of the will of Charles McCreery, who died at Denver on Oct. 9. McCreery, who for many years was connected with the Carnegie Steel Company here and later with the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company at Birmingham, Ala., was not related to the Schwab family, but was an intimate friend.

Mrs. Schwab lives at 301 West 106th Street, New York City.

By the terms of the will she gets half of the estate, valued at $250,000, mostly in personal propetrty.

McCreery left Pittsburgh about fifteen years ago. Before that time he was Superintendent for years at the Homestead Mills, and was closely associated with the Schwab family in business and social affairs.

BRIDGE TRAVEL DELAYED.

Fire in Brooklyn Ties Up Surface Cars Bound to Manhattan.

For the second time in two weeks a fire delayed traffic last evening on the Brooklyn Bridge. The blaze this time, however, was not on the bridge, but on the second floor of a three-story building at 251 Washington Street, Brooklyn, a few blocks from the Brooklyn terminal, on a street used by trolley cars running to Manhattan. The fire, which was slight, was in the flat of Mrs. Lena Bader.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS OPPOSE AMENDMENTS

Proposed Higher Tax and Licensing of Private Operators Discussed Before Secretary May.

CHAUFFEURS FAVOR THE LAW

Representative of Organization Resents Statement That They Are Responsible for Most Fatal Accidents.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Representatives of automobile manufacturers and owners and organizations of chauffeurs discussed proposed amendments to the Callan Automobile law to-day before Secretary of State May.

The chief points under consideration were those of licensing owners and all operators of automobiles, and the collection of a tax which will be more equitably distributed than at the present. The manufacturers, owners, and clubs opposed both propositions, while the chauffeurs favored the licensing of all operators of machines in the interest of protecting the public.

"The average chauffeur thinks the average owner is full of liquor, incompetent, and near-sighted," said Frank B. Gilbert, a consulting engineer of New York, "and the owner thinks the chauffeur is a man just out of jail."

Mr. Gilbert said he represented no interest, but was simply an owner with something on his mind.

"I've been arrested for driving too fast; I've been arrested for driving too slow; I've been arrested from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and have never had an accident. My chauffeur has been arrested many times, and has never had an accident. The automobile laws are ridiculous. There isn't a chauffeur with red blood who does not laugh at our laws.

"Let us think of those who are injured. Bond the owner, the chauffeur, or the operator to pay the injured men. Let us make a scientific selection of chauffeurs. You would soon find that no one would go on the bond of a man who was dangerous as an automobile driver"

Ray B. Smith of Syracuse, appearing for the Syracuse Automobile Club, said that the most dangerous driver was the expert who grew careless and tried to turn his machine at right angles. He opposed the plan to require owners to be examined for licenses.

Charles T. Terry, representing the Manufacturers' Association, said that if owners of automobiles were to be licensed then owners of horse-drawn vehicles should also be licensed.

"The trouble is you don't enforce the present law," Mr. Terry said. "How are you going to enforce more laws?"

The statement that chauffeurs and taxicab drivers were responsible for most of the fatal accidents was resented by James T. Rurt of the Chauffeurs' Union of New York. He said that owners or owners' sons were responsible for those who were killed.

"You read of young Astor speeding along the roads at Rhinebeck and nearly colliding with another vehicle," he said. "It is only fair that all operators should be licensed, and no one should be licensed under 21 years of age."

Complaint was made by Joseph Flacke of the Chauffeurs' Protective Association that owners who had physical defects were permitted to operate cars. He said there were many owners who could not see the radiator cap on a machine. He declared a man was operating a car in Albany who could not hear a car behind him, and that he used an ear trumpet.

Albert J. Callan, a former Assemblyman, who introduced the present law, said that New York City had the power under the law to enact its own measures for its protection from automobile abuses. He believed that many complaints were due to the failure to enforce the present law, and not to the law itself.

Andrew G. Andrews expressed the belief that each operator should be compelled to fill out a form, showing that his sight and hearing were not defective, and that he had no physical defects.

The proposition to increase the automobile tax was strongly opposed by Mr. Terry.

"If you are going to raise the tax," he said, "we will fight to the last ditch and take the bayonet."

He said the tax in New York now was higher than in three-fourths of the States, and as high as in any other State. He disputed the right of the State to single out the owner of an automobile and tax him, while other users of the highways escape without tax.

The question of a higher automobile registration fee, and of transferring the Automobile Bureau from the office of the Secretary of State to the Highway Department will be taken up next week by the Governor's Investigating Committee.

TEST OF COTTON DRAFTS.

Case in Federal Court Affects Actions Involving $4,500,000.

A suit begun yesterday in the Federal District Court before Judge Holt and a jury, though nominally only for a matter of $7,320, is in the nature of a test action, and on the verdict may depend other cases involving $4,500,000.

A. Hannay & Co., cotton merchants of Liverpool, are suing the Guaranty Trust Company on account of a draft for about $7,320, made by Knight, Yancey & Co., insolvent cotton merchants of Decatur, Ala. The trust company discounted this when it was accompanied by a bill of lading for 100 bales of cotton marked "R. S. M. I.," and it was sent to England. There it was accepted by the Bank of England and paid when it fell due, the amount being charged to the account of A. Hannay & Co.

It turned out, it is alleged, that the bill of lading was forged, and the English firm is now claiming that the Guaranty Trust Company should refund them their loss on the ground that the draft on its face was drawn against the specific bales of cotton described therein. By discounting the bill it is claimed the Guaranty Trust Company warranted that the cotton had been actually shipped, and the bill of lading was genuine.

Knight, Yancey & Co., it is said, drew a number of similar drafts, which were discounted by the trust companies in this country when accompanied by cotton bills of lading, which afterward turned out to be spurious.

Technical evidence as to the mechanism of exchange was given yesterday by Fred Van Gerpen, a banker at 15 William Street. The suit will be continued to-day.

ACCUSE WOMAN'S GUARDIAN.

New York Trust Company Charges He Made Her a Pauper Patient.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum signed an order yesterday directing William S. McHenry of Rome, Ga., to show cause on March 5, why he should not be removed as committee of the person of his insane sister, Mrs. Marion Bozeman, divorced wife of Dr. Nathan Bozeman, of Freeport, L. I. McHenry will have an opportunity to answer charges against him as the basis of the New York Trust Company's application for his removal.

Mrs. Bozeman was adjudged incompetent in 1895. Her husband got a North Dakota divorce from her in 1899 and was succeeded by Mr. McHenry as committee of her person. He got an order from Justice Truax allowing him to remove her to his home in Rome, Ga.

The trust company, as custodian of Mrs. Bozeman's $33,000 estate, has been paying the income of this fund to Mr. McHenry. Its officers submitted to the court an affidavit by Joseph R. Werner, who said that Mrs. Bozeman was confined in the Georgia State Sanitarium as a pauper patient under the name of Mrs. Marion McHenry. Warner said that he had learned that a sheriff's jury had pronounced Mrs. Bozeman a lunatic under the name of McHenry in the house of the committee of her person. Warner said that she was never visited by her brother and that an allowance of $30 a month would provide her with a special attendant, better food, and many comforts.

LEAK KILLS GASFITTER.

Paulists Vainly Attempt to Revive Employe—Pulmotor Fails.

John O'Connor, 50 years old, of 870 Jennings Street, the Bronx, was overcome by gas in the basement of the Columbus Press Printing Company, 120 West Sixtieth Street, last night, and although discovered twenty minutes after being attacked by the gas, the efforts of three Paulist Fathers, the doctors of the Roosevelt Hospital, and the application of a pulmotor were unavailing in effecting his restoration. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Louis Booth.

O'Connor was a gasfitter employed by the Paulist Fathers, who have a home at Fifty-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue and own the printing plant and the building in which O'Connor was killed. He was sent into the basement of the printing plant last night in company with a helper, Michael David of 221 West Sixteenth Street, to fix a leak. The leak proved to be of greater size than anticipated, and David left O'Connor in the basement to go for more tools. When he returned he found the gasfitter unconscious on the floor.

Fine Feathers do not always make fine Birds, but Fine Women always dress appropriately and with some hint of personality. One reason for this growing American Fashions sentiment is that America is full of FINE
Women. Hence the demand for more distinctiveness than Paris seems able to give an adoring public so far away and so different. Therefore The Times's American Fashions Prize Designs are not mere furbelows and

PILGRIMS SAY CANAL TREATY WAS MISREAD

Joseph H. Choate Tells Society Hay and Pauncefote Meant Only Just What They Wrote.

BRYCE SPOKESMAN AGREES

We Must Keep the Faith, All Insist, and End a "Perfectly Insignificant Difficulty."

Pilgrims of the United States gathered 500 strong at the Waldorf last evening to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the founding of their organization and to consecrate anew their pledge of eternal friendship between the United States and the United Kingdom.

Anglo-Americanism was the watchword of the evening and international cameraderie inspired the words of every speaker. The Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack were woven together in the decorations of the grand ballroom, and picked out in electric lights upon the wall were golden letters which spelled "Hands Across the Sea."

The first toast was to the President of the United States, and the second was to His Gracious Majesty, George V., King of England. Americans and Englishmen rose to the toasts when they were proposed by ex-Ambassador Choate, and it was a full chorus that sang first "The Star Spangled Banner" and then "God Save the King." There were greetings from President Taft read aloud and there were cabled greetings from King George and from Queen Alexandria.

It was an evening of international amity, and because of this, perhaps, it was impossible for any of the speakers who spoke seriously to keep away from the question of the latter-day interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. It cropped up again and again through the evening, making its first appearance when Mr. Choate read the cabled greetings of Field Marshal Earl Roberts, President of the British Pilgrims.

"One of the great fighters, gentlemen, said Mr. Choate, "and a man of war but he would look upon a war between his country and ours as one of the most barbarous, unnatural, unthinkable contests ever waged. The Pilgrims were formed to promote everlasting peace between his country and ours, and I, for one, have no fear of a failure now as we approach the hundredth year of the peace between us, or in any future time. We are united in sentiment, united in objects. We might have fought a dozen times in those last hundred years, but the peace has been preserved. And what has preserved it? Good faith, gentlemen.

"Our People Will Keep the Faith."

"Our present difficulty," he continued, and the room grew stiller as he spoke, "our present difficulty is not half so serious as a half dozen differences that have preceded it. I see nothing in it that cannot be settled by an adherence to the principles of good faith and honor. I had something to say about that treaty—I will not say it is a bone of contention, for I have heard no gnawing as yet—which has caused, let us say, this little difference.

"If ever two men deserved the gratitude of their respective nations, and each of the other's nation, those men were John Hay and Lord Pauncefote, perfectly plain, straightforward men who believed that it was their part to say what they meant and to mean what they said, and to express in perfectly clear English what was in their own minds. And, gentlemen, when they said that the ships of all nations should have free and equal passage through the canal without any discrimination whatsoever, they meant just that. They lived and died without ever once suspecting that their words were capable of any other meaning that was borne on the face of them. But the wit of man passeth all understanding, and different meanings have been discovered now. Well, refer it to the Pilgrims. It is just a little puzzle after all, and the only question now is how to put it together.

"The people will allow no Congress, no Government, no President, to break the good faith they have pledged. There have been 100 years of peace. In a hundred years more the population o fthis Nation will have grown to 500,000,000, and the population of England in proportion. How will they keep the peace? There is only one way. Let them keep good faith, these peoples. Let them keep their word. And I for one am not afraid."

Unfair Treaties Should Be Torn Up.

Ambassador Bryce did not attend—Mr. Choate feared he had been dined too much—but sent the First Secretary of the Embassy, Mr. Mitchell Innes, to represent him. He too spoke of the "little difficulty" of the tolls.

"The relations between two nations," he said, "ought to be the relations between two gentlemen. There is nothing in the world so foolish as a diplomatic victory. Any man who thinks he is getting the better of another in a bargain is not fooling the other man half so much as himself; and should any treaty exist between my country and yours which gave one of our nations the better bargain, I, for one, would advise its being torn up.

"I bring from Mr. Bryce a message of constant friendship and good will. The difficulty of which Mr. Choate has spoken is perfectly insignificant and is nothing which cannot be solved without the slightest difficulty—if not immediately, then before long."

There were cheers for Mr. Bryce then, and cheers for Mr. Choate. Mr. Bryce was described as one who loved America and Americans fully as well as he loved England and the English, while Mr. Choate was described as one whose name was a household word throughout the United Kingdom. This last came from Harry E. V. Brittain—"Great Brittain"—who crossed the Atlantic especially to attend the dinner in behalf of the British Pilgrims, and who, with the Right Rev. William Boyd Carpenter, Canon of Westminster, and Sir Ernest Shackleton, represented the most important British contribution to the celebration of the Pilgrim anniversary

Quotes Simeon Ford on the Seal.

Mr. Brittain brought down the house when he quoted Simeon Ford as having given this description of the Pilgrim seal reproduced upon the menu, a cut of a Chaucerian pilgrim on a horse, with an eagle and a lion all fitted in:

"I see thereon depicted a likeness of Chauncey Depew wearing a marked-down Roger-Peet mackintosh, mounted either on a palfrey or a charger. I couldn't tell which, but the Senator being a railroad man and therefore slow pay, it was probably a charger. On the southerly exposure of the charger sits a bird which looks like a cross between the American eagle and a Vermont dry-picked turkey, and by his side stalks the British lion with a slight twist in his tail, looking as if the eagle has been trying to take a fall out of him. Underneath is the Latin inscription 'Hic et ubique,' which, being translated, means 'Children under 5 years of age must pay full fare.'"

Part of the gayety of the evening attended the presentation, with the athletic assistance of R. A. C. Smith, of a great silver trophy to Pilgrim George T. Wilson of the Equitable, and a silver loving cup to Pilgrim William Curtis Demorest. The list of notables at the dinner makes up nearly the entire seating list. The speakers' table was so long that it turned at both sides of the room.

Among those at the dinner were Justice Newburger, Justice Hendrick, Justice Greenbaum, John Barrett, Commissioner William Edwards, J. Van Vechten Olcott, Col. Daniel Appleton, Stewart L. Woodford, Bishop Greer, President Finley of City College, Alton B. Parker, John Purroy Mitchel, Seth Low, Major Gen. O'Ryan, Borough President McAneny, Justice Erlanger, Justice Davis, Controller Prendergast, Henry Harper Benedict, Robert Adamson, Harrison Grey Fiske, Darwin P. Kingsley, George F. Kunz, John G. Millburn, Rollo Ogden, F. Cunliffe Owen, Isaac N. Seligman, Rear Admiral Sigsbee, John A. Sleicher, John B. Stanchfield, and Gen Thomas L. Watson.

WON'T CUT RATES TO CANADA.

Austro-American Line Fears to Stimulate Emigration Artificially.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 4.—The Austro-American Shipping Company announces that it has decided not to cut passenger rates between Trieste and Canada lest it should artificially stimulate emigration to the Dominion. The company's rate will remain at 165 kronen ($33) for passage, although the Canadian Pacific rate has been reduced to 140 kronen, ($28.)

The Austro-American Line has bought the twin-screw liner Bologna, with a displacement of 17,000 tons, and a registered capacity of 11,500 tons. She is 500 feet long, and has accommodations for 3,500 persons.

TO SETTLE TRUST QUESTION.

1913 Club Wants Federal Control and Voluntary Dissolution.

A plan to lessen the powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and increase the powers of the United States Commerce Court, is a part of the programme of the National 1913 Club, a trade organization, under the leadership of S. J. Frank, a lawyer of 507 Fifth Avenue. The intentions of the organization, which already numbers in its membership a large proportion of the country's automobile manufacturers as well as all the members of the New York Garage Association, nearly all the other garage owners in the city and representatives of other trades were explained last night.

There are no fees connected with it, either in the form of membership, dues, contributions or other payment. Its basic purpose was announced as the placing of all trades on a higher plane and an attempt to secure specific and accurate definitions of what was and what was not legal under the Sherman anti-trust law, in view of the probability of the rigid enforcement of that act under the coming Administration.

It is the primary intention of the movement to cause legislation to be enacted to change the regulatory powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to powers of supervision. "There should be a plan that will place this control," says the pamphlet, "in the hands of an improved Federal commercial judiciary, as an auxiliary to the Federal civil judiciary." The outline of the movement, written by Mr. Frank, then continues:

> Such a court should have exclusive jurisdiction over the enforcement of inter-State commerce laws, and should settle all disputed questions of fact and equity, and adjust all misunderstandings between producers and consumers, shippers and common carriers, employers and employes, &c., by means of arbitration based on the compulsory principle, when no question of legal right is involved. Should a legal question be involved the United States Commerce Court would have power to pass upon the facts, and determine a working basis pending decision by the United States Civil Court.
> Under such a system of auxiliary Federal commercial judiciary Congress should enact a compulsory registration law that will compel every State corporation transacting business among the several State to register with such a court.
>
> The effect of such registration is to render both the corporation and its members, including employes, subject to the jurisdiction and protection of the Commerce Court, as to all matters pertaining to their general welfare. Under such a law corporations should be permitted to fix prices, rates, and wages, subject to review by the court, on the complaint of a petitioner as to any contention that prices or rates are excessive and wages low.
>
> A compulsory registration law should compel registered corporations to arbitrate every dispute affecting business interests, because it is of vital importance to good government that no such disputes should exist. On the other hand, the Commerce Court should have power to create a special board of arbitrators composed of experts in the particular trade to which a dispute relates, equally divided over which a Chief Justice and Associate Justices should preside.

The plan calls for a voluntary dissolution of all trade combinations, each trade to have a National exchange to exert the functions of a clearing house for that trade, and have the power to regulate the commerce of the industry under the supervision of the Commerce Court.

It is the present plan to continue an educational campaign and then call a National convention after March 4.

SAYS GAYNOR SPOKE FALSELY

And R. H. Montgomery of Methodist Union Adds Mayor Knew He Did.

Mayor Gaynor was criticised for his attitude toward the social evil in New York, and fault was found with the management of the police force at the dinner of the Methodist Social Union at the Aldine Club last night, at which the topic was "The Rejuvenation of New York."

The criticism of the Mayor was based on the views he expressed before the New York University Forum a few weeks ago. Robert H. Montgomery, President of the union, asserted that many of the Mayor's statements were false, and that he believed the Mayor knew they were false when he made them.

Later in the evening Bishop Luther B. Wilson, resident Bishop of the Methodist Church in this city, asserted that it was time the people united to put in office "men clear of eye, logical of brain, and brave of heart."

The speakers included Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss, William J. Burns, and W. A. Marble, Vice President of the Merchants' Association. Mr. Moss said it was a pity a full report of the Grand Jury investigation into the relation between crime and the police force was not given out.

"I know very well," he said, "that the average number of complaints of burglars made to the Police Department is 20,000 a year. There are as many more complaints of larceny. The sad part of it is that the great majority of these crimes are committed by boys and young men. It is true also that the gangs, pests of neighborhoods, are not yet controlled by the police. Many of the policemen are afraid to deal with these gangsters severely, because they fear complaints will be made against them."

In some sections, he said, the gangsters laughed at the police. He had found one case where a policeman did not fire on a criminal who fired at him, because he didn't want to risk his job.

Mr. Moss said the problem could not be solved by the conviction of a few.

"You know now, when you read about Fox, how many more there must be," he said.

Detective Burns told of his San Francisco experiences and praised District Attorney Whitman and Moss for their work here, predicting that they would "get to the top" just as the investigators in San Francisco had by "getting the little fellow first and then working up."

"That's where they are going now with the aid of an awakened public conscience," he concluded.

SPRAIGHT INTERPRETS JINGLE

English Reader Gives Chapters from Pickwick Papers.

Frank Spraight, who has obtained a high reputation in England for his interpretations of Dickens's novels, gave a reading from Pickwick Papers at the Hudson Theatre yesterday afternoon. He selected those chapters that brought in Alfred Jingle, and the skill with which he conveyed to the audience the personalities of Jingle, Mr. Pickwick, Old Wardle, and the fat boy showed that he had a keen appreciation of Dickens's work and great versatility as an actor.

Outside of the fidelity with which Mr. Spraight portrayed the well-loved personages of Dickens's masterpiece, the accuracy and certainty with which he repeated the text of the seven chapters, which he interpreted yesterday, was in itself an unusual feat in memorizing.

TARIFF A MENACE, SAYS SENATOR GORE

Oklahoman Tells Retail Dry Goods Men That Revision Will Be Thorough.

NO PERIL IN FREE TRADE

This Country, He Says, Could Follow Great Britain with Triumphant Commercial Results.

Speaking before 200 members of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, which represents some $100,000,000 of capital in cities throughout the country, United States Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma expressed the belief that the coming extra session of Congress would break all records for celerity, thoroughness, and justice as well in a revision of the tariff. Senator Gore, introduced as "a Democrat who stands for protection, a new kind of protection—protection for the ultimate consumer"—denounced the tariff system as the chief obstacle, instead of a help to the commerce of the country, and said he saw no reason why this country should not successfully follow the example of Great Britain in changing from a country of the highest form of protection, even to free trade, not only without harm, but with triumphant extension of her trade and prosperity.

Senator Gore was the chief speaker at the dinner. Charles Henry Strong, Jr., of Cleveland, President of the association, was toastmaster, and with him at the speakers' table were Borough President McAneny, Harold Remington, counsel for the association; Donald Dey, President of Day Brothers & Co. of Syracuse; John McNaught, representing the Panama Exposition; William J. Burns, the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, A. M. Cooper, W. R. Owen, and George H. O'Connor.

Despite his disclaimer of speaking for the incoming Administration or any one except himself, Senator Gore's speech on the tariff and other trade problems confronting the country's Government was eagerly awaited by the assembled merchants.

"If you ask me as merchants, 'What of the future'?" said the Senator. "I answer, 'Be of good cheer, the morrow cometh. There is no occasion for distrust, there will be no occasion for despair.' There are in the Government now, those who are clear-sighted enough to see that existing conditions are not the best conditions for their country, and that better ones can be brought about. They are wise enough to know, too, that 'Too Swift' arrives as tardy as 'Too Slow.'

"To-day Germany is coming to be the terror, if not of the commercial world at least of all those who bear testimony before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington. Now I indulge the pleasing hope concerning our own Republic, that the American is a match for any people under the sun.

"There are two fundamentally different theories with respect to trade. One holds that in every transaction one party gains and the other loses. The other, to which I myself subscribe, holds that in every legitimate transaction both parties are benefited. When we close our doors to keep imports out we automatically close our doors against getting exports out. We cannot do one without the other. Congress has appropriated $50,000,000 to improve our rivers and harbors simply to facilitate trade. What difference is there between casting rocks into our rivers and harbors to obstruct trade and raising a high tariff wall to obstruct it? Or what difference between deepening the harbors to let trade in and lowering the taxes to let trade in?

"I believe it is better for the ultimate consumer, better for the merchant, that these tariff barriers be minimized. It is better to do a large volume of business on a small profit than a small volume of business on a large profit.

"I hold no brief for the incoming Administration, but I may say that the country has emphatically decreed a revision of the tariff, and the country should be dealt with fairly and honestly. I hope the forthcoming extra session will break all records of the past and set a signal example for all future extra sessions for celerity as well as for the justice of all the revisions it is to make. The revisions will not be revolutionary, not calculated to uproot or turn over existing business. When we decide upon a surgical operation, we do not use a battle-axe, but the most delicate as well as the most efficient of surgical instruments."

Senator Gore said that two other problems to the solution of which the coming session of Congress would address itself would be the removal of minimizing of obstructions to trade placed in the way of the country's traders by monopolies and voluntary agreements of big business and the minimizing of commercial and industrial panics, which, he added, were as absurd and unnecessary as epidemics of preventable diseases.

Donald Dey, President of Dey Brothers & Co. of Syracuse, defended the American department stores against recent magazine attacks.

"The merchants of America need no defense nor encomium from me. There they stand, pillars of strength from sea to sea," he said. "To my mind the most worthy and useful class of persons on a payroll in this broad land is the women teachers in our great public schools. If there is another class equal to them it is the self-respecting, ambitious saleswoman and office women who are to be found meeting their problems of life, assuming tasks of business importance and often great family burdens, and discharging both with credit to themselves.

"None regrets more keenly the economic pressure on the poor than the merchants; none feels more keenly the falling by the wayside of the weak. Perhaps no others deal with more kindly consideration for the erring ones. We ask of these powerful publishing organizations to present a true picture of the store and its vital throbbing life. The life of a derelict does not give a truthful impression of a store. When the next installment of the muck-raking specialist comes to your counter, if it is illogical and unfair, stating, perhaps, facts, but conveying a wrong impression, collect the copies in a truck and dump them in the furnace. They will there help to heat the building, and may save a weak-minded young woman from starting on the road for a well-known place, also of a high temperature.

"JER-U-SEE-LUM" WON'T DO.

Singer's Pronunciation Offends Huntington Rector.

Miss Gladys Dean of Huntington, Long Island, according to the Rev. Charles E. Cragg, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church of Huntington, recited or chanted the word "Je-ru-sa-lem" in such a manner as to make her "an object of ridicule to many." According to the clergyman, Miss Dean so far offended as to call the city "Jer-u-see-lum."

So shocked was the rector that he straightway sat down and wrote the following letter to Miss Dean.

> My Dear Miss Dean: Although naturally unknown to you, I take the liberty of calling your attention to a defect in your entertainment of last evening that perhaps you may be able to remedy before it is given to-night.
>
> I refer to the pronunciation of the word "Jerusalem" by the lady who sang or, rather, intoned "The Holy City." She pronounced the word "Jer-u-see-lum" when, of course, as you know, it should be "Jer-u-sa-lem." The syllable "sa" should be pronounced as if it were "ser" or "sar."
>
> It seems only a little thing, but it made the whole number an object of ridicule to many, which is particularly unfortunate with anything that should have an atmosphere of reverence. Yours very sincerely,
>
> CHARLES E. CRAGG.

The Huntington Historical Society gave an entertainment Friday night in which Miss Dean was the principal. It is said that the Rev. Mr. Cragg did not know when he wrote the letter that it was Miss Dean herself who sang "The Holy City." When Miss Dean received the letter her eyes became so blurred that she had difficulty in reading it the second and third time. When her friends learned of the criticism they took sides with ther immediately, contending her rendition of "The Holy City" could not well be improved upon. Her way of pronouncing "Jerusalem," they say, is above reproach.

The Rev. Mr. Cragg said to-night the matter was too small to talk about. He was interested only in having a beautiful religious piece of music rendered in a manner which should in no way detract from its dignity and reverence.

PRAISE HEARN'S PART IN ART AND BUSINESS

Many Well-Known New Yorkers Attend the Dinner in Honor of Merchant.

ARTISTS JOIN BUSINESS MEN

Speakers Call Him Foremost Patron of Untried and Unrecognized American Students.

About 150 business men, artists and art collectors gathered at Sherry's last night at the complimentary dinner to George A. Hearn, the drygoods merchant. A number of friends of Mr. Hearn agreed a few weeks ago that it was time to pay him honor as a merchant prince and patron of American art, and the speakers last night thought that no praise was too great to be just to their guest of honor.

Mr. Hearn, who is 78 years old, heard many flattering reviews of his career, chiefly in respect to his devotion to the interests of art in this country.

Before the speaking began letters were read from Mayor Gaynor, Joseph H. Choate, Senator Root, John W. Alexander, Frank R. Lawrence, Howard Russell Butler, George M. Smiley, A. Barton Hepburn, Benjamin Altman, St. Clair McKelway, and Thomas M. Mulry.

The first speaker was Borough President McAneny, who turned a number of compliments for the guest of honor and said that the city government, through the individuals who composed it, recognized Mr. Hearn as a representative of the finest type of citizenship.

William T. Evans, an old friend of Mr. Hearn, reviewed his life from the time that he was a clerk in the business of his father, James A. Hearn. The firm, now James A. Hearn & Son, was next to the oldest dry goods business in this city, Mr. Evans said. He also described Mr. Hearn as one of the pioneer art collectors of America and as the best friend of the American painter.

Franklin W. Hooper of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences mentioned the gifts of Mr. Hearn to the Metropolitan Museum, and added that it was largely through his encouragement that the National Museum of Art in Washington had been founded. Bernard H. Ridder spoke in praise of Mr. Hearn as a man of business, and said that if his example had been followed by other men of his generation we would not be facing social unrest in this country at present. Other speakers were Catholina Lambert, John B. Claflin, and Charles A. Meek. The toastmaster was Benedict J. Greenhut.

Among those present were the Rev. George Alexander, R. Ross Appleton, Frederick P. Bellamy, Arthur Brisbane, Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, Joseph J. Delafield, William M. Chase, Bishop Courtney, Isaac Gimbel, Louis Gimbel, the Rev. Percy S. Grant, Capt. Joseph B. Greenhut, Nelson J. Greenhut, John R. Butler, Roland F. Knoedler, Adolph Lewisohn, Alexander MacLachlan, William C. Reick, Herman Ridder, Henry Siegel, Jerome Siegel, Commissioner Henry S. Thompson, Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson, William R. Willcox, Rodman Wanamaker, and Police Commissioner Waldo.

EGYPTIAN FETE A FINE SPECTACLE

HELD IN A RIOT OF COLOR

J. W. Alexander, Impersonating a Mummy, Brought to Life Before Supper—Hedwig Reicher Queen.

The Egyptian fête given last night by Louis C. Tiffany in his studio at 345 Madison Avenue was a social spectacle of wonderful brilliancy, and in point of grandeur in costume art it eclipsed any fancy dress function ever presented in New York.

It was a historical pageant of the time of Cleopatra, and every costume worn both by the spectators and those who took part in the programme had first been passed on by acknowledged authorities on art costumes. As a result the immense studio took on the real atmosphere of the ancient city of Alexandria. when the world and his wife assembled to pay homage to the great Cleopatra. Egyptians, Nomad tribes, Greeks, Syrians, Arabs, Persians, barbarians, and Romans all mingled in one amazing riot of color.

It was 10 o'clock before the guests began to arrive, and the Roman lictors, who policed the ancient city, and stunning Egyptian beauties, some with gigantic scarab wings, together with veiled women of the Orient and bare-legged youth in leopard skins, were whisked up to the fourth floor of the studio building in a modern elevator. Scattered here and there were tanned Egyptians, who were Pinkerton men in Oriental disguise, and they were detailed for the evening, for the studio contains wonderful treasures in art.

The entire south end of the studio had been transformed into a panorama, representing a wide terrace ovelooking the sea at Alexandria. The tops of palm arees and the masts of ships showed above the terrace walls, and steps lead down from the rear as well as from the front of the terrace to the floor of the room, where the several hundred guests were seated on rugs when the first bar of music by concealed musicians from the Philharmonic orchestra announced the beginning of the pageant.

First came a water sprinkler with his sheepskin slung on his hip, then women bearing jugs on their heads, followed by Egyptian soldiers and merchants, whose huge bales of merchandise were carried by porters on their backs. The merchandise, including gold from the South, textiles from the East, rare glass and golden vessels from Syria, and costly rugs, were spread out upon the terrace steps. All this time fakirs were plying their tricks at the foot of the steps.

The chief eunuch then appeared, followed by some priests. Then came four negroes, their bare backs and legs shining like ebony, bearing an empty palanquin of the Queen. The slave dealers now appeared with their fair slaves, who danced and sang for the benefit of the prospective purchasers.

Presently the Queen was announced, and she appeared in her palanquin, preceded by the eunuch, priests, and attendants. Beautiful children in quaint Egyptian costumes romped before the palanquin, scattering thousands of lotus flower petals in her path. The entire assembly prostrated themselves as Cleopatra stepped from her palanquin. She bought lavishly from the merchants, and when Antony joined her they sat upon a crimson divan and were entertained by dancers.

After the dancers had gone the guests were marshaled by the lictors in groups upon the stage, and each one in turn made their obeisance to Cleopatra. Then Antony, at the end of the pantomime, with the guests grouped according to nationality of costume, recited some verses translated from Arrgi's "Nuits Egyptiennes."

Cleopatra was represented by Miss Hedwig Reicher and Pedro de Cordova was Antony. Ruth St. Denis was the girl dancer and Iolaus the boy dancer. Mrs. Graham Lusk, Mrs. Gurdon S. Parker, Mrs. Rodman Gilder, and Miss Dorothy Tiffany were the Queen's attendants, and the flower boys and girls included little Miss Dorothy and Ethel Stewart, and William and Sheldon Stewart.

Mrs. Donn Barber, attired as a slave girl, also danced, and Miss Greta Torpadie, another slave, won applause by her weird Egyptian song. Mrs. Langdon Geer, Mrs. J. Otis Post, Mrs. Bowler, Mrs. Brunner, Mrs. Hartwell, Mrs. Robins, Mrs. Greenley, and Miss Davis were also numbered among the slaves, and some of them played strange sounding instruments and ancient tambourines.

Miss Marion Hague and Miss Dorothea Gilder appeared as water carriers, and Ellwood Hendrick was chief eunuch. Donn Barber and Thomas Robins were the slave dealers, and Arnold W. Brunner a priest. Dr. John A. Hartwell was a Roman General, and Langdon Geer, Howard Creebley, Paul Dougherty, and Austin Strong were Romans.

Those who passed on the costumes were J. Lindon Smith of Boston, who prepared the pageant; Francis Tonetti, John W. Alexander, and Mrs. Edward P. Sperry. Mr. Alexander appeared as an Egyptian mummy, wrapped in mummy cloth and with a head piece and eyes for the soul, all so natural that he appeared to have stepped out of a case in the Metropolitan Museum. He stood motionless, leaning against the wall of the terrace during the pageant, and was finally brought to life before supper was served. Mrs. Sperry went as Taia, an Egyptian, and Mr. Sperry was an East Indian.

Among the brilliant costumes among the spectators were those worn by Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Mrs. John B. Claflin, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. Edward S. Harkness, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Mrs. Cleveland Dodge, Mrs. Robert W. de Forest, Miss Dorothy Roosevelt, and Mrs. George W. Seligman.

Mrs. C. B. Alexander's costume was of the archaic Greek period of dull blue silk tissue. Mr. Alexander was a wealthy Arabian merchant. Mrs. Rodman Gilder impersonated the Goddess Isis, with draperies of white, yellow, and blue. Mrs. J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., wore a Minerva costume consisting of white draperies with an Athenian headdress and a wonderful robe. Mr. Rockefeller appeared as a Persian.

Mrs. Cass Gilbert wore an orange colored robe with veils of shaded orange and yellow, held by a gold bandeau with jewels. Mr. Gilbert was a persian merchant in flowing robes of blue, with a scarf of dull crimson silk, and a headdress banded with jewels. Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany wore a Cleopatra costume of stunning effect. Miss Dorothy Roosevelt was a Persian, Mrs. Robert Bonner appeared as a Tanagra, Mrs. John B. Claflin as a Hindu woman, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. de Forest as a Maharajah and Maharanee of Punjab. Mrs. Allen E. Whitman was a slave girl, bearing a jug of rose water, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnston de Forest the Rajah and Ranee of Surat. Henry L. de Forest was a fan bearer.

Mrs. Pierre Mali wore a Syrian costume, and Henry E. Coe was in Persian attire. Dr. and Mrs. Edward K. Dunham were Hindus, and Mrs. Hiram Bingham was in Arabian dress. Mrs. W. B. Devereux was also in Arabian costume, and Mrs J. C. Greenleaf was a Roman slave. Mrs. Edward S. Harkness's costume represented Zuleika Potiphar's wife, being blue and gold with jewels, and Mr. Harkness wore an Egyptian dress. George W. Seligman was an Arabian sheik and Mrs. Seligman a Greek water bearer. Mrs. Arthur Swann's costume was also Arabian, and Miss Agnes Fowler was a Grecian girl.

Howard Mansfield appeared as a Mede, Irving Wiles as an Egyptian, Howard R. Butler as a camel driver, Mrs. Butler as a Greek water bearer, Loyall Farragut was a Hindu, Mrs. William A. W. Stewart an Egyptian, and Mrs. Anderson Fowler, a Roman woman.

The invitations issued by Mr. Tiffany for the fête contained cryptic words in greeting, being in the form of a booklet, handsomely bound and illuminated.

MERRILL AGAIN ACCUSED.

Clarke Auto Theft Case Resubmitted to Queens Grand Jury.

The charge that ex-District Attorney Merrill of Queens County was implicated in the disappearance of an automobile owned by Bert S. Clarke and his wife, Mrs. Lucille Clarke, of 7 Spencer Place, Brooklyn, from a garage in Woodhaven in October was resubmitted to the present Queens County Grand Jury yesterday at the direction of Justice Garretson. Amie Fritz, garage proprietor, and Bierack, a chauffeur, who were indicted for grand larceny recently, are both now under $2,000 bail awaiting trial, while the charge against Mr. Merrill was dismissed by Judge Humphrey on the ground that the evidence given at the time of the finding of the other indictments did not show that Mr. Merrill was implicated.

While returning from an automobile ride in October Clarke and his wife had a disagreement when Mr. Clarke, who was driving the machine, got out and left Mrs. Clarke sitting in the automobile alone. She had it taken to Fritz's garage, and a dispute over the question of its ownership followed in the Police Court, during which Mr. Merrill says he was engaged by Mrs. Clarke to sue her husband for separation, but the couple became reconciled and the action was dropped. When they went to look for their machine it had disappeared, and it was after months of searching that detectives found it in Greenwich, Conn.

DIVORCE FOR SCHOOLGIRL.

Lorena Perry Hegeman Now Free to Finish Her Education.

Supreme Court Justice Newburger signed an interlocutory decree of divorce yesterday in favor of Lorena Perry Hegeman against Joseph Lacombe Hegeman and ended a schoolgirl's romantic marriage which was never acknowledged until proceedings for divorce were under way.

Mrs. Hegeman is the daughter of Romanzo Nelson Perry of Memphis, Tenn. In the Fall of 1911 she entered a girl's school on Riverside Drive and soon met Hegeman. In the Summer of 1912 they were married secretly at City Hall. The climax came when Mrs. Hegeman left school one holiday, went to the garage where her husband was employed and found that he had gone riding with a girl named "Nell," who was named as co-respondent in the suit which terminated yesterday. Mrs. Hegeman first informed her parents of her marriage when she heard of her husband's fondness for "Nell," and detectives were employed to trail him, which resulted in evidence which gave her the divorce. Mrs. Hegeman is only eighteen years old and is still attending school.

BERGSON STANDS BY WILL.

It Will Master Intelligence Always, He Says in Lecture at Columbia.

Henri Bergson, the French philosopher, had another record-breaking audience at Columbia University yesterday, when he delivered the second of his lectures on "Spirituality and Liberty." There were 2,000 applications for tickets. Prof. Bergson discussed the new philosophy and its bearing on liberty. The will, he said, was the complete master of intelligence and the creating factor of life. After defining his terms, the French philosopher then discussed the old philosophical doctrine of fatalism and its antithesis, free will. Midway between these two doctrines Dr. Bergson took his stand.

As an example, he mentioned the remarkable rise of Napoleon, whose hereditary influences would naturally have made him a Corsican lawyer, but whose free will took him to Paris, where the environment of the French revolution and other important factors overcame natural destiny.

JOHN J. WALSH A MAGISTRATE

Mayor in Appointing Him Says a Few Things About Abuses.

Mayor Gaynor yesterday appointed Third Deputy Police Commissioner John J. Walsh a City Magistrate to succeed the late Moses J. Harris of Brooklyn. The Mayor cautioned the new magistrate about the needless issuing of warrants. This is his letter:

City of New York.
Feb. 4, 1913.

Dear Sir: I appoint you a Magistrate to succeed the late Magistrate Harris. You have heretofore served as Magistrate to the satisfaction of the entire community, and you will now be one of the model Magistrates again. You will help to carry out my purpose of elevating the bench of Magistrates. You will help to carry out the policy of not locking up people for trivial offenses in advance of trial.

Instead of warrants being issued against persons of fair standing in the community who are accused of minor offenses, the better course is to summon or notify them to appear. In that way they escape being taken by force and locked up or bailed in advance of trial. There are two Magistrates, one in Manhattan and the other in Brooklyn, who persistently refuse to summon such persons, or notify them to appear. They even refuse to do so in the case of mere ordinance violations. They say that they find no statute for sending a summons or message to a person accused, and that their duty is, to issue a warrant for their arrest.

There does not need to be any precise statute therefor. It has always been the custom of Magistrates from the beginning to send word to persons of fair reputation in the neighborhood who are accused of some minor thing to appear, instead of having them brought in by a warrant. In the country districts that is the practice. If any one accuses a decent man of some trifling offense word or letter is usually sent to him to come to court. If he does not come, then a warrant is issued for him. In the city it is convenient to have printed blanks for that purpose.

Call them summonses or what you like, they are a mere message from the Magistrate to the accused person to appear. It is the same as though the Magistrate wrote a note. I hope you will do all you can to enlarge the use of the notice or summons in such cases. The other course is hard and oppressive, and is good only for the professional bondsmen. The object of warrants and bail is to take into custody and keep within the jurisdiction persons who might run away. Sincerely yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

John J. Walsh, Esq., 119 Johnson Street,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

The two magistrates referred to by the Mayor who refuse to issue summons, it was said, are Magistrate Nash of Brooklyn and Butts of Manhattan.

UNITED FRUIT SHIP HARD ON LONG BEACH

ONE OF NORWEGIAN FLEET

Another Fruit Carrier Makes Port, Bringing Crew of Schooner San Mertens, Abandoned at Sea.

The combination of a northwest gale and giant seas from the south was enough early yesterday to drive the Norwegian steamship Nicholas Cuneo, inbound from the West Indies with a cargo of fruit, hard and fast aground off Long Beach. She was still there last night, and the seas that were running were of such magnitude that the Point Lookout life savers, under Capt. George Van Nostrand, were still unable to get a boat out to the unlucky steamer.

It was soon after midnight yesterday that the Cuneo, proceeding cautiously through thick weather and battling all the time with high headseas, suddenly came up hard and fast off Long Beach. There, two hours later, the Point Lookout life savers discovered her. Three life crews were called into action, and time and again they launched their boats, only to have them hurled back upon the beach by the big combers that were sweeping in from the sea.

The weather at midnight, when the Cuneo struck, was thick, a heavy wind blowing out of the northwest, while from the south big seas were rolling in. The combination proved too much for the navigators of the ship, the giant seas carrying the Cuneo out of her course, landing her in the treacherous sands which skirt the southeastern shores of Long Island.

With the dawn the life savers redoubled their efforts to get to the Cuneo, but even such expert oarsmen as those of Point Lookout Life Saving Station were unable to battle successfully with the big waves that were rolling shoreward one after the other. Finally, at 8 o'clock, after dozens of attempts to reach the Cuneo had failed, the life savers reluctantly stopped the battle and began a patient wait for calmer seas. They were still waiting last night, and this morning will begin another fight to get to the stranded ship.

In the meantime wrecking tugs from New York have been ordered to the assistance of the Cuneo, and at high tide to-day expect to drag her back into deep water. The Cuneo has on board a crew of thirty officers and men. It is believed that she brings no passengers this trip, although she does now and then book a few for New York from West Indian ports.

The Cuneo is under charter to the United Fruit Company. She is a ship of 1,054 tons, and is one of the numerous fleet in the fruit trade that flies the flag of Norway. Wreckers at the scene last night expressed the opinion that the ship would be found to be practically undamaged when she is pulled back into navigable waters.

While the Cuneo was hard and fast off Long Beach another fruit steamer, the Sixaola, also from the West Indies, made port having on board the skipper and a crew of five men of the Nova Scotian schooner San Mertens. The San Mertens was abandoned at sea on Jan. 3. They were rescued by another sailing vessel an dtaken to San Andreas, where the British Consul sent them to New York as Consular passengers on the Sixaola.

TO LINK AMERICAS BY RAIL.

Connection Now Except for 18 Miles Between New York and Guatemala City.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The linking of North and South America by rail would promote peace among the different nations of the continents, in the opinion of Andrew Carnegie, expressed at a meeting here to-day of the permanent Pan-American Railway Committee, of which he is a member. Reports on the linking of the Americas by rail were read, indicating that progress is being made. Chairman Henry Gassaway Davis, former Senator from West Virginia, presided at the meeting. Gen. George W. Davis and Charles M. Pepper also were present. In Central America only eighteen miles of line remain to be constructed to make practicable a railway journey from New York to Guatemala City. Construction from there is well under way to San Miguel, Salvador. From this point to the Panama Canal, 600 miles away, a number of links have been constructed, and plans for others are well advanced.

In South America, only 175 miles are still to be constructed between Buenos Aires and Lake Titicaca, and the line has been completed from the latter point to Cuzco, Peru, 2,000 miles from Buenos Aires. In Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Peru, and Ecuador progress has been made. The committee will make a full report to the next Pan-American Conference.

Seaman and other officers were re-elected, except the Recording Secretary, Y. Tsenchan Wang, who declined re-election owing to other business. W. T. Wei was elected to succeed Mr. Wang.

WAITERS' UNION SPLITS.

I. W. W. Faction Walks Out When Federation of Labor Speakers Are Up.

An echo of the late unsuccessful waiters' strike was heard last night, when at a mass meeting held at Edelweiss Hall, 216 West Fiftieth Street, a dozen speakers belonging to the American Federation of Labor attempted to persuade those present to organize a local of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Most of the 200 cooks and waiters in the hall were members of the International Hotel Workers' Union, which at present is split into three factions, namely, those who want the union to be independent, those whose sympathies incline them toward the Industrial Workers of the World, whose organizers led the recent strike, and those who want to go over to the American Federation of Labor.

There was trouble brewing at the very outset of the meeting, and William B. Joyce, General Organizer of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America, who was to introduce the several speakers, was forced to announce that no debate would be tolerated, and that any speaking from the audience would be suppressed. Nothing happened until the first speaker, A. J. Cozzolino, President of the Essex Trades Council of Newark, N. J., had almost completed his address in which he urged upon the waiters the advantage of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor, when one of the members of the International Hotel Workers' Union attempted to answer.

Instantly the mass meeting was thrown into an uproar, at the height of which Carlos Presca, the leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, said something to his men in Italian, and at once 150 of them rose and left the hall, headed by Tresca and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who was in charge of the late strike.

Out on the sidewalk they hooted and jeered, while the American Federation of Labor speakers continued to talk against time to the depleted mass meeting of two score men, most of whom were partisans of the Federation. A few members of the International Hotel Workers' Union remained behind, to act as spies, it was said, and continued to heckle the speakers.

ORPHAN APPEALS TO COURT.

Says His Guardian Took Wages Besides Money He Inherited.

Joseph Ward, a 16-year-old boy, appeared before Surrogate Cohalan yesterday and asked that letters of guardianship granted in August, 1910, to William Brown of Woodridge, N. J., be revoked. The boy said he had been taken from an orphan asylum in this city to Hasbrook, N. J., and put to work by Brown, who collected his wages of from $3 to $6 a week. Last September, young Ward said, he left Brown, who had fed him and bought him two suits of clothes during his service, and went to his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Hawley of 695 Ninth Avenue.

He told the Surrogate he was left an orphan at the age of two years by the death of his father, and had a small inheritance. An investigtion in the courts disclosed to him, he said, that Brown had drawn $6 a week from his inheritance for his support, although he had taken all his wages. The Surrogate signified that he would grant young Ward's request to name his grandmother as his guardian in place of Brown.

Patriotic Quilt for President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Taft's collection of gifts was increased to-day when he received a red, white and blue quilt from S. H. Read of Merna, Neb., a civil war vteran 82 years old, who wrote that the quilt had been made entirely by hand and contained 5,982 separate pieces.

THE SHEPARDS SAIL WITH THEIR GUESTS

Former Helen Gould, Her Husband, the Talleyrands, and A. J. Drexel Off for Europe.

FIRST NAMES NOT ON LIST

But Friends Fill Their Cabin with Flowers—Drexel Doubts Much Tariff Cutting.

With as notable a company of passengers on board as has been carried away from New York this year, the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie sailed for Bremen by way of British and French ports, yesterday. Among her well-known folk were Finley J. Shepard and his wife who was Miss Helen Gould, the Duke and Duchess de Tallayrand, the last named a sister of Mrs. Shepard, their baby son the Duke de Sagan, Anthony J. Drexel whose departure proved that a report that he was going around the world was untrue, Mr. and Mrs. William Payne Thompson, H. Maitland-Kersey, former Manager of the White Star Line in New York; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dodge, Mrs. Arthur Iselin, H. M. Bjornsen Stefannson, the Arctic explorer; Mrs. Marcus Daly, and Harry Peatree, President of the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepard, it had been reported, would sail next Wednesday on the Cunarder Mauretania. Their names did not appear on the passenger list of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, although the fact that their suite was banked with flowers showed their friends knew that it was the German and not the British liner they were going away in. They will tour Europe and will sail for New York from an Italian port sometime in May.

The Duke and Duchess de Tallayrand both said they had enjoyed every minute of their stay in America and the Duke said he was sorry he could not stay longer.

Mr. Drexel who had been in the United States about two weeks went away prophesying that the tariff would not be so radically changed under the Wilson administration as some people seemed to think it would:

"The American people," he said, "may look for great things under the Wilson administration in the way of a revision of the tariff, but they will be disappointed if they expect far-reaching benefits from lower tariff rates. Conditions would be worse instead of better under such schedules. We have only to study our history to realize that times have not been the best under a low tariff. The revision of the tariff now might mean that a great many American industries would suffer great injury and we should be very careful not to injure what it has taken so many years to build up."

Mr. Maitland-Kersey, now an official of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, said that that company's new trans-Pacific liners would enter the Vancouver-Japanese trade early in the Spring.

COURTS HONOR STEINERT.

Branches Meet to Pay Respect to Associate Who Died Sunday.

The Justices of Special Sessions, the District Attorney, and Judges of General Sessions held a public meeting yesterday in Special Sessions, at which they extended their sympathies to the family of Justice Henry Steinert, who died Sunday night. Chief Justice Russell spoke of his associate, and Mr. Whitman said he desired to pay the respects of his office and himself to Mr. Steinert's memory.

Abraham Levy, Charles Goodhart, and ex-Magistrate C. G. F. Wahle represented the Bar Association. Judge Warren W. Foster of General Sessions, and Magistrate Appleton of the Magistrates' Court represented their associates. Court was then adjourned until Thursday out of respect for the Justice.

SEEKS TO PUNISH MRS. BISHOP

Wife of Banker Is Cited to Appear in Supreme Court for Contempt.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum signed an order yesterday requiring Mrs. Abigail H. Bishop, who is suing James C Bishop, the banker, for divorce, to appear in Special Term, Part I., of the Supreme Court and show cause why she should not be punished for contempt. She failed to attend an examination in supplementary proceedings in a judgment rendered against her for $2,248.07 in a suit brought by Francis Gilbert, as the Trustee in Bankruptcy of the Motors Engineering and Sales Company.

The petition recites that papers were served on Mrs. Bishop at her home, 22 East Sixty-fifth Street; that she is wealthy and perfectly able to pay the judgment against her, and that her failure to appear for the examination was wilful.

Don't Tolerate Car Trouble

Two new Hudson cars are now on exhibit in the salesrooms of the A. Elliott Ranney Company, 1700 Broadway.

These cars were built by Howard E. Coffin and his board of 48 expert engineers. Mr. Coffin is America's foremost automobile engineer, and builder of six famous cars.

These new cars are built for endurance, lack of trouble, and low cost of upkeep. For these are the things most sought in new cars.

Ranney Special Service Follows Every Hudson

Hudson cars are strong and virtually troubleproof. Rarely do these cars need attention beyond that which every chauffeur gives his car.

Yet occasional incidents on the road disqualify the best of cars.

To meet just such emergencies, the Ranney Special Service is placed at the disposal of approximately 2,000 Hudson car owners.

This service consists of a corps of expert machinists, equipped with motorcycles for quick travel.

These men get to the scene of the trouble within a few minutes from the time they are called. They go anywhere in the city or vicinity.

In every instance these experts have sent the car on its way without an hour's delay. Owners of other cars, without such service, often have their cars out of commission for weeks, while the new part is being shipped from the factory or it is awaiting its turn in the Service Department.

This special service leaves Hudson owners carefree, adds greatly to the pleasure of automobiling, and The Ranney Company, up to the present, is the only Dealer offering this service.

N. Y. UNIVERSITY VIOLET FOR GIANTS

McGraw Adopts College Color for Use in Adorning New Uniforms.

New York University is so pleased because the Giants have chosen the college color, violet, for their uniforms during the coming season that officials of the university have written to Manager McGraw thanking him for the honor. The New York home uniforms will be Colonial cream with a fine stripe, the same as last season. The monogram on the sleeve will be of violet and the stockings will have a wide band of violet. Violet trimmings will also decorate the Giants' caps. Manager McGraw chose the college color because he believes the New York team should recognize the official color of its university. For several seasons the official colors of the Pittsburgh Club have been red and blue, the colors of the University of Pennsylvania.

Secretary Charles W. Gerstenberg of New York University has written a letter to Manager McGraw congratulating him on adopting the college color, and also on signing Jim Thorpe as a member of the team. Secretary Gerstenberg said: "New York University certainly appreciates your thoughtfulness in selecting the colors of the university as the official colors of the Giants, and I want to thank you for the interest you have shown. Will you please let me know immediately when the first home game is to be played, for I want, to start the ball rolling, to bring a goodly number of students to root for the colors."

Manager McGraw has also received a letter from James Melvin Lee, director of the department of journalism of New York University, in which Mr. Lee says: "The fans of New York University—and there are many of them—appreciate this courtesy, and will be on hand to yell for the Giants."

Manager McGraw is completing his work at the New York Club's offices this week, and will be ready to start for Marlin on Feb. 16. Yesterday Manager McGraw severed his connection with his billiard parlors in the Marbridge Building. He had to retire from this business owing to the increasing duties which are devolving upon him as manager of the Giants.

McGraw and Wilbert Robinson expect to be in St. Louis on Feb. 18 to meet all the Giant recruits, who will take a special train from the Mound City to Marlin. It is expected that Mathewson and Larry Doyle will also join the early party. The other players will leave St. Louis on Feb. 27.

The only absentees will probably be "Tilly" Shafer and "Rube" Marquard. Shafer says he will not play ball again, and Marquard says he has theatrical contracts which will keep him busy until the end of May. Marquard has had no communication with Manager McGraw, but has done a lot of idle talking through the newspapers. Marquard is under a three years' contract with the New York Club, and if he fails to live up to the contract he is likely to find himself excluded from baseball forever.

The latest Giant to sign a contract is Leon Ames of Marion, Ohio. Last year Ames won eleven games and lost five. On three different occasions Ames has been chosen to pitch the opening game of the season and has lost them all, because of a bad break in luck in each instance. He has been unable to banish the opening-game hoodoo, and hopes he will not be picked to pitch against the Bostons when they open at the Polo Grounds on April 11.

Grover Cleveland Hartley, one of the Giants' catchers, dropped into town yesterday from his home in Osgood, Ind., where he has been spending the Winter. Hartley said he wanted to get a glimpse of New York before going to Marlin in two weeks. Hartley has been coached by McGraw and Robinson for two seasons, and is now qualified to take his place behind the bat for the Giants whenever he is called upon. In the few games he played last season Hartley showed great form, and it is expected that he will get a better chance to show what he can do during the coming season.

The National Commission will hold a meeting in this city next Monday, when the American League assembles here. The commission has much business to transact with the National Association of minor leagues. John H. Farrell of Auburn, the Secretary of this organization, has been abroad for two months, and will attend the meeting Monday. At that time the question of salary limits for minor league clubs will be settled. Mr. Farrell has been Secretary of the National Association for years, and knows more about the "bushers" than any man in baseball, so that his counsel at the National Commission meeting is very essential.

Manager Dahlen of Brooklyn has signed another southpaw pitcher, and now has more left-handers than any other major league club. The latest acquisition to the Dodgers is Claude Wiliams of Nashville, Tenn. Williams goes to Brooklyn in exchange for Jimmy James, who was sent to Nashville by Brooklyn last year. Brooklyn's staff of southpaaws consists of Nap Rucker, Yingling, Frank Allen, and Williams.

Whether or not Brooklyn will be permitted to open the Ebbets Field in Flatbush with Philadelphia on April 9, the day before the opening of the National League season, will be decided at the meeting of the club owners next Tuesday. President Lynch, who has been opposed to the preliminary opening, has decided to put it up to the club owners and let them settle the question. If six of the eight clubs approve of the early opening Mr. Lynch's objection will be overruled. President Ebbets says he is sure of a three-fourth vote, and that the early opening is assured. If the Phillies open with Brooklyn on April 9 it will count as the game scheduled at Brooklyn between the same clubs on April 17. This will leave an open date in Brooklyn on April 17, which is the same day that the Yankees open the home season at the Polo Grounds with Washington. That is the date on which Clarke Griffith promises to give Frank Chance his first good look at Walter Johnson.

Arthur Shafer, the Giants' utility infielder, may have to play ball next season after all. Shafer is getting very reckless out in Los Angeles with his automobile, and yesterday he was caught exceeding the speed limit and was fined $35 and costs. Shafer is an automobile enthusiast, and this isn't the first time he has been caught going too fast. If the Los Angeles police courts keep on taxing him, he will have to return to baseball to get enough money to pay his fines.

Miller Huggins is having much trouble already as manager of the Cardinals. Konetchy, Magee, and Wingo, three of his best players, are hold-outs, and demand much more money than they have been offered. A strong protest has sprung up in St. Louis over the possibility that Konetchy may be traded. He wants $7,500, and the club refuses to give it to him. Huggins has announced that he will play second base, and predicts that he will bat .300 or better this season.

Manager Frank Chance of the Yankees has changed his mind again. Some time ago he announced that he would not play first base any more, but would manage the club from the bench. Yesterday he stated in Los Angeles that he was feeling so well that he would play first base during the coming season. If Chance gets back into the game, Hal Chase may get a chance of realizing his ambition to play second base.

Capablanca and Marshall Win.

With one more round to be played in the American National Chess Masters' tournament, the race for the first prize of $500 has been narrowed down to Jose R. Capablanca, Cuban champion, and Frank J. Marshall, United States champion, who, two years ago, finished second and first, respectively, in the first National tournament. This time, however, the order is reversed, as Capablanca, after the twelfth round, played at Cafe Boulevard yesterday, leads Marshall by half a point. By the order of the pairing, the two meet in the final round at the same place this afternoon.

Yesterday Capablanca and Oscar Chajes of Chicago drew in their game, and Marshall polished off Rubinstein in one of the shortest games of the tournament, lasting only sixteen moves. Charles Jaffe, who defeated Capablanca in the eleventh round, won from Kupchik. Norman T. Whitaker defeated I. Tenenwurzel in an irregular Queen's pawn opening, lasting twenty-seven moves.

Liebenstein took the measure of Kline in seventy moves, but the other two games remained unfinished after sixty-three and sixty-seven moves, respectively.

YALE ATHLETES INELIGIBLE.

Four Distance Runners Placed Under Ban by Faculty.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 4.—Capt. Wagoner of the Yale Track Team was this evening notified that four of the best distance runners of the squad, Brown, Boucher, Smith and Bellows, have been declared ineligible by the Faculty. This will keep them out of the games of the Boston Athletic Association next Saturday evening and may make it impossible for them to enter the other indoor meets of the season in which Yale has planned to take part. The loss is especially severe because two of the four men were to be picked to-night by Coach Mack for the relay team which will race against Harvard.

Norris and Wilkie have been picked for the team and it will now be necessary for Yale to either withdraw from the event or to transfer sprinters to the half-mile run to complete the entries. Some of the track officials favor canceling the race.

Capt. Wagoner has decided to send the following entries: Sprints, Reed, Moore and Ainsworth; hurdles, Foster, Davidson and Willets; one-mile, Dowling and Buffum; high jump, Oler, Riggs and Douglas; shot put, Harbison.

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—"Bobby" McLean, the Chicago schoolboy, again to-night outskated all opponents in the National Indoor Skating Championship races at the Boston Arena. McLean won the titles in the one-mile and half-mile events, and also outdistanced the field in a one-mile handicap race, in which he started at scratch. Summary:

One-Mile.—Won by Robert McLean, Chicago; second, R. L. Wheeler, Montreal; third, W. Gunderson, Chicago. Time—2:55.

Half Mile.—Won by Robert McLean, Chicago; second, R. L. Wheeler, Montreal; third, W. Gunderson, Chicago. Time—1:23.

IRISH-AMERICAN GAMES.

Big Series Scheduled for Madison Square Garden To-morrow.

The big feature in amateur athletics this week promises to be the annual Winter games of the Irish-American A. C. to-morrow evening, the first big athletic meeting to be held in Madison Square Garden this Winter. The Athletic Committee of the Irish Club has worked with might and main to make the series one of the best the Club has ever held and the outlook seems to bear out this hope well.

Heading the list of all star races is the scratch 1,000 yard run for the possession of the McAleenan Trophy. The field that will go to the post will be composed of stars, as the entries of Mel Sheppard, Ira Davenport, Ted Meredith, Abel Kiviat, and Dave Cauldwell have been received. It is likely that one more runner will be added to make the race a five-man affair.

The five-mile run, limited handicap, promises to furnish not only a good race, but also a new American record. On the scratch mark will be the noted Kolehmainen who, until he was vanquished by Abel Kiviat last November, never knew the taste of defeat. The matchless Finn has been working hard and is now approaching the form that made him the talk of the athletic world last Summer.

NO YALE ROWING CHANGE.

Capt. Snowden Says Ells Will Not Employ an English Coach.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 4.—Capt. Charles Snowden of the Yale crew said to-night, in discussing his trip to England with Coaches Harriman and Rodgers that no coach from England would be engaged this season, that the stroke the Yale crew rows will not be changed from the style taught last year, built upon the English system, and that he regards Yale's chances of success this year exceedingly good. This evening he addressed the entire 'Varsity rowing squad of about 100 candidates in the gymnasium. He said:

"According to our original intention, no coach has been brought over from England for the Yale crew. Our purpose in visiting the foreign universities was merely to verify our opinion that the stroke we had been using was the same as that in vogue abroad, and our beliefs were justified. All season the Yale men have been instructed in the stroke which is to continue throughout the remainder of the coaching period this year. The system will not be changed.

"During the ten days that we spent with the Oxford and Cambridge crews, we carefully studied the methods in practice in those institutions. Although no special exhibitions were arranged for us, we had ample opportunity to acquaint ourselves with the all important fact that we were on the right track with the Yale eight. At Oxford especially, we were very observant of every detail, realizing that its shell had forged ahead of Cambridge for four consecutive years in the dual race with their rivals. Three of the Oxford men also were on the Leander crew which won the Olympic race last year at Stockholm.

"The stroke in question is not a new one with us. For several years before 1900, the system had been used to turn out championship eights for Yale. Shortly after that, John Kennedy changed it to one which for us has proven greatly inferior. So the institution of the English stroke is really only reverting to the old successful policy. However, the stroke is not in use in any other American college."

President Schoenborn, of the Columbus American Association team also will head that city's Inter-State league club. Another meeting will be held in Columbus on Feb. 24, at which final details for the season will be arranged.

Kling Will Not Play Ball Again.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 4.—In a letter to President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club received to-day Manager Joe Tinker announced that he had abandoned all efforts to obtain the services of Johnny Kling, the catcher, for the Cincinnati team. He also said in the letter that he was convinced that Kling would not play professional ball next season.

Hauser Swings in Line with St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4.—Short Stop Arnold Hauser, a National League club "hold-out," to-day signed a 1913 contract. The only remaining regular who has not signed is Konetchy, who demands $7,500 for playing first base this year.

PAYS $16,000 FOR CHAMPION TROTTER

Austrian Horseman Buys Baldy McGregor, 2:06 3-4—High Prices for Youngsters.

Another champion harness horse has been lost to the American trotting turf. Baldy McGregor, 2:06¾, next to Colorado E., the world's fastest three-year-old trotting colt, the champion of his age last year, and winner of the fastest heat in a regular futurity race, was sold to W. Schlesinger, an Austrian buyer, yesterday at Madison Square Garden for $16,000. The price is the highest foreign buyers have paid for an American trotting horse in a public sale, and is also the highest ever paid for any horse in the history of mid-winter sales at the Garden, the previous record being $15,500, which Jacob Ruppert paid for the stallion Oakland Baron in 1901.

The bidding on Baldy McGregor was exceedingly brisk. The opening bid was $7,500, which was increased to $10,000 by J. B. Estill, owner of Elmwood Farm, Lexington, Ky. Great interest was shown by hundreds of horsemen when John G. Ruppert, Superintendent of Col. Ruppert's farm, entered the bidding contest. He was followed by Dr. Charles E. Tanner, representing C. K. G. Billings. At bids of $500 the price jumped to $12,000, at which figure Dr. Tanner retired and Mr. Ruppert and Mr. Estill carried the price to $15,500. Mr. Estill added $250, and withdrew when Mr. Ruppert carried the amount to $16,000.

There was applause when the colt was knocked down to the highest bidder, and a temporary relief was experienced that Baldy McGregor would remain in this country, but it was later learned that the colt was bought by Max Bleichner of Vienna, who said the real purchaser was W. Schlesinger of New Tattersalls, Vienna, who would race the horse over the Austrian circuit. Baldy McGregor was the colt which John E. Madden bought during the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting for less than $5,000, and won with it the Breeders' Matron Stakes at Pittsburgh, and sold him the same day to Henry Schmulbach of Wheeling, West Va., for over $15,000. The horse's only engagement was in the Championship Stallion Stake, which he won at Lexington the second week of the big meeting.

With Baldy McGregor, Mr Schmulbach's consignment contained thirty-nine other horses, including the stallion Directum Spier, the sire of the world's champion four-year-old filly, Joan, 2:04¼. The total amount received for this consignment was $32,055, or a general average of $801.50 per head, one of the highest averages recorded at the midwinter sale for a consignment of an equal number of horses.

The next important consignment was the forty-six head of two-year-olds from L. V. Harkness's Walnut Hall Farm, Lexington, Ky., the collection being the get of Moko and Walnut Hall. The consignment aggregated $15,710, or an average of $342 per head, which is considered a good price for youngsters, none of which has been trained any further than breaking to halter. The highest price in the lot was $2,500, which E. C. Smith of New York City paid for Katherine Collette, by Moko. The next best price was $1,700, and the fact that only one other youngster sold for $1,000 indicates a demand for young horses.

The demand for all offerings appeared to be brisk, and bidding was lively during each session. J. B. Elliott of Knoxville, Tenn., procured Directum Spier for $1,250, while Henry P. Haas, a member of the Fittsburgh Driving Club, bought the trotting mare Miss Cochran, 2:17½, which he will race in the matinées and for the Amateur Drivers' League Gold Cup in the inter-city matinées next Fall.

One of the incidents of the sale was the purchase of two colts by Joseph F. Gibbons, and William Cahill, former President and Vice President, respectively, of the Road Drivers Association. Mr. Gibbons bought Mique Spier, a 2-year old trotter for $275, while Mr. Cahill paid $425 for the youngster, Ollie Mc Kinney. The pair will race on the Speedway during the Spring matinees for $1,000 a side. Dr. J. H. Ferster, President of the association, bought Miss Davis, a 7-year old trotter with a mark of 2:10¼ for $1,000, and will race her in the Harlem Speedway matinees.

Dr. C. A. Tanner of Cleveland secured several high grade trotting mares for the C. K. J. Billings stable, which will be bred to The Harvester.

The day's average was one of the best of the Midwinter sales, and is expected to be equaled to-day when the consignments from the Minnesota Improvement Company and Patchen Wilkes Farm are brought into the sales ring.

Winners at Billiards.

Pierre Maupome, the Mexican billiardist, who represents St. Louis in the National Inter-City Billiard League, won his second victory from Charles Otis of Brooklyn in the three-game series at Keeney's Billiard Academy, in Brooklyn, last night by the score of 50 to 30. The contest was fast and required only 59 innings. Each player had a high run of four points.

In continuation of the amateur handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at Keeney's Academy Frank Boyd, who plays at 195 points, defeated George E. Moon, Jr., last night by the score of 195 to 187 in 58 innings. Moon was playing at a handicap of 190 points and put up an excellent exhibition, finishing close to his opponent. Boyd averaged 3 21-58 and had high runs of [illegible], 18, and 12. Moon's efforts netted him high runs of 22, 17, and 14, with an average of 3 16-57.

The contestants in the second game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at Doyle's Academy last night were N. Collins and C. Adair, and after 38 innings of play the former won by a score of 22 to 15. Each made a high run of four points.

Princeton Beats B. A. A. at Hockey.

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—Capt. "Hobe" Baker was the chief factor of Princeton's hockey victory over the Boston Athletic Association at the Arena to-night by a score of 6 to 3. Baker scored two of the Tigers' goals, and figured prominently in scoring the other four. Princeton was almost as strong on the defense as on the offense, and stopped many shots for goals by Osgood and Huntington of the B. A. A. It was the Boston seven's second defeat of the season.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Feb. 4.—Tom Keady, the former Dartmouth star athlete, who for more than a year has been in charge of the baseball, football, and basket ball teams of Lehigh University, and with unprecedented success, has received an offer from Swarthmore College to succeed George Brooks as coach of the football team at the little Quaker institution. The Swarthmore people have asked Keady to send his terms. It was learned to-day that Keady is wanted as coach by both Williams College and Bowdoin, and as assistant coach at Dartmouth.

MAY ENLARGE CIRCUIT.

Sixteen Tracks May Be Admitted to Metropolitan Membership.

At a special meeting of the members of the Metropolitan Circuit yesterday at Madison Square Garden it was decided that no association in the circuit should give class races for less than $400, while each should hold at least three $1,000 early closing events. By a unanimous vote the week of Sept. 12, which was assigned to Kingston, N. Y., and was not accepted, was awarded to Carmel, N. Y.

A radical rule was accepted by unanimous vote under which any association in membership with the circuit which accepts a conditional entry will be fined $25 for each offense, the fine to go to the treasury of the Metropolitan Circuit. The members also decided that in every case in which an owner or trainer makes an entry and requests conditional terms, such application will be at once forwarded to the Secretary of the National Trotting Association.

It was decided to reincorporate the Metropolitan Circuit under the laws of the State of New York in such a manner to allow the admission of sixteen tracks to membership.

In order to make stake and class programmes as uniform as possible in the entire circuit, and each member to offer uniform terms to entrants, it was decided to make the entry fees 5 per cent. of the purse regular, and deduct 5 per cent. from the four money winners.

President W. P. Burton of the circuit stated last night that he will call another meeting during the first week of March, when the question of making classes for stakes and purses as uniform as possible throughout the season will be decided.

Among those present were W. P. Barton, Goshen and Monroe; Ralph Kelsey, Parkway; George A. Coleman, Poughkeepsie; William Symes, Troy; Thomas H. Bacon, Mineola; J. C. Adams, Hohokus; Dr. F. H. Flagge, Orangeburg, N. Y., and R. M. Williams, Empire City.

BRITISH GOLFERS COMING.

Change of Dates for Open Tournament Insures International Competition.

Official announcement of the change of dates for the National open golf championship at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass., from the original time, June 4 and 5, to Sept. 17 and 18, was made last night by Robert C. Watson, President of the United States Golf Association.

The change will mean that Harry Vardon, five times the British open champion, and Edward Ray, present holder of the title, will visit the United States in quest of its open title. Moreover, George Duncan, looked upon as a championship possibility, is likely to change the plans for his coming visit so as to be here for the tournament. There will be an interval of ten days between the end of the National amateur championship at Garden City and the beginning of the National open event, during which time a tournament will be held over the National Golf Links of America at Shinnecock Hills, L. I.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES.

Walter Shaller, recently released to Providence of the International League, under the optional agreement, was yesterday recalled by the Detroit American League Baseball Club. It was announced that Shaller will go South with the recruits. Several changes in arrangements for the Spring training trip of the Tigers were announced. The youngster will leave Detroit Saturday, Feb. 22, for the training camp at Gulfport, Miss., and will be accompanied by Manager Jennings and Coaches Sugden and McGuire. Exhibition games with the Cincinnati National League team have been arranged for March 8 and 9, at Mobile, and April 7, 8, and 9 at Cincinnati.

The signed contract of William McKechnie of Wilkinsburg, Penn., was received at the offices of the Boston National League Club yesterday. McKechnie played second base for the Pittsburgh team for a time last season and was later sold to St. Paul. Boston procured the player by draft from the latter club.

The Montreal Baseball Club of the International League announced yesterday that it has signed Arthur Griggs, first baseman, for the Cleveland American League team last season.

KILBANE A MEDIOCRE CHAMPION BOXER

Featherweight Shows Poor Quality in Defeating Young Driscoll in Brooklyn.

Johnny Kilbane made his fourth metropolitan appearance since winning the featherweight boxing championship at the Irving A. C. of Brooklyn, last night, and failed to remove the impression which New Yorkers gained in his bouts with Burns, Dundee, and O'Keefe. Against Young Driscoll, a Brooklynite who has not yet attained prominence even in his home city, Kilbane went through ten rounds, winning easily, as was expected, but also failing to show what is expected of a champion.

"That kind of championship quality may be acceptable in some sections of the country, where boxing is not seen often, but in the city, where Terry McGovern fought some of his greatest battles and Abe Attell showed real championship calibre, it is a joke," was the way one boxing enthusiast expressed himself at the close of the show.

A crowd of several hundred turned out to see the champion in action, as the advance notices of the bout spread the idea that he was intent on redeeming the reputation which had been badly dented in his previous bouts here. At times it seemed as if Kilbane was not trying his hardest, and the crowd did not lose the opportunity of showing its disapproval in hoots and jeers, but there were other times, and they came often during the encounter, when Johnny let loose with all he had in his repertoire, and even then he failed to look like a champion.

During the entire battle Kilbane acted as if he was afraid of getting a punch that would cause him pain. He outweighed Driscoll by two pounds, the figures being 126½ and 124½, and the Cleveland boy was much better built for boxing than the Brooklynite. Kilbane did some effective jabbing at close quarters, but in the open work he missed so often that the crowd took turns in hooting and jeering his efforts. Driscoll is a poor defensive fighter, and he left openings last night large enough for a squad of champions to pass through, but Kilbane missed them time and again. At the same time he was able to send a shower of punches against the Brooklyn boy's jaw, and he put all the power that he possessed in many of them, yet he was unable to knock Driscoll off his feet.

The lack of aggressiveness which marred Kilbane's other bouts here was more in evidence last night than ever before, and Driscoll did practically all the forcing throughout the bout. Even when the Kilbane wallops came in the fastest the Brooklyn boy often answered by swinging at the champion, and Kilbane, who a moment before seemed intent on putting an end to the bout, backed around the ring. At other times he held both arms extended and placed his gloves against Driscoll's shoulder as the latter tried to come close. At infighting Kilbane showed more speed than Driscoll, but on a few occasions the Brooklynite exchanged punches at close quarters in approved fashion, and Kilbane was the first to break ground.

The champion had his smile with him at all times and kept one eye on his manager, who signaled to Johnny as to how he should work. The manager's idea of the required and expected speed did not come up to the ideas of the crowd, and although the champion got a much better ovation than Driscoll when they were introduced before the bout, the larger part of the spectators were rooting loudly for Driscoll before the bout had gone very far. The impression was general before the boys entered the ring that Driscoll would stand little chance of going more than helf the scheduled route if Kilbane showed all he had. In this respect Driscoll upset the dope, as Kilbane showed about all he had and the Brooklyn boy was going strong at the final bell.

NELSON BEATS McLOUGHLIN.

Latter Is Disqualified for Fouling in Heavyweight Bout.

Art Nelson, a heavyweight boxer from Chicago, continued his winning career last night in this territory, when he was awarded the decision midway during the fourth round of the stellar attraction at Brown's Gymnasium as the result of continued fouling on the part of his opponent, Dick McLoughlin of Winnipeg, Can. The latter violated the rules by holding and hitting Nelson repeatedly after being ordered to break by Referee Bill Brown, who disqualified the Canadian.

Nelson gave away twelve pounds to his bulky opponent, who scaled 196½, and who proved to be a rough opponent. McLoughlin started as if he intended to make it a short battle. Nelson took quite a beating, but from the end of the second round held his own, with short punches at close range with both hands which had the effect of checking the Canadian considerably.

In what resulted in the concluding session Nelson was boxing to marked advantage, and clearly getting the better of the milling, to the discomfort of his bulkier opponent, who, although ordered to fight clean, disregarded all such orders and suffered disqualification.

In the semi-final bout at six rounds between Young Ketchell and Young Costello, the former had the better of the go, and earned the popular decision at the end. Frankie Callahan beat Young Levine in the third round of what was to have been a four-round affair, Referee Brown stopping the bout when he thought Levine had enough punishment. Billy Myers defeated Joe Allen in four rounds, and Tommy Doyle won from Freddie Weber, the latter going down midway during the third round from a blow to the wind, immediately after which he asserted that he had been hit low.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Jeff Smith, the New Jersey middleweight who has been in Paris for many weeks, will take on Georges Carpentier, the French middleweight, in a twenty-round bout at the French Capitol to-night.

Tom Jones, manager of Ad Wolgast, has taken Cyclone Johnny Thompson under his management, and is looking for bouts with boxers who are close to the 175-pound division. Thompson has been matched with Bob Moha for a ten-round bout at Milwaukee.

Jimmy De Forrest, former manager of Pal Moore, Frankie Burns, and several other noted boxers, has a youngster in tow whom he is touting as a ocming contender for high honors, among the welterweights and middleweights. The boxer is Al Wambsgans, a native of New Orleans, and the son of an old-time boxer of considerable repute in the South, who is now a referee in that city. Wambsgans came to Allenhurst several months ago after winning the amateur lightweight title of the South and he has since taken on enough weight to start as a welterweight. De Forrest has been developing him slowly and expects to show him soon at local clubs.

As next Monday is available to Manager Billy Gibson of the Garden A. C. for boxing at Madison Square Garden, a card is being arranged with New Yorkers on one side and Philadelphians on the other. Johnny Dundee and Grover Hayes will probably do the honors in the main event, and it is planned to bring together Young Mike Donovan versus Jack McCarron and Jimmy Coffey versus Teddy Maloney in the other ten-round bouts.

PAPKE SAILS FOR PARIS.

Middleweight Expects to Box Klaus for Title on March 5.

Billy Papke, the Kawanee boxer who won the middleweight title from Stanley Ketchell and later lost it to the same battler, sailed from this port yesterday for France, where he is scheduled to box in another bout "for the title." That is the way Papke figures it, and the French sporting public, as well as Frank Klaus of Pittsburgh, have similar ideas. Papke and Klaus are scheduled to box twenty rounds at the Cirque de Paris on March 5, and on April 15 Papke is matched to box the same number of rounds against Georges Carpentier. The latter bout will be for the commission weight championship, says Papke, as Carpentier is no longer able to make the middleweight figure.

Mrs. Papke and Billy, Jr., are making the trip with the former champion. Papke is confident that he will return with two titles to his credit. He does not believe Jim Flynn or Cyclone Johnny Thompson has a monopoly on the commission-weight championship, and as for Eddie McGoorty being the middleweight star, "that is out of the question," Papke says.

"I do not see where McGoorty comes in for any such claim," said Papke. "He has been making a reputation out of short, no-decision bouts, and he has not boxed any one over the long route in a couple of years. Klaus has. He beat Jack Dillon on the Coast in twenty rounds, and now he and I are going to fight it out for the championship. McGoorty wants to try conclusions with me after the Klaus bout he can come over to Paris and be accommodated, but I will not fight here. And McGoorty will have to beat a few good men in France before I will box him.

"The reason that I won't fight in America is because I cannot get the right kind of money here. In the last few battles that I fought on this side I was lucky to get $1,000 for my end. When it costs me $1,000 to get ready for a hard battle I can't see why I should fight for that money. That is the reason I did not train for fellows like Moha, Burke, and Mantell. But you will notice that, though I was out of shape, none of those men hurt me much. I can whip all of them in one night when in condition. I am getting a $5,000 guarantee for the bout with Klaus, and I have a good percentage privilege. I expect to make twice as much money. They expect that the house will total close to $30,000. The $1,000 ivory belt that they gave me in Paris is at stake in this bout, and if I lose it will go to Klaus."

Papke said that he weighed 170 pounds, and the ten pounds will be just enough to take off before the bout with Klaus. The articles call for 160 pounds at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the bout.

Crescents vs. St. Nicks To-night.

The outcome of the hockey game between the Crescent A. C. and St. Nicholas teams to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink, will have an important bearing upon the ultimate result of the Amateur League championship struggle, for a tie will be created for either first or second place. A victory for the St. Nicks, who are only one game behind the Hockey Club, will place them on even terms with the latter in the number of games won and lost, and tie them in the race for the cup, while a win for the Crescents, who are now third in the race, will move them up to second place, tied with the St. Nicks. On Friday night Yale and Dartmouth will play at the St. Nicholas Rink and on Saturday night Harvard and Princeton will clash in the most important game of the season.

Olympic Stars in A. A. U. Meet.

Nearly all the American athletes who participated in the Olympic games at Stockholm last Summer will take part in the American indoor track and field championships, which will be held by the A. A. U. in Madison Square Garden on March 6. Already the number of entries surpasses that of other years, and the competition promises to be keener than heretofore. Several of the Americans who did not show their best form against the foreigners, notably Tom Halpin of the Boston A. A.; Louis Scott, South Paterson A. C., and Willie Kramer of the Long Island A. C., have again reached their stride and are running close to record time. If "Ted" Meredith, the world's champion and record holder at 800 meters, decides to run in the 600-yard championship against "Mel" Sheppard and Ira Davenport of Chicago, the two men that forced him to break the world's record for 800 meters and a half mile at Sweden, this one race alone will be worth going miles to see. Willie Kramer has decided to do all short-distance work in preparation for the two-mile race, in which he will run with Hannes Kolehmainen, the famous Finnish distance runner, who was the sensation of the Olympic games, and other stars.

A. A. U. Boxing Committee Meets.

The Boxing Committee of the Metropolitan Association, at its meeting last night, took no definite action toward awarding the boxing championships. It was the opinion of the members of the committee that all clubs be given an extension of one week to submit bids. A tentative list of officials for all boxing tournaments held under a sanction of the Metropolitan Association, in accordance with the new boxing rules adopted by the A. A. U. on Nov. 18, was drafted, subject to the approval of the New York State Athletic Commission. The committee will meet again on Monday at 5 o'clock, when the championships will be awarded and a list of officials, approved by the Athletic Commission, will be confirmed.

GOV. SULZER'S "LEADERSHIP."

Under the spell of the prestige won by Gov. Wilson in New Jersey, Mr. Sulzer promptly adopted the striking doctrine of that successful statesman and announced that he should be the leader of his party by virtue of his election as Governor.

The difference between the two men is that Mr. Wilson applied his doctrine with wisdom, skill, and resolution and in good faith, and that he is still applying it. Mr. Sulzer has been "in power" about as many days as Mr. Wilson has months, and his claims to leadership have already become the subject of ridicule among the politicians, who were never much impressed by them, and of sorrowful or contemptuous remembrance by those who had some trust in them.

The thin veil of explanation spread over the process of selecting Justice McCall for the head of the Public Service Commission only makes plainer the true features of that curious transaction. The solicitude of the Governor, his repeated appeals to the reluctant Justice, his final and urgent visit to this city, the Justice's tussle with the "heartstrings" that bound him to his former associates, though presented as indications of the Governor's personal and intimate desire to get his own choice, all led up to a spectacular, cynical, impudent display of Mr. Murphy's arbitrary and dictatorial power. The professedly independent nomination of the Governor was confirmed, without the formality of reference to a committee, without time or opportunity for anything remotely resembling consideration, by the solid vote of Mr. Murphy's men. Mr. Sulzer's leadership has vanished with the first occasion he had to show it. And Mr. Murphy modestly declares himself "pleased."

ALEXIS CARREL'S WORK.

Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel Prize winner, did not originate all the work in which he is now engaged. This he freely admits. The honors which have been thrust upon him because of his marvelous accomplishments in surgery have awakened some professional jealousy both here and abroad, with the usual intimation that he has decked himself in others' feathers. In his published reports Dr. Carrel has acknowledged the work of Dr. Leo Loeb of St. Louis, of Dr. Harrison of Yale, and of his own assistant at the Rockefeller Institute, Dr. M. T. Burrows, in the cultivation of tissues outside the body.

A brief history of their original researches, written by Dr. S. J. Meltzer, the co-worker of Dr. Carrel, appears in the American Year Book for 1912, just issued. The lay world will read with surprise that more than fifteen years ago Dr. Loeb "succeeded in cultivating tissues outside the body in "coagulated blood serum or in agar." It is a singular commentary on the hardships of earnest research workers that Dr. Loeb had then practically no scientific paraphernalia, and he "conceived "the idea of using the animal as a thermostat" for automatically regulating the temperature of the excised and growing tissues. Buried in blocks of coagulated blood serum, beneath the skins of animals, they flourished. Loeb's results were published privately in 1897, and in a German scientific report in 1902. Dr. Meltzer says:

> Some writers on the subject of the cultivation of tissues in vitro, who are only familiar with the last mentioned publication of Loeb, point to it as evidence that this author cultivated tissues only within the body, which is a misapprehension of the facts in the case. It can be safely claimed that Loeb was the first investigator who conceived the ingenious plan of cultivating tissues in media outside of the body.

Dr. Loeb's first report in 1897 was privately circulated because it seemed incredible and he had not the means of publishing it. Just ten years later Dr. Harrison imbedded tissues beneath the skin of frogs, later in a "hanging drop of lymph which coagulated." Harrison thus succeeded in preserving for a long time embryonic tissues in external media, but he did not observe the development and growth of new cells therein.

Dr. Carrel was studying the nature of latent life, had kept living tissues in cold storage, and had investigated the regeneration of nerves, when he sent his assistant, Dr. Burrows, to learn Dr. Harrison's methods. Dr. Burrows found that blood plasma was a better medium, even, for the growth of tissues outside the body than lymph, and in September, 1910, Carrel and Burrows began their famous studies of the cultivation of tissues in glass jars. The flesh of adult mammals as well as of embryos was found to grow luxuriously and to be subject to successive transplantations from the primary growth. They diluted the plasma and found it grew the new tissues yet faster. Heart muscles pulsated rhythmically for months. A "visceral body" was created, functionating apart from the living animal. Dr. Carrel's latest report in The Journal of Experimental Medicine for January, 1913, announces that the growth of some tissues may be accelerated from about three to forty times the normal growth by the use of extracts from the flesh and organs of animals of like species. This report clearly indicates that a means may ultimately be found of expediting the healing of wounds.

Dr. Carrel also reported during 1912 the development of his technique for transplanting living organs and tissues from one animal to another and from one part of the body to another. Major organs, such as kidneys, were transplanted, the blood vessels were connected by an improved suturing, and for a time the transplanted organs survived and functionated. Legs, ears, and other parts near the surface of the body were grown even more successfully on their foreign hosts. Dr. Carrel would isolate the main supply of arteries and veins, unite these to the cut ends of similar vessels in the animals receiving the foreign organs, re-establish the passageway, and the graft was completed.

The work of Carrel and his predecessors has stimulated several other men to fruitful research, like M. R. and W. H. Lewis, who found that embryonic tissue may grow in salt solutions; Ingebrigtsen, who with Carrel discovered that foreign red blood corpuscles introduced into the tissue-growing media developed "anti bodies"; and Dr. Albee, who splits the spines of diseased vertebrae lengthwise and prevents "humpback" by inserting between them a graft of the shinbone; Dr. Hibbs has devised a similar operation for kyphosis.

Besides experimenting with organs and tissues apart from the body, Dr. Carrel has demonstrated that cells may be kept alive apart from the tissues and organs which they compose; some of his cell cultures have continued to proliferate now for more than a twelvemonth, and they are spreading across the plates, to which they are transferred at short intervals, with undiminished vigor. The essential phenomena of growth are thus subjected to deliberate microscopic study, and the means of acceleration and retardation of the processes of life are being found. In this work Dr. Carrel owes much to his predecessors and contemporaries, but the broadening impetus imparted to it by his original efforts, his genius, and his enthusiasm will not in any quarter be denied.

GUARANTEE OF BANK DEPOSITS.

Four years ago the guarantee of bank deposits was one of the Democratic planks which was debated throughout the country, and rejected when Mr. Taft was elected. But the Democrats having carried the country on a platform which did not contain that plank it is revived, nevertheless, in the Washington telegrams. It is difficult to account for this revival, so thoroughly has it been discredited. At first it was condemned on theory by men experienced in finance, but it has since been discredited by practical test. Oklahoma led the way in haste, and is repenting at leisure. During the year just passed seventy Oklahoma banks converted themselves into National banks or ceased to be banks at all. The object was to escape the burden of the levies to provide the guarantee fund. One bank during the life of the experiment has paid 44 per cent. of its capital into the fund to make good the losses of other banks. In appealing for a relaxation of the crushing law the Secretary of the Oklahoma Bankers' Association declared that there are 200 Oklahoma banks which have not earned a dividend in three years, and an assessment now yields less than two-thirds of what it did eighteen months ago. In the words of Secretary Harrison, "the whole State "is suffering because the law has made "the business of the State banker so "hard." The losses under the law have already reached $2,000,000, and the pace is getting faster.

Oklahoma intelligence is to the effect that the law will not be relaxed, because the bankers are asking that it be done. Deposit guarantee is a good political cry, and it is designed rather to extend the plan than to reduce its application. The manner in which this is proposed to be done is one of the ways which is proposed for the Nation, viz., to shift the burden of the guarantee to the State, or, in the case of the Washington proposal, to the Nation. Such condonation of banking folly, and invitation to act irresponsibly, ought to be impossible. The argument in support at Washington is that 35-100ths of 1 per cent. upon deposits would have sufficed to pay all losses since the National bank system was organized. But those losses fell upon those who incurred them, and the proposal is that those who make losses may shift them to others. There is no logic in the argument that the experience under the one system would be the same as under the other. It is a clearer conclusion that just as Oklahoma banks nationalize to escape the guarantee system, so the National banks would become State banks to escape the system which the Democrats are proposing to fasten upon the country despite the country's rejection.

HIGHER UP.

The confession of a policeman that he had acted as collector from lawbreakers for nearly five years, that he had paid the money he got to his Captain, that he had been forced to contribute to the sum given to the chief witness in the pending cases to induce him to absent himself from the jurisdiction of the State courts—this is the most promising advance made by the District Attorney in his persistent effort to get at the high officials on whose co-operation the whole system of corruption—the existence of which is beyond doubt—is based. As the case stands, the District Attorney seems reasonably certain of bringing to justice the Captain involved in the patrolman's confessed crime. It is possible that this Captain, if the grip of the law is direct and tight upon him, may find it best to follow the example of the patrolman and save himself by testimony that will lead to the exposure and punishment of some of his superiors, and even of some of the powerful politicians whose co-operation in the scheme of corruption is assumed, and justly assumed.

This view of the situation is warranted by what has taken place. Only a little while ago Fox's confession, morally conclusive as it would have been, would have been quite inadequate to secure the indictment and conviction of men higher than he. It would have lacked that specific corroboration which the law requires for the testimony of a confessed violator of the law, and which is strictly demanded even before the confession can be used in court against the offender himself. The two corroborating witnesses were beyond reach. They have returned, and the District Attorney's office is reported to be satisfied with the aid they can give to the prosecution. It is, indeed, reported that through these witnesses others can be got at who will make the case still stronger. We repeat that the prospect of getting at the essential sources of the systematic corruption in the police force never seemed so favorable as it is to-day.

Not that it is entirely sure. It is by no means that. The forces by which the corruption has been built up are very strong, widely ramified, subtle. No one doubts that they extend to Tammany Hall, for the simple reason that they would be futile and would in short order be abolished if they did not. Equally there is no doubt that they reach a considerable part of the professed Republican backers, and for the same reason. The influence of the men who control these forces is both direct and indirect, and the indirect is the hardest to combat. The task of cleaning the police will be very hard. It will be a part of the task of cleaning our whole system. Fortunately the people of the city will have a chance to undertake it—and hopefully—this Fall. If a Mayor of the right sort and a Prosecuting Attorney of the right sort are then chosen, the knowledge gained by recent and probable approaching exposures can be thoroughly utilized.

SPRING SHOOTING OF BIRDS.

The market men are again busy at Albany, their assiduity appearing in the introduction of bills to repeal the laws prohibiting the Winter and Spring shooting of wild fowl. Dr. Edward Howe Forbush, State Ornithologist of Massachusetts, says:

> Experience has shown that our wild fowl cannot be adequately conserved and increased in numbers unless they are protected from all shooting except during the Fall migrations.

Too many birds die from cold and starvation in the Winter months. They must not be shot after Jan. 1, since in that month they begin to mate, and in February and the following months they prepare for the nesting of early Summer. Col. John E. Thayer testifies that mallards, black ducks, gadwalls, green-winged teal, blue-winged teal, shovellers, and pintails begin their mating at Currituck Sound, in North Carolina, by Feb. 15. These migratory game birds are being exterminated. To open the shooting season in Winter and in Spring would be conceding to a greed that is blind and suicidal.

WORK IN SOUTHERN MILLS.

A letter to The Times appearing yesterday from Marion Hamilton Carter, who has investigated the labor of children and women in the Southern cotton mills, corroborated the testimony of Mr. Dawley's book, "The Child That Toileth Not," that the boys and young girls and women who "slave" in these hives of industry are not hurt, but benefited by their work. Mrs. Carter's letter was ample in specification and earnest in manner. It contradicted as flatly as Mr. Dawley's report—which, as its Special Investigator, he accused the Department of Commerce and Labor of suppressing—the reports of various philanthropic agents who have come up from the South in recent years with tales of horror in the mills.

These workers Mrs. Carter stigmatizes as "sentimentalists and salaried agitators." In a statement accompanying her letter she remarks that if destruction of the nervous system by mill work occurred, it would be shown in the asylum and hospital commitments from the mill population. South Carolina is the banner State in cotton manufacture, yet in the Eighty-fifth Annual Report of the State Hospital for the Insane the female mill population, on whom the work is supposed to bear most heavily, estimated at about 38,000 in 1908, committed only 6 individuals, 2 of them suffering from pellagrous insanity; that is, 1 in every 6,333 females of all ages. At the same time the women teachers of South Carolina, some 2,400, according to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, committed 4, or 1 in every 600. "Housekeepers," double the female mill population, contributed 73, most of them farmers' wives.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Education Is for Everybody. One of our readers expressed the opinion, yesterday, that, underlying all the faults and troubles of our public schools, was the timidity which prevented even their severest critics—except himself—from saying bluntly that "education is not for everybody" and taking action in accordance with that truth.

But is it a truth? Of course it is obvious enough that the same education is not for everybody—that for everybody there is a limit to the amount of instruction which he can either assimilate or utilize. All except the very lowest imbeciles, however, can profit by some amount and sort of training, and therefore education is for everybody.

The fault of our system which this reader presumably had in mind is not that we attempt to educate everybody, but that we do not take individual differences of capacity to learn sufficiently into consideration and try to send over a given educational course a greater number of children than have intelligence enough to go so far with any advantage to themselves or the rest of us. These are the children who lag behind and are "over age" in their grades, in spite of the unjustified promotions which are the scandal of our schools.

To permit no advancements of pupils who have not attained and maintained where they are a rank of something like 80 has been often suggested, and much can be said for it—most, perhaps, by those who do not remember that the progress of a child depends a good deal upon the competency of his teacher, and that one teacher might condemn as hopeless dunces children in whom another would find large possibilities. The marking system is hated by all enlightened educators, but the difficulty of finding a substitute for it is great.

Great, too, is the difficulty of telling what to do with the children who should not remain in schools as now conducted. Many of them are of good, though limited, mentality, and they are needed for work which they are well able to perform. We are all reluctant, however, to take action which seems like condemning them for life to lowly tasks, and in an unwise kindness we refuse to turn them out of the schools that we boast are for all. The remedy is the special school for which Dr. Maxwell pleads, but much educating of parents will have to be done before they will willingly consent to such segregation and the obloquy that goes with a formal recognition of "defectiveness."

Which His Language Was Plain. Rarely have a more or less modestly self-satisfied group of "best citizens" been treated with such utter disregard for their feelings as has just been shown by Mayor J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley, Cal., in a letter addressed to the members of the Associated Charities of San Francisco.

These good people are soon to give a public dinner, and they courteously invited Mayor Wilson to attend it, incidentally informing him that the price per cover would be $3, and that a post-prandial feature would be an exhibition of pictures illustrating "the battle with poverty and "sickness in the homes of San Francisco's "poor." In reply the Mayor of Berkeley did not send an acceptance with thanks or a declination with regrets—the two courses to which convention restricts the recipient of such a courtesy. Instead he sat down, wrote, and sent to the papers as well as to the Associated Charities folk a long communication in which he declined, not with regrets, but with hot denunciation of people who could eat a big dinner while talking about and observing portrayals of hungry wretches in the slums.

He declared that on the salary Berkeley paid its Mayor he couldn't afford to spend $3 for a single meal, and he was sure that he wouldn't if he could, because he considered such a feast "vulgar and ostentatiously pagan." The price fixed, he said, was a subtle warning for men of small resources to keep away and made the banquet a class or society function, like the so-called charity ball, which he also detested. Foreseeing criticism for making public his refusal to attend the dinner, instead of staying away and saying nothing if he didn't want to come, the Mayor says that "if anything under "heaven should be open to the moral sense "of the community it is the activities and "functions of organized associated charities," and he objects particularly to the picturing of the miseries of the poor to "over-fed banqueters," because "it is now "acknowledged by every social thinker "and worker of any importance than these "poor are made poor by unjust social "and economic conditions."

In this manner the Mayor runs on at length, setting down, evidently, everything he could think of that seemed likely to give pain to his would-be hosts. What they have to say in answer to the lecture is not recorded in the San Francisco papers now at hand.

Fault-finding Made a Hard Task. Even the new Grand Central Station, it seems, doesn't content everybody, for it has been criticised as essentially wrong in plan in that the through traffic—the passengers who are making long journeys—will be crowded and incommoded by the commuters with their different needs and habits!

Not many representatives of either class, we think, will be deeply grieved by this peculiarity. As a matter of fact, there is no appreciable difference between the two sorts of travelers, and their usage of a railway station is about the same except for the fact that the commuters, knowing their way about better, make no trouble for anybody by asking questions or blocking doors while performing ceremonies of farewell, osculatory and other, with friends left behind.

Perhaps in an ideal provision of transportation facilities the commuters wouldn't go to the station at all, but would be carried from home to business and back with few or no changes of line or conveyance. That ideal may be approximated when the subways are all built and the suburban railways are far better co-ordinated with them than at present. The new station will do something better than very well for now, and its simple magnificence almost reconciles the habitual growlers to the climbing of rampes.

One little thing the managers of the station might do. All travelers, and commuters in particular, like to set their watches by "railroad time," which, whether just right or not, is the time most important to them. This watch-setting would be more easy and satisfactory if on the dials of the station clocks the minute marks which are also hour marks were made more readily distinguishable from their fellows. The station's nearness to perfection is well proved by the fact that this microscopic blemish has attracted attention and caused comment.

CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES

Should Require a Majority of the Registered Voters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The admirable letter to The Times of Mrs. Helen K. Johnson throws a clear light on the "woman suffrage" demand and points to the only right road if women are to have "equal rights with men." If the suffragists are sincere in preaching "the simple justice of equality" they will promptly advocate Mrs. Johnson's proposed amendment to the Constitution of New York, which would establish equality of men and women under all laws.

And with her amendment another ought to be adopted, one which I have suggested on several occasions and which I have found strongly approved by members of the Legislature and other citizens, namely, an amendment requiring that any change in the Constitution shall require the votes of a majority of the registered voters. The State Constitutions are often altered by a minority of the voters, sometimes by an absurdly small minority, because they happen to make a majority of the votes cast. Even in the conservative East it is sometimes done, while in the West a small minority is common. In California the recent wholesale overloading of the Constitution was accomplished by a very narrow majority of a minority, some amendments being adopted by only 20 per cent. of the voters. That is, the registered voters being much less than the whole number of voters, and the votes cast being much less than the registry, the so-called "majority" which carried the amendment may be, and often is, only a minority. It has occurred again and again in the veto on constitutional amendments in New York State. It is a defect in the law which suggests serious danger, and of course it is only democratic to insist that no change shall be made in the organic law without the expressed wish of a majority of the voters.

NEW YORK'S WILD LIFE

Should Be Protected from Slaughter by Self-Styled "Naturalists."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times has always shown an interest in the protection of what is still left of wild life in our State, and therefore I am emboldened to ask you if you cannot do something to stir up a demand for the repeal, or, at least, modification, of that clause in the act for the protection of song birds which exempts from the penalties of the act the shooting of song birds "for purposes of scientific study or to add to collections of mounted birds." I do not know as I quote the clause correctly, but that in substance is what it means. Owing to that seemingly innocent clause the act is a dead letter, so far as the protection of rare and showy birds is concerned. In nearly every village of the State there lives a so-called "naturalist." He may not be much of a naturalist, measured by his scientific knowledge of the habits, the structure, and classification of birds and beasts. He is a taxidermist of a sort, and his hobby is his collection of stuffed birds. So far, and no further, is he a naturalist.

Of course, one doesn't wish to pose as an obscurantist who would block the pursuit of science. Naturalists, the real ones, must have specimens, and collections of mounted birds serve an educational purpose. But surely it would be better to put a stop at once to the making of such collections than to let the work go on at the cost of giving these pseudo-naturalists a free hand to exterminate the rarest and the most beautiful of the few song birds still able to hold their own in our fields and orchards against the hectorings of the ever-increasing swarms of English sparrows.

Mirabile Dictu.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That strange faiths are abroad in the world to-day was impressed upon me Sunday night at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, where Benjamin Fay Mills unfolded a wild and weird theory of psychology under the caption of "The Psychic Powers of Man." I was not so much surprised at the wildness of the theory set forth as I was at the avidity with which the gathering of apparently intelligent men and women, (mostly the latter, however,) seized upon it.

The address was made up of a smattering of the Bible, Emerson, Prof. James, Frederic Myers, Christian Science, hypnotism, and some stories gathered from the four winds.

Mr. Mills stated that it was his belief that by faith a man could move mountains, citing as proof the following: "A workman was caught between the wheels of an immense stone crusher, which appeared about to mash him to a jelly, but the man, by means of the tremendous power of his will, gathered together within his frame such force that he was able to shatter the vast instrument of steel." In the words of Horatio: "There needs [a] ghost come from the grave to tell me this" ere we will believe it.

Imbecile Classes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I observe that the City Superintendent of Schools recommends the discontinuance of imbecile classes in public schools—he himself being responsible for the strange innovation of assigning a teacher to the service of small classes of imbeciles, often ten or less in number, while part time existed for 90,000 pupils, and while numberless classes of improvable pupils had 50 and 60 children in them.

The theory that we have been passing through the tail of a comet, or two or three such tails, may explain the maintenance of such classes, and many sages do so explain it. But we are rapidly moving out of the gaseous atmosphere and will soon, Deo volente, be restored to educational sanity.

The Times and Its Workshop.

From The Hartford Courant.

The New York Times announced yesterday that that day's edition was printed in its new building known as The Times Annex. No single element of our daily life involves more wonderful machinery than the newspaper, itself one of the wonders of the world, and The New York Times is among the greatest papers of the day.

From The Baltimore Sun.

On Sunday last The New York Times moved into another new building, being impelled thereto by the necessities of a rapidly increasing business. Eight years ago it had to leave Park Row for the same reason; this time it simply moved around the corner, within sight and hearing of Times Square. May it continue to grow! The Times's success is a splendid illustration of the fact that accuracy, sobriety, and decency are potent causes of journalistic popularity.

From The Springfield Union.

The New York Times has just moved its operating department into an annex built expressly for the purpose and described as a "scientific newspaper workshop." The Times Building at Forty-second Street and Broadway was regarded as a splendid home for the paper at the time of its erection, and such indeed it was, but it soon became inadequate for the needs of its owners, hence the wonderful new annex, with its battery of presses capable of giving forth printed paper two pages wide at the rate of twelve and one-half linear miles a minute. When The Times removed from Park Row it followed an example that up to that time had been set by only one great daily newspaper. In thus locating in the business heart of the metropolis, at a point where every distributive channel could be utilized with the utmost economy and dispatch, The Times showed an astuteness that has been abundantly vindicated, and the provision of a new building directly around the corner from the old seems to put the paper on the best possible footing. The Times's success has been great, and speaks volumes for the esteem in which the reading public holds a newspaper that makes cleanness, accuracy, and enterprise in gathering the news its cardinal policies.

RICH ACRES NEARBY.

Tens of Thousands Lying Idle Would Feed the City.

United States Department of Agriculture,
Bureau of Soils,
Washington, Feb. 3, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are tens of thousands of acres of agricultural lands in a nearby radius of Greater New York which are not, at present, under cultivation; acres that are adapted to the production of truck crops for Summer, Fall and Winter use, fruit, live stock and dairy products. They are lands that could be made to supply to a great extent the New York markets with perishable foodstuffs which, if properly handled, would in my opinion not only relieve the question of the food supply of Greater New York but would to a large extent reduce the prevailing high prices for vegetables, meats, and poultry products.

These lands lie not only in New York State but across the river in New Jersey and Pennsylvania and in the New England States. They could be made profitably productive at a comparatively small outlay and are especially adapted to the growing of Irish potatoes, nearly every variety of vegetables, and the production of poultry.

The number of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits in this area has decreased during the past thirty years, while the total population has very largely increased. There are at present about 1,250,000 persons engaged in agricultural pursuits in the area under consideration, and a population of 26,447,310 non-agricultural persons to be fed. This area contains, therefore, nearly one-third of the population of the United States.

In a recent address I called attention to the fact that in this area there is one person engaged in agriculture to thirty-three acres of improved land, and to the utter physical impossibility of one person handling so much land as this. The ratio in the countries of Northern Europe is about one person to five acres of improved land. The Bureau of Soils estimates that the efficiency of the lands already in use can be increased at least four times by more intelligent and more intensive use; with the intelligent use of the present idle lands the efficiency of the lands of the entire area may be increased at least eight times.

The soils of this region are more varied than in any other portion of equal area in the Eastern United States. All of the eight great soil provinces east of the Great Plains region are represented in the area, although not all of the soil types. This great variety of soils is adapted to all classes of crops, from the early fruit, truck, and vegetables for Winter use, to the most intensive kind of dairy farming. The area contains the largest markets of the country; the hauls are short, permitting the minimum of freight charges, the markets are cosmopolitan and will take anything from the greatest luxury to the coarsest food.

The investigations of the bureau have shown that the soils of this area are as well adapted to intensive agriculture today as they were to pioneer methods of agriculture 100 years ago, and that near these large markets, with the variety of soils, a more stable and more intensive system of agriculture must be established. The means for accomplishing this end of the establishment of more stable forms of intensive agriculture are well deserving the most careful thought of public men and of public institutions and agencies.

MILTON WHITNEY,
Chief of Bureau of Soils.

NOT BLOOD RELATIVES.

No Statute Was Violated in Marriage of Francis Holley and Mrs. Wheeler.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the news item in The Sunday Times stating that in marrying Francis Newman Holley to Mrs. Jennie Scoville Wheeler I had married a man to his aunt, which relationship, under the general statutes of Connecticut, made the marriage void, permit me to state that no blood relationship whatever existed between the contracting parties, and that the statute quoted in no way applied to this marriage.

In fairness to all parties concerned I ask you kindly to give the same prominence to this correction that was given to the news item.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It appears that the appreciative study of the very readable school reports submitted by the investigating committee of Prof. Hanus is to be committed by the Superintendent to the very persons who so signally distinguished themselves the last ten years—I refer, of course, to the Principals, for whom nothing was too foolish to be reported favorably upon.

They reported favorably on so many amazing new devices that one hopes they at least have the grace to blush at the exposure of their educational perfidy, yet they have assigned to them the task of studying the Hanus reports. I commend the Vicar of Bray to them as a model. Their sole purpose being what it was and is, there is no need now of being anything but honest. Mere honesty is now in demand.

Theatre Ticket Agencies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a source of great satisfaction to the man who tries to buy a decent seat at a box office, only to be told that they are all sold, to learn that theatre audiences are "vanishing."

They ought to vanish until theatrical managers learn to treat the public with ordinary courtesy and consideration.

It is not altogether that people object to paying $2, the regular price for a good seat, (though in my judgment that is exorbitant,) but that they should be compelled by greedy managers to go to an agency and pay $2.50 for what they want, well knowing that the manager and the agency divide the 50 cents excess.

Will theatrical managers never get their eyes opened to the fact that the patient theatre-going worm is bound to turn some time?

Seventeen-Pound Mushrooms.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You recently published a picture of the "largest mushroom on record." All I have to say is that there are thousands bigger up in Western New York that have never been recorded. They are the Lycoperdon giganteus. The one mentioned in your article was said to weigh 7½ pounds. I have seen two that weighed 17 pounds each and one which had gone past its prime, which I did not weigh on that account, but which measured 6 feet 3 inches in circumference.

We often have them up in Western New York weighing from 7 to 14 pounds. Some years they are plentiful. Two years ago my wife canned over 40 quarts.

LOVE.

What is our love, when all is said?
Is it a pang of the heart or head,
Or, is it a throb of the soul instead?

Born in a minute, an hour, a day;
Born to be master, to force, to sway;
Born to be humble, to serve, obey.

Is it a spark which has burst to flame
At the touch of hands, a remembered name—
The heat from another fire that came?

Is it the grope of the lonely soul,
That feels for its place in the world-wide whole—
That needs its mate as the aeons roll?

What is our love? Is it blood or brain?
Do we need its solace, joy or pain,
To fit our lives for the earth-long strain?

Tell us, you who all wise things know,
Why need we love in this vale below?
Is it flesh or soul that we clasp it so?

NATIONAL BANK GUARANTEE.

Some House Investigators Favor Bryan Plan to Protect Depositors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The idea of incorporating into the proposed monetary legislation some provision for a guarantee of National bank deposits is being seriously considered by members of the Glass sub-committee of the House Banking and Currency Committee. A strong drift in this direction was shown by many of the questions put to financiers and other witnesses by Chairman Glass, Representative Korbly of Indiana, and Representative Bulkley of Ohio in recent hearings. The guarantee plan was a feature of the Denver platform of 1908, which was shaped by Col. William J. Bryan, and has been adopted in Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska.

Neither the proposed monetary legislation nor any possible recommendation of a bank guarantee plan, however, will come forward for action during this Congress. The real purpose of the Glass investigation is to obtain views as a basis for legislation under the Wilson régime.

Several members of the Glass sub-committee, who personally believe in the principle of the guarantee plan, doubt the wisdom of pressing that project as part of the monetary remedial legislation. Chairman Glass shares these doubts.

Representative Bulkley of Ohio says a majority of his colleagues on the Glass sub-committee favor the guarantee. They by no means favor a Government guarantee, but one by the banks.

GEMS IN ART GALLERIES.

French Etchings Shown at Busse's—Bolton Brown's Paintings at Katz's.

At the Busse Galleries is an exhibition of French etchings in color which covers the field occupied by this charming art since the first annual Salon of colored etchings was opened in Paris nearly ten years ago. J. F. Raffaelli was one of the first men to express his aesthetic impulse in this manner, and his etchings hold their supreme place in the presence of the whole modern school. No one ever touched the plate more crisply, with greater dexterity and lightness, no one ever so perfectly embodied in his drawing the spirit of a particular place. His little landscape with a tree, the soft gold of the foliage quivering against the tenderest of skies, a great sweep of distance, a trudging figure in the foreground, a little fence sharply dark at the base of the tree—all this makes up an inexpressibly intimate and charming whole, a landscape that you have known all your life, and for which you have kept a personal emotion. Then there is the old woman watering flowers at a window, spectacled, with experienced and slightly inquisitive physiognomy, mildly beneficent, and not absorbed in the task at hand. How the delicate line floats about this figure, enveloping it in atmosphere! How it is unlike Daumier in its expression of the same type of person engaged in the same occupation as Daumier's model of the flower pots!

In these simple works, which any one with a reasonable bank account may own, we get a multiplication of pleasure. These poor old contented people, with their fondness for flowers, are of the same race as Millet's peasants, and the artist who succeeds in reproducing their special character shares the honors of Millet and all other poets of poverty.

We confess to liking Raffaelli's crisp, concise method, which is never oppressive or insistent, rather better than the method employed by Latenay, for example. But each has its merits. The later etchers have shown a tendency toward more complete realization of their subject. In place of Raffaelli's suggestive synthesis, they present a plate well filled with color and misty depth of chiaroscuro. Their work is often very dignified and rich. We recall a glimpse of Versailles by Jourdains, an Autumnal scene by Latenay, and other admirable works, yet we go back with renewed pleasure to the light touch, the quick wit, the easy mastery of Raffaelli. The etchings are to be on view until Feb. 15.

⁂

At the Louis Katz Galleries a group of paintings by Bolton Brown is on view through this week. Several of them we have described on other occasions. The "Blue Butterfly" is new to us. It shows two women, nude, in a green and golden landscape. One is seated, and the other bends over the butterfly poised above a pale red flower. An exquisite sky and the golden tone of the flesh tints claim attention, but the diaphanous character of the bodies, in contrast with the greater solidity of the landscape, produces a troublesome impression of compromise between the real and the ideal.

⁂

Rowlandson was a caricaturist, so was Daumier, so was Leech. It is only necessary to look at their drawings in the light of matured judgment to see how much more than a caricaturist each of these artists was. The remarkably fine collection of Rowlandson's work at Knoedler's sufficiently demonstrates the beautiful quality of his art. Was there ever a lighter, gayer touch in England? Was there ever a fresher, less hackneyed vision? Was there ever a finer tact in the disposition of pure pale color? He was a true creator. When he said to his puppets, "Move," they obeyed him with zest. How his horses race and rear and balk: how his little dogs scramble over walls and dash at invading strangers, and keep pace with stage coach and phaeton. Those wonderful little dogs! Some one has divided humanity into two classes, those who love coffee and dogs and those who love tea and cats. Rowlandson was in the former class. His cats are atrocious, but his dogs hold the key to every situation. The somnolent spirit of the whole composition is in the dog's head on his master's knee in the famous drawing "The Smithfield Sharpers":

> Old Trusty with his Town-made Friends,
> To gentle sleep himself commends,
> With Tray upon his knees.

And in "A Runaway Chase" the opposite spirit of bustle and excitement is embodied in the figure of the dog barking wildly at the horses. In the same way the greed of "The Squire's Kitchen" is expressed in the little dog pawing at the knee of one of the men from his post under the table. In each case the age-long sympathy between the mood of the dog and that of his master is illustrated and adds a touch of sound, simple humor to scenes that are sometimes outside the taste of the twentieth century, although the coarser drawings and the political caricatures, with their vulgar gibes, have been rigorously excluded. To know Rowlandson aright one must know him in his pastorals, and this side of his work is opulently represented in the present collection.

An exhibition of drawings by John Downman is at the Hodgkins Galleries. This eighteenth century English artist made no pretense to the monumental qualities of a Reynolds or to the insistent charm of a Romney, but his delicate truthtelling nevertheless won him an important place among his contemporaries. He had an interesting history. He came of Quaker stock and studied at the Royal Academy schools under the Quaker Benjamin West. Just after his marriage he was forcibly recruited for the navy, and was away from England two years. On his return he found his wife and their twin children in great poverty, and living in a garret. He seems to have been prompt to make a living for them, however, and exhibits portraits of Lady Charlotte Waldegrave, Lady Newton, Miss Boyd, Miss Farren, and other well-known personages of his day. His charming method of drawing on very thin paper in black chalk with stumped shadows, heightening the drawing with stains of color mostly applied on the back of the drawing, was developed quite by accident. Soon after his return from the sea he happened to leave one of his black and white drawings wrong side uppermost on a table with his painting materials. One of his children got hold of a paint brush and daubed color over the paper back of where the face was drawn. Downman, finding his drawing spoiled, started to throw it away, but was arrested by the effect of the color showing through the thin paper, and afterward adopted this treatment.

On many of his sketches he has written notes concerning the sitter in which no little humor is displayed. On Mrs. Ford's portrait he wrote: "Objected to having her portrait painted and looked at me in a most unpleasant manner"; on Lady Newton's: "She sometimes wore light hair as well as dark"; on a portrait of a child: "A tiresome little fidget." An American collector has restored Downman to his early fame and at present the prices asked for his work are very high.

ALVIN UNTERMYER WEDS MISS CHISOLM

Eldest Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm a Bride at Home Ceremony.

PAIR UNDER FLORAL BOWER

Relatives and Intimate Friends Only Attend Nuptials—Sail for Europe To-day on Honeymoon.

The wedding of Miss Nina Rhoades Chisolm, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm, and Alvin Untermyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, 16 East Fifty-third Street.

Owing to the illness of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. William E. Chisolm, only the relatives and intimate friends were invited.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Mottet, rector of the Church of the Holy Communion, under a bower of ascension lilies, bride's roses, and greens, placed at the North end of the drawing-room, on the second floor.

The guests stood in the drawing-room and in the large hall adjoining, where an orchestra played behind a screen of smilax and American Beauty roses, the wedding music from "Lohengrin" announced the approach of the bridal party, which came down the staircase. Miss Winifred Chisolm, who was her sister's only attendant, preceded the bride, who walked with her father.

The Bridal Costume.

The bride wore a gown of silver cloth with a court train, trimmed with old rose point lace, and her point lace veil, which was worn by her mother at her marriage, fell from a cap effect and was surmounted by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Winifred Chisolm appeared in a costume of lace slashed with green satin, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Irwin Untermyer acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers included Daniel M. Coffin, Hugh K. Prichett, Francis L. Madden and H. Randolph Guggenheimer.

Grouped around the bower were the immediate families. Mrs. Chisolm wore a gown of cream-colored lace and silver, and her third daughter, Miss Dorothy Chisolm, wore a pink frock, while the two young sisters of the bride, the Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Chisolm, were in white frocks with touches of blue. Mrs. Untermyer wore a costume of gray satin and lace.

After congratulations were over a buffet supper was served by Sherry in the dining room, which was festooned with smilax. The stairways were also hung with smilax, and the three large pillars in the hallway on the second floor were twined with smilax and ascension lilies. There were dainty boxes of wedding cake for the women, and boxes of cigarettes, all bearing the monogram of the couple in gilt, for the men.

Shortly before six o'clock Mr. Untermyer and his bride left the house amid showers of rice, Mrs. Untermyer in a traveling suit of dark blue edged with fur, with a hat to match. They sail to-day on the Carmania for Europe, and on their return will reside at 34 West Tenth Street.

General music director, Cleofonte Campanini.

The Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company began its series of performances of French opera at the Metropolitan Opera House before a very large audience. The opera was Gustave Charpentier's "Louise," which had not been heard in New York for two seasons. Mr. Dippel's company did not perform it here last year, though he gave it twice in New York two seasons ago. "Louise" has been popular in New York. It kept the interest of the operagoing public for three seasons at Mr. Hammersteins' house, and was again heard with interest two seasons ago at the Metropolitan, as it was last evening. It has thus disconcerted those who dismally shook their heads and predicted that New York could neither understand nor enjoy a work so essentially Parisian in its spirit and atmosphere. But New York did appreciate this picture, which is so vivid, so vivacious, and amusing, and again touching on pathetic. It accepted even the rapture and ecstacy which Paris, the word and the thing, sums up in the breasts of Julien and Louise and their companions, even if the union of extreme realism and poetic symbolism, sometimes extravagant, with which Charpentier has presented it, was found difficult.

The music, even if it can hardly lay claim to real originality, and is in large part derived from easily recognizable sources, Wagner, Berlioz, and even Massenet, has abundant life and picturesqueness. There is much fluent and ingratiating melody, under rich and brilliant orchestration. Many of its leading motives have character and expressiveness, often lending themselves to the composer's characterization of the lighter and more joyous phases of the Parisian life that he has been most successful in depicting. There is, however, little in the opera that is more successful than the final scene, in which the father tries to win back the wayward daughter to his way of thinking and living—a scene of much tenderness and pathos.

Much depends in "Louise" upon the realty of the setting, whether commonplain and mean, as in the first act and the last, or the characteristic night picture at Montmartre, or brilliant and picturesque as the garden and festival in the third act. Much depends also on the atmosphere with which these pictures are presented; and in these respects the performance as given last evening was successful. It was more successful than it has been at some previous performances of the opera; especially in the night scene on Montmartre in the second act, which has benefited by the restoration of certain portions previously cut out. Nor is anything in the opera more ingenious or more successfully achieved than the musical use of the sheet cries that the composer has made a part of his score. It has been done in a measure before; but it has not been done with an effect so wholly charming or of such musical value. The scene of the festival on Montmartre, also one the significant passages of the opera as a part of the picture of Paris was admirably represented.

The burden of a successful representation of "Louise" is by no means borne chiefly by the principal characters, but most of the forty-four who appear in the cast have something of importance to contribute to the whole, and many of these were of commendable excellence. Miss Garden's Louise accomplishes a close identification of her personality with that of the Parisian working girl, to which she gives a peculiar buoyancy and hard brilliancy, with its vulgarity, sentimentality, selfishness, and petulance. Her singing is deplorable. Mr. Dalmorès is strikingly appropriate in his appearance as Julien—he still makes the hero a portrait of the composer—and vigorous in his action and singing. But it must be said, reluctantly, that his voice has not now the beauty of his first years in New York. Mr. Dufranne sang with superb and masculine power. He disclosed his admirable art in his impersonation of the most sympathetic character of the opera, the nameless father, of which he presents the full flavor. And even more skillful is Mme. Louise Bérat as the equally nameless mother, a beautiful studied piece of characterization, presented with a vivid sense of reality and without a gesture or a movement too much.

Mr. Campanini conducted with his firm grasp on everything in the orchestra and upon the stage, and the orchestral performance was excellent in its full body and variety of nuance.

MME. BUTT AND MR. RUMFORD

The English Singers Appear Together in a Recital.

Mr. Kennerley Rumford, who has been prevented by illness from appearing with his wife, Mme. Clara Butt, at a joint song recital planned by them three weeks ago, had recovered yesterday and the joint recital was given in Carnegie Hall. It was not the first time Mr. Rumford had sung in New York, however, for he had appeared at the Hippodrome in a popular concert. He sang yesterday a group of German songs, another of English songs, and joined Mme. Butt in two duets, by Liza Lehmann.

Mr. Rumford's voice is a light baritone, approaching a tenor quality. It has few resources in expressiveness or variety of color; its main resource, in fact, appears to be a potential sob that lies near the surface in most of his interpretations of serious music. It must be said that he made little effect with his German songs and scarcely showed that he penetrated deeply into their significance. One of his greatest excellences as a singer is his diction, which is unusually clear in both English and German.

Mme. Butt sang songs by Brahms and Schubert, a group of English songs, and one by Saint-Saëns.

MRS. FISH GIVES MARDI GRAS.

Masked Dancers and Marie Dressler Entertain Her Guests.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish was the hostess last night at a Mardi Gras entertainment, preceded by a dinner for sixty. The tables were decorated with white roses and green leaves.

After dinner several hundred were asked in for the Mardi Gras procession and dances. The dancers and entertainers wore masks, and the procession was led by six little pages in old-time Court costumes, who opened a path for a Harlequin and Columbine and four dancers in French costume, who carried musical instruments, and played as they danced.

The two Sapanish dancers, the Casinos, danced Spanish dances. Mlle. Mantilla, a Greek dancer, appeared, and four trobadours in Venetian costume sang and played old Italian songs. Marie Dressler also provided much enjoyment with her funny songs, and a Greek seer, Kahldah, read palms and peered into the future for the edification of the guests.

After dinner the dining room was turned into a supper room, where a buffet supper was served continuously, and four darkies in plantation garb played on banjoes and sang plantation songs.

The dinner guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. De Lancey Kountze, Mr. and Mrs. George B. De Forest, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederick Pierson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Horace Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey M. MR. SAPIRSTEIN'S RECITAL.

Young American Pianist Appears for the Second Time This Season.

David Sapirstein, a young American pianist, who made his first appearance here in the earliest days of the season, gave another recital yesterday in Aeolian Hall. This recital showed, as the erlier one did, a sincere striving after the highest ideals, a fearless looking of great difficulties in the face, and a courageous dealing with them. At his first recital Mr. Sapirstein played Beethoven's so-called "Hammerklavier" sonata; at this one he played the same master's sonata, Op. 110, large parts of which are scarcely less difficult.

He made an interesting experiment with Chopin in playing the four ballades in chronological order. He closed with Busoni's enormously clever transcription of Liszt's "Mephisto" waltz. His Chopin playing suffers to a certain extent from an excess of "rubato," which he uses to a degree that seriously injures the rhythm of the music. Mr. Sapirstein's technique is ample and brilliant. It is also well controlled—controlled by thought and musical feeling. It may well be believed that the years will bring him a greater maturity and measure where these things are now to a certain extent lacking.

OLD STEAMSHIP AGENT DIES.

J. F. H. Meyer Represented the Hamburg-American Line for 42 Years.

Jürgen F. H. Meyer, who was a member of the firm of Kunhardt & Co., general agents of the Hamburg-American Line from 1847 to 1889, died yesterday at his home in Hoboken, N. J. Mr. Meyer was born in Bremen, Germany, in 1837. When he became connected with the firm of Kunhardt & Co. the service between New York and Hamburg was maintained by sailing vessels alone. Mr. Meyer saw the first steamship of the Hamburg-American Line, the Borussia, enter the port of New York in the Summer of 1856.

On the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the coming of the Borussia Mr. Meyer wrote a book entitled "Reminiscences of Early Steamship Days." It records the wonderful development of the Port of New York during his lifetime. As a partner in the firm of Kunhardt & Co. Mr. Meyer directed the affairs of the Hamburg-American Line for many years and became one of the best known steamship men in this country.

He was known in shipping circles as "Steamer" Meyer. He retired from business many years ago because of ill-health. Mr. Meyer is survived by two daughters and four sons, one of whom is J. P. Meyer, Vice Director of the Hamburg-American Line in New York.

MRS. CARTER ACTS PAULA TANQUERAY

And Provides a Very Good Performance of the Role Under Difficult Conditions.

PLAY'S INTEREST HOLDS

But Some Very Bad Actors Help to Make the Way of the Star Anything but a Happy and Easy One.

THE SECOND MRS. TANQUERAY, a play in four acts by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. Thirty-ninth Street Theatre.

Paula	Mrs. Leslie Carter
Aubrey Tanqueray	Brandon Hurst
Cayley Drummle	Norman Tharp
Capt. Hugh Ardale	Albert Perry
Sir George Orreyed, Bart.	Hamilton Mott
Gordan Jayne, M. D.	Leon Brown
Frank Misquith, K. C. M. P.	R. G. Thomas
Morse	John A. Rice
Ellean	Miss Maude Hanaford
Mrs. Cortelyou	Miss Corah Adams
Lady Orreyed	Miss Mabel Archdall

It would be difficult, not to say impossible, to finally assess Mrs. Leslie Carter's individual performance of the role of Paula Tanqueray in Pinero's play under the conditions which prevail at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre. For it must be obvious to any but a novice in these matters that the acress is laboring under exceptional difficulties. In at least one of her most important scenes she suffers the disadvantages which come from the presence on the scene of that unfortunate type of person who is surest of a laugh when he seems most serious and elsewhere throughout the performance it is apparent that not Broadway, but the far reaches of Harlem and the farther reaches of that indefinite region known as the road, marked the original destination of this revival.

But present conditions in the theatrical business are such that Mrs. Carter, presumably booked for a comparatively inconspicuous engagement in the region of the Harlem River, finds herself obliged to court critical consideration in a theatre generally devoted to regulation first nights and productions. There are, then, the double difficulties of a cast in which several farmhands appear in place of real actors and of a general performance which has not yet been allowed the time required to give it smoothness.

Despite these handicaps, however, Mrs. Carter gave a remarkably good account of herself in the rôle of Paula Tanqueray. And her acting is singularly free from those excesses and idiosyncrasies which have marred some of her more recent efforts. To have accomplished so much under the circumstances is something. For, though there are few better acting rôles in the range of modern drama than this same Paula Tanqueray, it is one that might easily be overacted. Especially in those moods where the old Paula flares through the veneer of reserve does Mrs. Carter contain herself, making the figure human and natural to a degree, yet never so tame as to be away from character.

In the scenes with Eileen where the mood changes quickly from a soft, tender emotionalism to flirty hardness, and in the passages with Mrs. Cortelyou, where she conveys with unerring skill the suggestion of a biting cynicism, the actress is adroitly varied in both the conception and exposition of character. The lighter mood of the first act might be lighter and more facile to its advantage, but here it is possible to attribute something of the shortcoming to that uncertainty which not infrequently accompanies a performance insufficiently rehearsed.

It may be mentioned, incidentally, that "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" stands the test remarkably well, a fact which merely serves to prove that when it was written Pinero was considerably ahead of most of the craftsmen of the time, both in the matters of structural technique and insight into and conveyance of the elements of character. Both the rôle of Paula Tanqueray and Cayley Drummle may still serve as models of their kind.

Mr. Brandon Hurst's "Aubrey Tanqueray," though it lacks special distinction, is a competent piece of work, and the same may be said of Norman Tharp's "Cayley Drummle." Miss Maude Hanaford is an agreeable Eileen and Mabel Archdale a somewhat overflorid Lady Orreyed. To Miss Corah Adams the scene in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," in which the King's English is murdered, may be heartily recommended. The other principals are quite as bad as even the poor, mistreated road ever gets.

Equal Security For All

Some people have the wrong idea about bonds. They labor under the mistaken impression that the man with $500 or $1,000 is at a disadvantage in selecting good bonds. They overlook the fact that all bonds of any one issue have equal margin of security, and that each bond, irrespective of its denomination, is surrounded by the same safeguards. They also fail to appreciate that the modern banking house is careful to give equal attention to all investors, whether the funds amount to five hundred dollars, one thousand dollars, or several thousand dollars.

Our Circular No. 1017, "Conservative Investments," which describes several issues of bonds in denominations of $500 and $1,000, yielding from 4.85% to 5.40%, will be sent to you on request.

Chicago & Alton Railway 3½s appear cheap at the current price of about 63 on the New York Stock Exchange—Yield 6%. They sold during 1901 at 87½.

With Union Pacific's virtual control of Chicago & Alton, the latter's credit and earnings should improve.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull and a Little Lower—Europe Hoping for Peace.

It was evident from the action of the European markets yesterday that they looked upon the news of the reopening of battle around Adrianople as the forerunner of the early establishment of peace. Had they regarded it as the beginning of another long and serious conflict capable of creating situations which might destroy the harmony which heretofore has prevailed among the great powers in dealing with the Balkan situation the market would undoubtedly have presented a very different aspect from that actually presented yesterday. They were calm and in some directions prices showed improvement. It was particularly significant that prices were firm in Berlin and in Paris, at both of which centres a great deal of sensitiveness has existed regarding any unfavorable turn in the European political situation. Our own market was governed principally by other considerations than those arising from the reopening of the war in Southeastern Europe. It was natural that our market should accept the verdict of those of Europe and look with little concern upon a situation which closer observers evidently regard as far less threatening in fact than in appearance.

Prices here as measured by the general level of quotations yielded a little, but closed at some rally from the low point of the day. The most pronounced movement among the active issues was in Southern Pacific, which declined 1¾ points on the news that the latest change in the plan for the separation of the Union Pacific from the Southern Pacific provided for the cash sale of all the Southern Pacific stock now held by the Union Pacific. Those in active touch with the negotiations which have been carried on unremittingly for many weeks are expressing the belief that the plan as now about completed will in fact leave both the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific in excellent position to continue the upbuilding of their traffic and the expansion of their operations without either seriously interfering with the future of the other property. It is felt in other words, that each will have a field in which growth of earnings will be at its command in the future as they have been in the past. This point of view ran counter to the course of Southern Pacific stock yesterday, in which chief emphasis seemed to be laid on the nearer-by view that the sale of all the stock in the Union Pacific treasury meant a very large addition to the floating supply of Southern Pacific. But again it was pointed out that the formation of underwriting syndicates was a prerequisite to the carrying out of the plan to offer the Southern Pacific stock to the shareholders of that company and of the Union Pacific, and that the underwriting of the stock would offset, in large measure at least, the effect of the increase in the market supply of Southern Pacific stock.

The annual report of the American Can Co., issued yesterday, made an excellent showing. The net earnings the past year showed an increase of 38 per cent. over 1911 and were more than double the net earnings of 1910. After charging off about $1,000,000 for improvements and depreciation compared with $2,500,000 similarly charged the previous year, there were left net profits equal to more than 15 per cent. on the company's preferred stock. The management of the company naturally takes much satisfaction in being able to make such a showing as this. The thought was in the minds of many in the financial district yesterday that having made such an excellent showing in respect to earnings, it was greatly to be regretted that the management of the company had pursued a course which closely related the dividend policy of the American Can Company with violent fluctuations in the company's shares on the Stock Exchange. Wall Street had looked yesterday for an announcement of the declaration of a large part of the accumulated dividends on the preferred stock, but none was made. It was announced that the Directors' meeting which followed the annual meeting of the stockholders, discussed only routine matters. Once again expectations were disappointed and the final chapter in the clearing up of these back dividends on American Can left to future action. The intimation yesterday was that the payment of a large part of the back dividends, which had been expected yesterday, will be ordered at the regular dividend meeting early in March. Many in the financial district expressed the hope that the remaining situation in the American Can Company's affairs will be handled in a way less conductive to violent speculation in the company's shares.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Curb Election To-Day.

The annual election of officers of the New York Curb Association takes place to-day. This event is always accompanied by reports of a hot fight against the regular nominees in the interest of insurgents clamoring for certain reforms in the method of trading. The opposition was a little slow in developing this year, but word was sent out yesterday that a strong element on the Curb was opposed to some of the things that the Board of Governors had allowed, and would vote for an insurgent candidate. The regular candidates for the Board of Governors are John L. McCormack, who comes up for re-election; Gilliat G. Schroeder, John C. Shipman, Isaac Siegel, and William A. Titus. William G. Gallagher has announced his candidacy against Mr. Siegel, and his friends were predicting last night that he would get a handsome complimentary vote. For the Nominating Committee for 1914 the candidates are Samuel G. Currie, Herbert T. Hedge, Andre Jacobi, Lawrence Swift, and Robert A. Walton. L. A. Ludwig is running for a place on the Nominating Committee on an independent ticket.

⁂

Harrimans Weaken.

Upon learning that Union Pacific's $126,000,000 in Southern Pacific stock was to be offered to shareholders in both the Union and Southern Pacific Companies around par, if the plan now under consideration by the Union Pacific management receives the approval of the courts, the shares of both companies sold off yesterday. Ordinarily the privilege of subscribing at par to new stock of an issue quoted several points above par is looked upon as a bull card on which futher advances are made. In the present case the market fears that an offering of $126,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock will greatly increase the floating supply of that issue and crowd the quotation down. Union Pacific sold yesterday from 161⅝ down to 160¼, closing at 160⅛, with a loss of only ½ point. Southern Pacific sold down 2¼ points from its high price of the day, which it made at 107, and closed at 105⅛, with a net loss for the day of 1¾.

⁂

A Wide Distribution.

So far as could be learned yesterday Union Pacific preferred stockholders will be entitled to subscribe with the common stockholders and Southern Pacific stockholders to their share of the $126,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock now held in the company's treasury. The Supreme Court refused to allow a distribution to Union Pacific stockholders alone, but the Attorney General is understood to favor a sale to the holders of both companies' stocks.

⁂

"Melons" Help Prices.

The Standard Oil of New Jersey melon of more than $39,000,000 and the possibility of another being cut by the Continental Oil Company acted as stimulants upon trading in the oil shares on the Curb yesterday. Practically all of the oil issues, except the Standard of New Jersey, rose quickly. Continental sold at $2,000 a share, with a closing bid price of $2,005, which compares with $1,875 on the day previous. Standard Oil of Kentucky advanced $50 a share, and Atlantic Refining Company about $40. Standard of New Jersey, with the good news out, rose $5, to $442, and then declined to $436 at the close.

⁂

Arbitrage Troubles.

The arbitrage rail on the Stock Exchange has witnessed less than the usual amount of activity for several days owing to the trifling profits resulting from foreign trades possible, with prices in New York and London almost the same. An unusual difficulty which arose in yesterday's market stirred up the wrath of arbitrage traders and interfered with their attempts to buy in this market and sell abroad, or vice versa. The cables grew cranky from some subterranean cause and delayed orders until they were too late to be executed at a profit.

⁂

Earnings Hold Up

Later earnings statements for December bear out the improvement indicated by the first reports which came to hand. The Great Northern did a gross business of $6,548,000, an increase of $1,564,149 over the corresponding month of 1911-12. The Missouri Pacific earned $5,377,000, a gain of $789,096. At the end of the first six months the Missouri Pacific had a balance, after the payment of charges, amounting to $976,000, as against a deficit of $1,435,000 a year ago and a deficit of $731,000 two years ago. Those roads that report their gross earnings by weeks have shown good gains throughout January. The Denver & Rio Grande earned $1,774,000, as against the $1,664,000 shown for last year; the Minneapolis & St. Louis earned $819,000, as compared with $508,000 last year, and the Missouri Pacific $5,072,000, as compared with $4,079,000 last year.

Lovett, at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the road here yesterday. H. W. Deforest and J. N Wallace, both of New York, were elected members of the committee to succeed F. A. Vanderlip and M. S. Schaff, also of New York. All the other officers were re-elected. Directors of the Houston, East & West Texas Railroad re-elected all the present officers.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Resumption of War Has Little Effect in London—Prices Firm in Paris and Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 5.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The supply of money was sufficiently large yesterday to enable the market to repay the Bank of England, but its distribution was rather patchy and rates for day-to-day advances were irregular. Short fixtures were a shade easier. The India Council renewed loans for a month at 4½ per cent.

"Discount rates were rather weaker for three months' bills and unaltered for longer maturities. Continental exchanges moved against London. The Bank received some bar gold.

"The stock markets were very quiet, there being a disposition to await the course of events in the Balkans before embarking on fresh business. On the whole the tone remained commendably steady, the markets here taking their cue from Paris.

"Chinese bonds were offered on the news that the Six-power loan agreement was completed, and Japanese subscriptions weakened to a slight extent in sympathy.

"Wall Street was a small buyer of American securities. Grand Trunk stocks benefited from the appearance of an excellent traffic return.

"Reports of fresh disturbances near Mexico City had an adverse effect on the leading Mexican railway companies' stocks. Marconi shares, after being very depressed, rallied slightly when liquidation ceased."

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes 88 francs 87½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Trading was quiet and prices were firm on the Börse to-day.

Stability of Earnings

The operation of several Public Utility corporations by a single management reduces the operating cost because of the numerous economies that can be effected. This means larger and more stable net earnings than could be secured were the same properties operated separately.

With stability of earnings assured and ample property securing the bonds, the only other element desired is a satisfactory return on the investment. This is supplied in the high-grade bonds of Public Utility corporations that we control and operate and which we offer to conservative investors.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Heaviness marked the closing on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with special weakness reflected in one or two quarters. Southern Pacific declined sharply, and its action helped to create unsettlement elsewhere in the list. Among the specialties, Colorado Fuel was a particularly weak spot, with its recession accompanied by active odd lot trading. Activity in American Can was one of the features of the session. Its increased volume of business, which was much more than twice that of the day before, was at the expense of prices.

Is my money safe?
Can I get it when I want it?
Is my income satisfactory?

These are important questions for the investor to ask himself when placing his money at interest. The answers must depend largely on his understanding of the following general truths.

BANKS as a rule are a safe place for your money and you can usually draw it on demand, but the interest return is uniformly low.

LISTED STOCKS as a rule are readily marketable, but they are subject to wide fluctuations and if they cease to pay dividends, you have no redress.

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGES as a rule are safe enough and produce a fair income return, but they demand constant attention and it is very difficult to get your money when you want it.

INVESTMENT BONDS purchased through a representative Bond House, are safe because they are secured by municipal credit or by mortgage on income producing property. They pay a fixed and enforceable rate of interest and are readily salable and steady in price.

DELAY ACTION ON CAN PREFERRED DIVIDEND

MAY PAY ARREARS IN MARCH

Meanwhile the Company Shows Earnings of 7 Per Cent. on Preferred and 9 Per Cent. on Common.

The Directors of the American Can Company met yesterday after the annual stockholders' meeting and re-elected the old officers. President F. S. Wheeler announced afterward that no action had been taken in any form in regard to paying off the 32¾ per cent. arrears of dividends on the preferred stock, a step which Wall Street had been led to expect by the recent great activity in American Can shares. Mr. Wheeler said the Directors would not act upon dividends until the regular meeting early in March.

The company's report of earnings in 1912, as disclosed at the stockholders' meeting in Jersey City, showed net profits of $6,539,046, in contrast with $2,916,339 in the previous year. This amount, applicable to the $41,233,300 preferred stock, was equivalent to 15.85 per cent. on the shares, or, allowing for the payment of 7 per cent. only on the preferred, the company's balance was equal to nearly 9 per cent. on the common stock.

The excellent display of earnings was made, the report showed, in the face of a total sum spent for new construction work in the company's plants of more than $11,000,000. In the previous year $8,907,000 was expended in operations of expansion, and in 1910 $7,654,400. The depreciation fund was increased by $983,685, a figure $1,500,000 less than was reserved in the previous twelve months, but larger by $300,000 than the appropriations for depreciation in 1910 and 1909.

The report placed the company's assets at $98,463,061 including a valuation of nearly $71,000,000 on plants and real estate and cash on hand amounting to $4,148,684. The working capital, President Wheeler stated in the report, amounted at the end of the year to $13,417,760, and the surplus of $11,843,870 showed an increase over 1911 of more than $4,000,000.

The report said:

> In forecasting the coming year the outlook appears satisfactory and promises returns that will compare favorably with the past year. Contracts already made and other business in reasonable prospects justify this expectation. The practice of packing commodities in small containers representing individual units of consumption is steadily increasing, and new articles are being added to the list. This feature, coupled with the steady growth of the country, insures a reliable market for your company's products. Competition is keen and aggressive, but with your company's plants well located geographically, well equipped with the most modern and efficient machinery known, (chiefly built in its own shops from designs of its own experts,) and with the capable organization of trained men which the company fortunately possesses, it may reasonably rely on a continuance of large and growing business.

The stockholders ratified in their meeting the $15,000,000 debenture bond issue decided upon by the Directors last week. Nothing was said as to the disposition of funds derived from the sale of the bonds, $14,000,000 of which already have been underwritten by bankers and which Wall Street has believed would be used to pay off the $13,000,000 dividends in arrears on the preferred stock.

TWO PACIFIC ROADS AGREE ON DIVISION

PREFERRED STOCK TO SHARE

Directors of the Two Lines Called in Meeting to Ratify Terms of the Agreement.

Directors of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific have been called to a meeting to-morrow to take final action on the plan which has been worked out for the separation of the two systems in compliance with the recent decision of the Supreme Court. It is expected that such details as have not yet been definitely decided upon by the special committees at work on the matter will be rounded out to-day or early on Thursday in time for submission to the Directors at their meeting.

Besides providing for the underwriting of the $126,650,000 of Southern Pacific stock which the Union Pacific is to sell around par, the plan calls for the payment of the purchase price of this stock in installments. This will facilitate considerably the financing of this sale.

One of the points which still remained unsettled yesterday was the exact division of the $126,650,000 Southern Pacific stock as between the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific shareholders. Roughly, however, it was understood that in all probability the Southern Pacific shareholders would be allowed to subscribe to one share of Southern Pacific for each three shares which they now hold and that the Union Pacific stockholders would have the right to subscribe to one share of Southern Pacific for each four shares of Union Pacific now held. This would require in round numbers the allotment of about $48,000,000 of this Southern Pacific stock for subscription by the Southern Pacific shareholders and about $79,000,000 for subscription by the holders of Union Pacific. These two make a total of $127,000,000. The Union Pacific's recorded holdings amount to $126,650,000.

These figures take count of the preferred as well as of the common stock of the Union Pacific. Both classes of stock, it is understood, will be allowed to subscribe on equal terms. The holders of Union Pacific convertible bonds will share in the subscription only in the event of their converting their bonds into stock before the date fixed for subscription.

Out of the cash realized by the Union Pacific on the sale of its Southern Pacific the Union Pacific will pay approximately $100,000,000 to the Southern Pacific Company for the Central Pacific. In addition to this cash, the Union Pacific, if this detail of the present plan is not changed in the final stages of the negotiations, will also turn over to the Southern Pacific between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 in bonds. The Union Pacific, it is known, has $5,400,000 of Southern Pacific bonds in its treasury.

No effort has been made to put into the plan as it is to be submitted to the Directors to-morrow detailed agreements regarding the leasing back to the Southern Pacific of certain parts of the Central Pacific which the Union Pacific does not intend to retain for its own use exclusively. These leases and other similar matters will be agreed to in the plan only in a general way, it being provided that the terms of the leases shall be left to future agreement. In the event of failure of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific to agree, the plan, it is reported, will provide that the terms be fixed by arbitration between the two roads.

One of the parts of the Central Pacific which the Union Pacific is certain not to retain is the section from Tehama, Cal., to the Oregon State line, which forms part of the Southern Pacific through line from San Francisco to Portland. This section of the Central Pacific may be leased to the Southern Pacific in perpetuity, with a provision that the Southern may buy it at a price to be agreed upon at the maturity of the existing Central Pacific's mortgages which cover that part of the line. This arrangement will leave the existing mortgages undisturbed, despite the change in the ownership of the Central Pacific.

Even after its acquisition by the Union Pacific the Central Pacific will be maintained under a separate management. It will be headed by a President other than the President of the Union Pacific and will keep its headquarters in San Francisco. Thus the identity of the Central Pacific will be retained, although stock control will rest with the Union Pacific.

What use the Southern Pacific Company will make of the great amount of cash which the carrying out of this plan will put into its Treasury has not been made known. It will, of course, provide the company with all the money which it is likely to need for a long time to come, and will do this without adding to the company's indebtedness. It has all along been regarded as possible that, in connection with the sale of the Central Pacific, the Southern Pacific would retire its collateral trust bonds, which are secured by Central Pacific stock of which there are about $28,000,000 outstanding. Since the present plan began to take final form these bonds have risen from 92½ to 97. They are subject to call at par. The market, however, is without definite information regarding the company's plans in respect to these bonds.

Wage Increase in Effect.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 4.—The increase in wages promised by the United States Steel Corporation went into effect to-day. President Olcott of the Oliver Mining Company said that the rates for surface labor were advanced from $2.10 to $2.25 a day. Rates for other sorts of labor, both surface and underground, were adjusted, he said, so as to give the highest percentage of increase to the employes receiving the least.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat and Corn Advance—Cotton Quiet, with Close Steady.

Renewed hostilities in the Near East caused advances in the wheat market and prices regained all of Monday's loss, closing at a net advance of ¼c to ⅝c. Aggressive buying in the corn market caused prices to advance steadily throughout the day's session, with the close firm at a net advance of 1c to 1¼c. Trading in cotton was quiet, and the close was steady at an advance of 5 to 8 points.

WHEAT.

News in the wheat market was more in favor of holders and prices regained all of Monday's loss, closing at a net advance of ¼@⅝c. The foreign advices were particularly bullish. The renewed hostilities between Turkey and the Balkan States had a pronounced influence on sentiment, and prices in the foreign markets were generally higher. The foreign crop summary indicated unfavorable crop conditions in Northwestern Europe, while from Russia complaints were received for an inadequate snow covering, and it is said that merchants in India claim that 10 per cent. of the wheat surplus is gone, and if the drought continues another ten days, 70 per cent. will be lost. The liberal world's exports were offset by the good consuming demand abroad, but the European visible supply showed an increase during the week of 1,396,000 bushels, compared with an increase last year of 1,500,000 bushels. Advices from Canada indicated a better foreign demand for Canadian wheat, and sales were reported of 32 loads. The weather over the West was much colder, and while the recent snowfall would doubtless protect the wheat in many localities, there were said to be large areas where the covering was very slight, while some were entirely bare. Receipts at primary points were somewhat smaller, and cash markets were steady, although the demand for cash wheat was not especially active. The firmness in corn exerted more or less influence on wheat, and the selling was not aggressive. Bradstreet's visible supply showed a decrease east of the Rockies of 190,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 1,053,000 bushels last year, but world's stocks increased 2,701,000 bushels, against an increase of 586,000 bushels a year ago. In the local market No. 3 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.09½, elevator, and $1.11, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.01¼, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

There was aggressive buying in the corn market, and prices advanced steadily throughout the session, closing firm at a net advance of 1c to 1¼c. Cash interests were said to be good buyers in the West, and the market appeared to feel the effect of recent large export sales, although sales for the day amounted to only 13 loads. Country offerings were somewhat larger at the advance, which gave rise to predictions of larger receipts, but there was comparatively little pressure of hedging operations on the market. Bradstreet's visible supply increased 433,000 bushels, compared with an increase last year of 1,715,000 bushels. Export corn in the local market was quoted at 57¾, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

The oats market was firmer in sympathy with corn, and on buying by prominent commission houses. Bradstreet's visible decreased, 154,000 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 677,000. The local cash market was quiet; standard white, 39c; No. 3, 38½c; No. 4, 37½ to 38c; natural white, 37 to 39c; white clipped, 37½ to 41c, all track.

PROVISIONS.

Trading in the provision market was only moderately active, but prices were firmer on buying by commission houses, prompted by an advance of 5 to 10 points in the hog market and in sympathy with the firmness in corn. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 21,000; estimated for Wednesday, 38,000; Kansas City received 18,000 and Omaha 15,000.

COTTON.

The cotton market was very quiet yesterday and fluctuated within a range of 9 or 10 points, the close being steady and 5 to 8 points above the final figures of Monday. News items bearing on the situation were limited, and were evidently of a character inspiring no immediate interest. Leading trade brokers were small but steady buyers of July, while during the early trading there was a little demand from foreign houses, and some buying through people with Southern mill connections appeared on the afternoon advance. Otherwise trading was chiefly local, and in the absence of more general business it required comparatively small orders to swing prices either way.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points, in response to better Liverpool cables than expected, but the English news inspired no aggressive support, and the local market soon eased off under commission house liquidation, the appearance of which promoted scattered local pressure. After selling a point or two under Monday's closing figures, the market rallied on covering, and closed at practically the best prices of the day.

The steadiness of Liverpool in spite of renewed hostilities in the Balkans was emphasized by local bulls as reflecting the activity of Manchester, and reduced estimates of the East Indian crop. On the other hand there was nothing to indicate any improvement in spot demand, and it is still too early in the year for complaints of delayed farm work to make any impression on local bears, who believe that Southern planters intend to increase their acreage. According to estimates received from Kansas City and St. Louis, sales of mules so far this season are ahead of previous records, which would seem a point confirming the attitude of the planter with reference to acreage, but some few scattering reports from the Eastern belt suggest that apprehension of a late Spring are leading farmers to go slowly in the matter of preliminary field work. Southern spot markets as officially reported were generally unchanged. New Orleans was closed yesterday, but will be open for business to-day as usual. After the close to-night there will be a meeting of the New York Revision Committee, at which it is anticipated moderate reductions will be made in low grade penalties.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 12.95 for middling upland; sales nil.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading in the cottonseed oil market was more active, and prices early in the day were firm, with a net advance of 7 to 10 points. Shorts were nervous and inclined to cover, and there was evidence of new outside buying. The better demand appeared to be the result of a belief that the technical position in oil is strong while, furthermore, offerings of crude from the South were light, and competing edible greases showed considerable strength. The firmness in lard also had a bullish influence on sentiment, but late in the session the market lost part of the advance, closing at a net gain of 4 to 9 points under realizing.

COFFEE.

At the outset prices were 3 to 12 points lower on heaviness abroad. A steadier feeling ensued, and the near months advanced to above the previous close. Later there was renewed selling, and the close was easy, unchanged, to 11 points net lower. Total sales, 74,000 bags. Havre closed at noon with a net decline of ¼ franc. Hamburg was ¾ pfennig lower to ¼ higher, and in Brazil prices were unchanged. Cost and freight offers were firm, at an advance of 10 to 15 points.

FEARS SAVINGS BANK TRUST.

Senator Brown Says Big Institution Would Refuse to Make Small Loans.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Senator Pollock's bill permitting the merging of savings banks was attacked in the Senate to-day by Senator Brown, the Republican leader, who said that under its provisions a dangerous savings bank trust could be formed. Senator Pollock said the bill had the indorsement of the State Banking Department and of the State Association of Savings Banks.

Senator Brown said that it was better to have several small savings banks than one large one. He said that a bank with many millions of deposits would refuse to make a loan for a smaller sum than $40,000. In small institutions it would be possible to get small loans. Mr. Brown said that the proposed legislation would put the first blot on the history of the State savings banks.

Senator Pollock said that some of the banks were not keeping sufficient reserves. The measure was advanced to the order of passage.

Paper Forms for Drinking Cups Lower—Many Protests Fail.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a protest by A. H. Ringk & Co. against taxing paper forms, or embossed cutouts, for individual drinking cups, under Paragraph 411, Tariff act of 1909, at 4½ cents a pound as paper having a surface design. The importers won on Paragraph 415, a rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem on paper cut or die-cut into forms or shapes.

The board affirmed the Collector on trimmings of cotton and metal threads, taxed at 15 cents a pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 179 of the present law as fabrics in chief value of metal thread. An official analysis disproved the contention of the importers that the goods were mostly cotton, dutiable under Paragraph 349.

The Southern Pacific Company failed to get a reduction on cotton rugs, taxed under Paragraph 393 of the act of 1909 at 50 per cent. The company asked 45 per cent. ad valorem on manufactures of cotton.

Protests unsupported by evidence and lost were by A. H. Ringk Express Company, Snow's United States Sample Express Company, P. C. Kuyper & Co., Hass Brothers, O. Falk & Co., F. L. Kraemer & Co., A. A. White, Heyliger & Raubitschek, Hawley & Letzerich, and F. Ludewig & Co.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Brazil sent to the United States 100,000,000 pounds more of coffee in 1912 than in the previous year. Colombia increased her exports here by 25,000,000 pounds, and Venezuela by 14,000,000 pounds, according to a report of the Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce. The total exports from Brazil to this country last year were 675,000,000 pounds, Colombia 81,000,000 pounds, and Venezuela 38,000,000 pounds. Of India rubber there came here from Brazil last year 48,000,000 pounds, as compared with 35,000,000 pounds the year before.

BOX APPLES LESS POPULAR.

Trade Going Back to Barrels as Carriers—Not So Expensive.

According to M. Steinhart of Steinhart & Kelly, the box apple trade was seriously overdone last season and prices obtained were below the cost of production and shipping. Box apples from prominent Western producing points proved to be a drug in the market, and sales languished in consequence.

There has been during the last season or two a swing back to the barrel as a more satisfactory method of packing for shipment, and box apples have lost something of their popularity. The expense of boxing is relatively larger, and there is considerable complaint regarding the difficulties of proper handling and storage.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB LABORATORY TO GO

Fully Equipped Testing Room for Motor Appliances May Be Discontinued March 1.

There is no little regret among many members of the Automobile Club of America over the fact that the experimental laboratory, one of the finest for testing automobile engines and appliances in the world, may be given up on March 1. The reason for the discontinuance of the laboratory is that it is an expense to the club unwarranted by the benefits derived from it by the members. There is talk of having the machinery and plant taken over by the Society of Automobile Engineers and moved to Detroit.

Those of the membership who oppose the removal of the laboratory and the cutting off of the privileges it affords take the stand, that, even if it does represent a deficit, the loss is trifling compared with the benefits obtained. They hold that there should be such a place in New York for the improvement of motor design and the general welfare of the industry, and point to the work being done by such bodies as the Royal Automobile Club and the Automobile Club of France as proof of the value of such testing facilities.

These friends of the laboratory say that it probably could be put on a paying basis, or at least a self-supporting basis if the charges for its use were raised from $40—the present rate—to $50 a day, and they add that the hard work period is past and the benefits are just now being realized, as the testing room has been booked steadily since rumors of its discontinuance got abroad. Louis Brown, who has been putting the M. I. G. A. C. non-poppet valve motor through a certified test there during the last week, praised the usefulness of the laboratory yesterday.

"It would be a shame," he said, "to have this splendid equipment wasted and end the great benefit which it has been to the industry and the still greater benefit which it is sure to be. It is a question that should have nothing to do with money. The loss is at most a matter of $4,000 or $5,000 a year, a sum which the club members could well afford to spend for the sake of maintaining such a laboratory as this. The deficit apportioned among the members would be an exceedingly slight individual tax. If the club does let the laboratory go, it is hoped that it may at least remain here in New York under some cooperative arrangement with the S. A. E. and other bodies."

AUTOMOBILE TRADE GROWING

Number of Registered Owners Shows an Increase of 21,961 Over 1912.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—The automobile business is steadily increasing in New York State. During the year 1912 the number of automobile owners registered with the Secretary of State was 107,262, an increase of 21,961 over the number recorded in 1911. During the same period 45,347 chauffeurs were licensed, an increase of 9,457 over the previous year.

The registrations were divided as follows: Pleasure vehicles, 95,484; commercial cars, 9,767; dealers, 1,716; exempt vehicles, 295.

The revenue collected for the year was $1,047,678, an increase of $132,155 over 1911. These figures are presented in the annual report of former Secretary of State Edward Lazansky.

The number of stock corporations formed during the year was 8,757; in 1911 there were 8,357. The receipts in the Corporations Bureau totaled $136,633.

WEEK'S EXPORTS UP.

Customs Figures Show Gain of $2,500,000—Year Ahead Also.

Exports from the port of New York, exclusive of specie, were again heavy in the week ended Feb. 1, being valued at $22,226,051. This figure showed a gain of close to $2,500,000 over the total of the preceding week, and came within $2,000,000 of the previous high record for 1913, made in the week ended Jan. 11. From Jan. 1 to date the exports from this port have been valued at $103,568,907, against $89,474,875 in the corresponding period in 1912. Shipments to England headed the week's list by a large margin, aggregating considerably more than $5,500,000 and more than doubling the total of the second country.

Wheat exports for the week gained nearly 400,000 bushels over those of the week before, amounting to 1,310,448 bushels. Beef shipments were somewhat lighter, with 481 barrels and 474 tierces. Among other exports of important commodities were the following:

Buckwheat, 18,310 bushels; oatmeal, 2,155 packages; flour, 18,426 barrels and 89,676 sacks; pork, 1,303 barrels; bacon, 3,311,700 pounds; hams, 217,600 pounds; lard, 6,187,750 pounds; butter, 10,150 pounds; cheese, 27,060 pounds, and cottonseed oil, 6,092,753 pounds.

BUYERS' EXHIBIT SUCCEEDS.

5, 10, and 25 Cent Shows to be an Annual Event.

The opening day of the exhibition of merchandise for the Independent 5, 10, and 25 cent stores, held under the auspices of the United Buyers Service on the third floor of the Furniture Exchange, proved so much more satisfactory than anticipated that the show will undoubtedly be an annual affair. The entire floor, embracing 42,000 square feet, has been placed at the disposal of manufacturers and buyers, and more than half of the space is covered with exhibits, ranging from a toothpick to a baling press. The Service has arranged with various manufacturers of 5, 10, and 25 cent merchandise so that over 300 lines are on display, no two alike.

The exhibition will continue until Thursday evening, in which time more than 250 buyers from all over the country are expected to attend. At noon yesterday over 100 had registered, and satisfactory reports were heard on all sides. Only members of the Service may visit the exhibition, as it is purely a trade proposition, and was brought about with a primary object of bringing together the various buyers and the manufacturers of the merchandise most wanted. As a rule buyers coming to New York spend from two to three weeks in looking around for wares, but by means of an exhibit of this kind it is now possible for a buyer to visit only one place and find there the best of the various lines he is interested in.

COAL PRICES STILL LOWER.

Soft Supply Even Better Than at Beginning of New Year.

"The propensity of the coal trade to go to extremes is well illustrated by recent developments in the anthracite industry," The Coal Trade Journal will say to-day. "Within six weeks a state of extreme activity has given way to one of unusual dullness, considering the time of year. An acute shortage has been succeeded by a fullness of supply which has not only eliminated premiums, but has left operators with more tonnage of certain sizes than they can dispose of easily even at circular.

"The first of February found soft coal in much better supply than at the beginning of the new year, and this condition was reflected in lower prices prevailing in the open market. The change is to be accredited chiefly to the absence of snow, with its hampering effect of traffic movement, and, secondly, to a let-up in the buying of last December, when consumers were making efforts to accumulate reserve stocks against exigencies of a winter which, for all they knew, might develop the usual number of railroad blockades."

THE BUSINESS WORLD

MILLS HAD POOR YEAR.

Many Fine Cotton Goods Concerns Fail to Pay Dividends.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 4.—Sanford & Kelly, investment securities brokers of New Bedford, have issued their statistics dealing with mill properties in that city. They show that the New Bedford mills had a rather poor year during 1912. It is a surprising fact to note that 25 per cent. of the mills failed to make returns to their shareholders. The average dividend rate paid during 1912 was 4½ per cent. on the capital invested.

Since the beginning of December, however, New Bedford mills have shown an improvement in conditions, but the situation is far from normal as yet. New Bedford manufacturing companies other than textile corporations have done a good business, and some have increased their dividend rates. The total capital stock of the cotton mills of New Bedford was $37,126,300 at the end of 1912; an increase of $305,000, brought about by the conversion of that amount of the bonds of the Quissett Mills into 6 per cent. preferred stock. There was no new money put into the preferred stock. The amount of cotton mills' bonds was reduced to $405,000, caused by the conversion of $305,000 bonds of the Quissett mills into preferred stock, and by the Booth Manufacturing Company management withdrawing $100,000 bonds. The number of spindles increased 16,220, the number now being 2,956,104. The number of looms is now 54,522, an increase of 240. The number of operatives employed is 32,290, an increase of 150. All the mills are now running, although some are operating about 75 per cent. There were no new mills built last year.

The following mills failed to make returns to the stockholders last year: Booth-Holmes Manufacturing Company, common; Nashaweha, Neild, New Bedford Cotton Mills, common and preferred; Page, Pierce Brothers, Ltd.; Quissett, common; Sharp, common; Soule, and Gosnold, common.

SILK ASSOCIATION DINNER.

Record Attendance Expected This Year—Speakers and Guests.

Plans for the forty-first annual dinner of the Silk Association of America, which will be held on Tuesday at the Hotel Astor, have been practically completed by the committee in charge. From the present demand for tables, it is said by an official of the association, that the attendance will doubtless surpass all previous records.

Among the speeches to be made are "Welcome," by Judge Joseph W. Congdon; "Greetings from the New Republic," by Chang Yin-tang, the Chinese Minister; "Business and Government," by Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor; "The State of the Nation," by Senator Curtis of Kansas, and "The New Type of Good Man," by the Rev. W. W. Giles of the First Reformed Church, East Orange, N. J.

Among the honorary invited guests are Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Minister; Marquis Cusani-Confaloniere, the Italian Minister; the French Minister, J. J. Jusserand; Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, the German Minister; Dr. Paul Ritter, Minister from Switzerland; President-elect Wilson, Gov. Sulzer, Mayor Gaynor, Collector Loeb, Controller Prendergast, and Job E. Hedges.

SHOE MEN WANT SNOW.

Local Wholesalers Say It Will Move Rubbers and Stimulate Trade.

The failure of the stormy weather of the last day or two to produce a healthy fall of snow is the cause of no little disappointment, from a business point of view, among wholesalers in the local shoe trade. A good snowfall is held to be essential to the movement of the large stocks of rubbers now in the hands of many of the retailers served from this market, the slow selling of which this season has left considerable money tied up. A good storm will, it is said, not only help collections, but will give the retailers some ready money and stimulate the buying of Spring merchandise.

A report from Nashville, Tenn., that "pure shoe" legislation, similar to that enacted in Louisiana, was before the Tennessee Legislature did not please the trade to any great degree. Similar agitation is reported in Georgia and Virginia, and several of the North Carolina newspapers are said to be editorially supporting a "pure shoe" movement in that State.

CHARLES H. PECKWORTH.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Charles H. Peckworth, builder, of 631 Hudson Street. It was alleged that while insolvent he transferred on Oct. 4 to the New York County National Bank assignments of building contracts with the City of New York on which there were large amounts unpaid. Among his latest contracts were a Post Office building, two churches, building on Bank Street for Enoch Morgan's Sons, and a building on West 127th Street for the Bernheimer & Schwartz Brewing Company. His financial statement of May 1, 1911, showed assets $802,619, liabilities $522,092. He was the lowest bidder in 1911 for a section of the Lexington Avenue Subway from Fortieth to Fifty-third Street, his bid of $2,750,000 being $1,100,000 below the next bid; but he afterward withdrew his bid. Delay in awarding the contract was given as the reason.

CRUDE OIL ADVANCED AGAIN.

Now Within Three Cents of $2.50 Goal. Producers Sought to Reach.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4.—After resting a few days the advance in crude oil was continued to-day, when, at the opening of the market, the South Penn Oil Company announced Pennsylvania crude at $2.47. Other grades were advanced as follows: Mercer Black, Newcastle, and Corning, $2; Cabell, $2.07, an advance of 7 cents a barrel; Somerset, $1.35, an advance of 3 cents. There was no change in Ragland.

The new price established for Pennsylvania crude brings it within 3 cents of the goal for which oil producers have long sought, $2.50, and predictions were freely made that this mark would be passed before the end of the week.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

$3,000,000 Fifth Avenue Sale by Columbia University to Klein & Jackson—West Side Block Fronts in Deal —Dressmaker Sells Forty-sixth Street Lease —Bronx and Brooklyn Market.

One of the largest deals on record involving improved Fifth Avenue property was closed yesterday in the purchase by Klein & Jackson from the Trustees of Columbia University of a large parcel on the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street. The sale involves the land only, as the buildings are owned by the various tenants who hold long leaseholds from Columbia University, the majority having ten years to run, the longest not expiring until 1927.

The property is valued at about $3,000,000. It is the largest realty transaction of the year and exceeds in value by about $1,000,000 the recent sale by Harry Payne Whitney of the old Whitney residence and the adjoining one on the avenue at the southwest corner of Fifty-seventh Street.

The property has a frontage of 100.5 on Fifth Avenue and 250 feet on the street. The avenue frontage is occupied by four business buildings, being 580, a nine-story structure occupied by the Windsor Trust Company, 582, by Dreyfous & Co., 584 where a new building is being constructed by Hellner & Wolf under a long lease to the Lichtenstein millinery firm, and 586 by Lowenbein & Co.

The Windsor Trust Building runs back on Forty-seventh Street for 92 feet and the remainder of the plot there is occupied by six old fashioned red brick and brown stone houses, set well back from the street, giving ample room for lawns and gardens in front. Among the occupants of the houses are Mrs. Rionda, J. W. Sterling, Harvey Durand, Mrs. Seccombe, and Miss Laura Jay Edwards.

Beyond stating that no leases will be renewed Klein & Jackson have no immediate plans for changing the character of the property although it is possible that efforts will be made to buy up some of the leases for prospective improvements.

The property was originally part of the extensive Elgin Garden tract which Columbia obtained from the Legislature in 1814, the tract extending to the south side of Fifty-first Street and westward within 100 feet of Sixth Avenue. The greater part of this block was sold by Columbia seven years ago, but the university still retains the blocks to the north.

The transaction was negotiated by Frank B. Taylor and Paul D. Saxe of the firm of Taylor Brothers.

Fitzgerald Building Troubles.

Another chapter was added yesterday to the difficulties which have followed the Fitzgerald Building, on the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-third Street, ever since its completion, over a year ago. The holding company, being Frank R. LINCOLN'S HISTORY TOLD IN PICTURES

A Supplement with 195 Illustrations, 16 Pages, to be a Part of Next Sunday's Times.

Step by Step the Life of the Great President Is Shown, with Moving Incidents.

To commemorate the one hundred and fourth anniversary of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln on Feb. 12, THE NEW YORK TIMES will publish with next Sunday's issue a valuable pictorial history of Abraham Lincoln, containing in all 195 pictures, printed on super-calendered paper, in a sixteen-page section, stitched for permanent reference. THE TIMES'S readers will find the Pictorial Lincoln History in addition to the regular Sunday Magazine, Pictorial Supplement and other interesting sections of the Sunday publication.

Most of the pictures in the splendid Lincoln collection are photographs, some taken on the battlefield, some in the White House, and others that have deep significance in the life of Lincoln. The Pictorial History will be divided into four chapters, as follows: Lincoln's childhood and youth, 1809-1831, 31 pictures; Lincoln, the man, 1831-1861; Lincoln, the lawyer; the Lincoln-Douglas debate, 71 pictures; Lincoln, the President, 1861-1865; the war, in camp, at home, 45 pictures; the death and funeral of Lincoln, 1865; last scenes in tragedy, Lincoln relics and memorials, 48 pictures.

The pictorial representation, beginning with Lincoln's ancestors, is prefaced with a quaint picture of the old stockade home which Abraham Lincoln, the President's grandfather, built in the Kentucky wilderness on moving there from Virginia in 1783. In the next reproduction is shown the death of the President's grandfather, who was killed by the Indians in 1786, while he was clearing a timbered tract for cultivation. The picture also shows the child, Thomas Lincoln, the President's father, clinging to the prostrate body of the first Abraham Lincoln, after escaping the fury of the red men.

Lincoln's Birthplace.

Then in turn are shown the primitive log cabin in Hardin County, Ky., where President Lincoln was born, a picture at once familiar through its repeated publication in text books; a view of the log house where Lincoln's parents were married, and scenes about Rock Spring Farm, the birthplace of Lincoln. Beneath each picture is a comprehensive caption, and in addition there are illuminative paragraphs inserted at intervals to show the proper sequence of the pictures.

Thus one may easily follow the Lincoln family, including Thomas Lincoln, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, and the seven-year-old Abraham, when they strapped their belongings on pack horses and migrated from Kentucky to Indiana in 1816.

The homely life of this pioneer family is next pictured with regard for such details as ordinarily have been disregarded by historians and biographers. THE TIMES Pictorial Lincoln History, however, presents views of the Lincoln farm in Indiana, and the first farmhouse which the martyred President, as a tender lad of 7, helped to build. A pen sketch is also reproduced, showing Lincoln as still a boy toiling with the problems of arithmetic in the kitchen, and there is another representing the way in which he earned his first half-dollar by rowing passengers to an Ohio River steamboat. Likewise, he is seen at the start of his first trip to New Orleans on a flatboat, which he made himself at the age of 18, and again he is represented as making a first-hand study of slavery at the New Orleans market.

In 1830 the Lincoln family trekked to Illinois. Their household goods were loaded in a prairie schooner drawn by four yokes of oxen, driven by Abraham. The journey was finally completed over roads in wretched condition and through forests where the party often had to hew its way. This is duly recorded in the pictorial history.

The period in Lincoln's life from 1831 to 1861 is taken up in Chapter II. of the Pictorial Lincoln History, with pictures that represent him at his early manhood occupations at New Salem, Ill., where he first began the study of law aside from his regular duties. His part in the Black Hawk war, marked chiefly by the rescue of an innocent Indian, is shown in contrast to his activities as Postmaster of New Salem. In the latter capacity Lincoln took it upon himself to personally deliver the mail, using his hat as a mail pouch.

Lincoln's career as a lawyer is completely recounted in a series of pictures showing the different law partners and law offices of Lincoln to Springfield, Ill., with photographs of the different court houses in the Eighth Circuit in which he was reputed to have tried the record number of cases. The place where he was nominated for Congress in 1845 is also shown.

An interesting feature of the Pictorial Lincoln History is a section devoted to the Lincoln-Douglas debate. It contains contemporaneous photographs and portraits of Lincoln and Douglas as well as the scenes of their seven famous verbal conflicts.

This part of the pictorial narrative is followed by another section devoted to the nomination of Lincoln. In it is a splendid picture of the Wigwam at Chicago, where Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency, and portraits of the Republican leaders at that convention.

Accompanied by his family Lincoln started from his home in Springfield for Washington to take the oath of office. His journey was the occasion of numerous demonstrations along the route, as the pictures tell, and at Philadelphia it is shown that he stopped long enough to raise the flag at Independence Hall.

Lincoln's inauguration on March 4, 1861, begins the series of pictures grouped under the title of "Loncoln, the President," 1861-1865. Another picture represents the President receiving visitors, and still another shows him with his Cabinet members. Lincoln made the first draft of the Emancipation Proclamation in the Summer of 1862 without consultation with even his Cabinet members. One interesting picture shows him seated on a bench in the gallery of the White House overlooking the Potomac, preparing the original draft.

The President in Camp.

The period of the civil war is complete with pictures of Lincoln and his associates. At the outbreak of hostilities the President eagerly awaited news from the battlefield. He went for news daily to the telegraph office of the War Department, and sometimes remained there throughout the night, according to one of the war telegraphers, whose account of his intimate associations with Lincoln in that office was recently published in THE TIMES. In the Pictorial Lincoln History there is an interesting picture of the President, seated at a desk, awaiting dispatches in the telegraph room of the War Department.

Another section of the war period is formed of pictures of Lincoln in camp. First there is a sketch of Lincoln and his Generals, Gen. Grant occupying the foreground with the President. Next is reproduced a photograph of Lincoln, standing between Gen. McClellan and Allan Pinkerton. There is still another picture of him visiting the camps and shaking hands with the soldiers.

"Lincoln and His Family" is the heading under which another interesting group of pictures has been placed. His entrance into Richmond, leading Tad, is the first of this series.

The shooting of Lincoln in Ford's Theatre, Washington, on April 14, 1865, and the incidents leading up to the capture of the assassin and his confederates are all graphically depicted.

"The Last Scenes of the Lincoln Tragedy" have a local interest, inasmuch as the body of Lincoln was brought by funeral train directly to New York from Washington. There is a picture of the funeral train and a photograph of the funeral car. In one picture the car is seen crossing the Hudson River on a boat, and in another the City Hall is draped in mourning. The funeral procession in New York is depicted. The Lincoln conspirators are shown in eight separate portraits. The final group of pictures is devoted to Lincoln relics and memorials. Among these are shown the Lincoln catacomb and sarcophagus and the Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill.; Saint-Gaudens's statute in Lincoln Park, Chicago, and the equestrian statue on the Brooklyn memorial arch.

THE TIMES is always sold out early. To be sure of obtaining a copy of this notable supplement readers should order the SUNDAY TIMES in advance.

DU PONT BILL HELD UP.

Mother Ignorant of Attempt to Change Her Child's Name.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 4.—The attempt to have the Legislature change the name of Alfred Victor Du Pont, the eleven-year-old son of Alfred I. Du Pont, the millionaire Vice President of the Du Pont Powder Company, will probably fail.

When the House this morning passed the bill unanimously an effort was made to have it railroaded through the Senate. The bill struck a snag in the upper body, however, when Senator Gormley of Wilmington asked that action be deferred until he "could look into the matter."

Representative Mooney of Wilmington, through whose efforts the measure was rushed through the House, said to-night that he may move for a reconsideration of the bill to-morrow.

The bill changes the child's name to Dorsey Cazenove Du Pont, the mother's family name, and it is believed that the father is back of the measure, as the mother's first knowledge of the movement is said to have come to-day when she read of the action in the newspapers.

STEFANSSON ASKS AID.

Hopes to Have Canadian Government Back His 3-Year Explorations.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 4.—With the object of having the Canadian Government assist him in a three-year expedition through the "last unknown territory" to the north of Canada, Vilhjalmar Stefansson, discoverer of the "white Eskimos" of Coronation Bay, came to Ottawa to-day and saw members of the Cabinet. The explorer, as a Canadian, wishes to go under the aegis of the Dominion Government, so that the right of Canada to whatever land he may discover will be unquestioned. He saw the Hon. J. Roche, Minister of the Interior, to-day, and will confer with other Ministers to ascertain to what extent the Government will back the expedition.

Stefansson also made his official report to the Geological Survey and urged the Government to protect the Eskimos from the troublesome results of partial civilization, including the spread of disease. He asked also that something be done to save the great caribou herds of the barren lands.

NEW ALDERMEN NAMED.

Fusion Men Concede One of the Three Vacancies to Tammany.

The deadlock between the Tammany and Fusion members of the Board of Aldermen over the appointment of three new Aldermen was broken yesterday when the Fusion members conceded one of the vacant places to Tammany.

The new Aldermen are Oscar Igstaebter, Republican, a lawyer, of 174 West 136th Street, to succeed Bryant Willard of the Twenty-first Aldermanic District, who died recently; Hyman Pouker, Republican, a lawyer, of 122 West 128th Street, to succeed Percy L. Davis of the Thirty-first District, who was recently convicted of attempted extortion, and is now in Sing Sing, and Philip Schmidt, Democrat, a lawyer, of 364 East 158th Street, to succeed John J. Hegenmiller, Fusionist, who resigned recently from the Thirty-seventh District.

DEADLY TO AEROPLANES.

French Invention Said to Make Them Capsize, However High Up.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—An apparatus has been devised which, if all that is claimed for it is substantiated, may have an important bearing on the aeroplane as an engine of war.

Gen. Hirschauer of the Flying Corps has received a communication from the inventor of the apparatus, Dr. Cousin, a scientist, who has recently been experimenting with his device with Jules Vedrines, the aviator. He informs Gen Hirschauer that the apparatus, which is small and simple and can be carried in a soldier's knapsack, by provoking disturbances of the air will cause any type of aeroplane to capsize, even if it has ascended to a height of more than 9,000 feet.

BLUE LAWS DO NOT APPLY.

Merchant Tries to Avoid Payment for Advertisement in Sunday Newspaper.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4.—The St. Louis Court of Appeals to-day refused to apply the Missouri "blue law" to save a local merchant from paying for an advertisement in a Sunday newspaper.

The merchant sought exemption from the debt on the plea that the publication of a newspaper on Sunday was a violation of the Sunday law.

The Court of Appeals ruled that as the merchant was a party to the contract for publication of his advertisement on Sunday, he could not invoke the Sunday law to obtain release from payment.

A similar case before the Kansas City Court of Appeals was decided in favor of the advertiser, and the subject will be taken to the State Supreme Court for determination.

DELAY IN NELSON CONTEMPT.

Supreme Court of Missouri Adjourns Before Appeal Is Completed.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 4.—A review of the habeas corpus application in the contempt case against William R. Nelson, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, probably will not be made by the Missouri Supreme Court before next April.

Frank P. Walsh, attorney for Mr. Nelson, called upon the Clerk of the Supreme Court to-day, and learned that the court en banc had adjourned yesterday. The application for a writ, which yesterday was certified to the Supreme Court by the Kansas City Court of Appeals, had not yet arrived.

COASTERS HURT BY AUTO.

Boy Has Skull Fractured When His Sled Strikes Wheels.

Two boys on a sled, coasting down the hill in Sixtieth Street between Amsterdam and West End Avenues, ran into an automobile driven by Joseph Hill of 632 East 230th Street as it was crossing Sixtieth Street in West End Avenue last night. Sled and boys went under the auto, striking the wheels.

Hill and Policeman Powers of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station dragged the boys out. One, Joseph Glavue, 8 years old, of 221 West Sixtieth Street, had a fractured skull. James Kirby, the same age, of 230 West Sixtieth Street was cut and bruised, but not otherwise hurt.

Powers put the youngsters in the automobile and Hill drove them to Roosevelt Hospital.

Butter-from-Oil Company Fails to Sell Product and Quits.

Special to The New York Times.

BAYONNE, N. J., Feb. 4.—The Edible Oil Products Company of Bayonne, N. J., has given up the job of making butter from oil, and closed its plant, throwing a hundred employes out of work. The officials say the company's business has so decreased that there is no longer any excuse for continuing.

This company started to make butter from oil three years ago.

LABOR LEADER GETS DELAY.

Murphy's Examination Set for Friday—A Suspect Released.

Peter B. Murphy, business agent of the Stationary Hoisting Engineers' Union, who is in the Hudson County Jail in default of $2,500 bail charged with having hired three New York gunmen to go to Jersey City and assault John W. Burke, another labor leader, was arraigned before Judge Carey in Jersey City yesterday. Mark A. Sullivan, who is Murphy's lawyer, did not appear, and the court gave Murphy the privilege of waiving examination until Mr. Sullivan could be present. Murphy accepted the offer and was sent back to jail. His next examination was set for Friday.

A man who gave his name as John Ryan was arrested in Jersey City yesterday on suspicion of being one of the men who assaulted Burke. He was placed in line with a dozen other men, and Burke was called in to look the line over and see if he recognized among them one of his assailants. He failed to identify Ryan, and he was released. Only one of the three men is at present under arrest.

Thomas Conroy, another labor leader, who was shot when he went to the assistance of Burke, is still in the hospital, and the doctors now say that he has a chance to recover.

TO BEAUTIFY CHILD LIFE.

Bachelor Leaves Fund to Aid Youngsters Who Deserve Help.

EMPORIA, Kan., Feb. 4.—A trust fund of $30,000, to be used "to beautify and brighten child life in Emporia," was provided in the will of Capt. L. T. Heritage, filed for probate here yesterday.

It is specified that the income from the fund is to relieve suffering among children and to supply to worthy youngsters suitable clothes to attend school and Sunday school without being forced to show the "badge of poverty."

Capt. Heritage, who died two weeks ago, was a bachelor with a great fondness for children.
